Tribute from a tearful doorman

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — San Francisco pioneer Winifred Wobber died in her Nob Hill apartment last weekend, and the hearse driver told Joseph the doorman not to worry, the body would be taken out the back way.

Not so, said Joseph, tears in his eyes. "She came out of this front door every day for 47 years, and she leaves this way!" He stood at attention as the lady made her final exit.

Court orders halt to L.A. schools' ethnic survey

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles city school system has been ordered to halt an ethnic and racial survey of its 720,000 students, with a Superior Court Commissioner calling the survey an invasion of privacy.

Commissioner Clinton Rodda issued a temporary restraining order Tuesday halting the survey and angrily told attorneys for the Board of Education that they must stop collecting information about individual students' ethnic backgrounds.

However, deputies county counsel Stephen Carnevale and Allan McKitrick said the survey had probably been completed in most of the district's 600 schools by the time the injunction was handed down.

"As soon as word gets out, I want it brought to a grinding halt," Rodda told school officials. "The whole thing smacks too much of George Orwell's '1984.' "

But Rodda admitted that no legal action would be taken against school officials for failure to comply with the order until after they receive official notice of it.

School officials may keep what surveys have been collected until the civil case has a complete hearing, but Rodda's order bans further collection or processing of the surveys.

School Board President Dr. Julian Nava, reached by telephone in Denver, Colo., said the injunction would delay the survey, which he called a "reasonable and feasible plan for integration of the schools" by next fall.

"...The restraining order does not stop the survey, but delays its completion until the district demonstrates to the court and the community that the survey is a lawful request and that it is an indispensable part of all attempts to obey the mandate of the California Supreme Court to integrate our schools."

District teachers were given the survey forms last week and told to have them completed by the close of school Tuesday.

The board voted 3-2 Monday night to complete the survey.

Rodda said the plan was "a pervasive invasion of privacy" and reminded him of "big brother" tactics.

"What languages a person can speak is not the same as what language is spoken at home," Rodda said.

The restraining order was requested by 11 plaintiffs including a teacher who would not go along with the survey.

In addition to the privacy issue, their objections were based in arguments that the survey would cause a conflict between teachers and parents who did not want to disclose certain personal information about their families.

The survey forms for each child listed the pupil's name, sex, birthdate, race, home address, grade, school, number of months at the school, their school room number, ability to speak English and the primary language spoken at home. Teachers were instructed to cross-check addresses with the district's files.

Ford's L.A. plant will resume work

PICO RIVERA (AP) — A Ford Motor Co. spokesman says the company's Los Angeles assembly plant is expected to resume full operation Thursday as a result of the United Auto Workers Union nationwide contract ratification ending a four-week strike.

Larry Weis, a spokesman for the plant in this Los Angeles suburb, said the company had not been advised of the outcome of Tuesday's vote by UAW Local 509 on Ford's proposed three-year contract.

Weis added, however, that national acceptance of the pact guaranteed that the Los Angeles plant would resume production because the 1,900 local Ford workers had approved a separate local contract last week.

Local union officials were not immediately available for comment.

Although full operations are not expected before Thursday, Weiss said a limited number of skilled and trades employes would be called back to work today to prepare the plant for resumption of production.

Los Angeles will be one of the first Ford plants in the country to resume production. Ford planned to resume full operations Wednesday at its Wixom, Mich. plant, and resume production Thursday in Chicago and Norfolk, Va., as well as at Los Angeles.

About 1,750 assembly workers are based at the Pico Rivera plant.

Four area youths killed when speeding auto plows into tree

Three from Alta Loma, 4th from Cucamonga

A speeding car ride down a mountain road ended in death Tuesday for four youths, three from Alta Loma and one from Cucamonga.

One of the youths was decapitated when the compact car, southbound at what officers said was an extremely high rate of speed, hit the shoulder, went out of control and struck a tree in front of 5344 Hermosa Ave., Alta Loma.

Two other youths were pronounced dead on arrival at San Antonio Community Hospital in Upland. The fourth youth died there a short while later, officers said.

The dead were identifed by the California Highway Patrol as Dean Miller, 19, 5659 Hellman Ave., James Christie II, 16, 8591 Avalon Court, and William Lewis, 16, 8787 Lomita Court, all Alta Loma; and Carl Schultz, 15, 7440 Carnelian St., Cucamonga.

Patrolmen said Miller, believed to be the driver of the death car, was decapitated. They said it appeared the small, low automobile twice bounced off trees along Hermosa Avenue before smashing broadside into a large eucalyptus tree.

Officers said Christie and Schultz were pronounced dead on arrival at the hospital. They said Lewis showed life signs at the scene, but was pronounced dead a few minutes after arriving at the hospital.

San Bernardino County Deputy Coroner Nelson Alexander said Christie and Schultz were students at Alta Loma High School.

Officers theorized the youths were returning from a ride into the mountain area. The accident happened at about 4:45 p.m. The site on Hermosa Avenue is near Hillside Road.

Brown asks cooperation in hospital death probe

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. has expressed his concern about reports of deaths at Camarillo State Hospital and says he wants state officials to cooperate in the Ventura County investigation.

Brown's spokeswoman, Elisabeth Coleman, said the governor talked by phone Tuesday with Ventura County Dist. Atty. Stanley Trom.

Trom's office said it has been investigating 100 deaths at the hospital over the past three years, including cases of drug overdoses, strangulation and possible gross negligence.

The governor said he was concerned about the situation at the hospital, and also asked the district attorney to cooperate with the state Department of Health whenever he could, the spokeswoman said.

She quoted Brown as saying Trom told him "there are only six cases that look highly suspicious at this time."

Don Miller, deputy director in charge of state hospitals, said he talked to the district attorney about one year ago and offered state cooperation, "but they didn't ever get get back in touch with us."

Miller said Jerome Lackner, state director of health, talked with Ventura County officials Tuesday and planned to meet in person with them today or Thursday.

"There may be some negligence in a case or two, but I cannot believe there is negligence in 79 cases," Miller said.

Carter's son will speak at OMS tonight

Jeff Carter, the 24-year-old son of Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter, will speak briefly at a dinner tonight for Rep. Jim Lloyd, D-35th Dist., which will be held at the Hall of Fame Restaurant at Ontario Motor Speedway.

Carter will be accompanied by his wife, Annette.

Aides with the Carter-Mondale campaign committee in Los Angeles said the young couple will arrive at OMS at approximately 7:10 p.m. and stay an hour.

Keynote speaker at the dinner will be U.S. Sen. Alan Cranston, D-California.

Link to deaths not established

Probe widens as 8 states suspend swine flu shots

By The Associated Press

Medical investigators pressed the hunt today for information about elderly persons in half a dozen states who died recently after getting swine flu shots. Three deaths in the Pittsburgh area on Tuesday led eight states to suspend the inoculation program temporarily.

Federal and state health officials stressed that there was no link between the vaccinations and the deaths — 10 in all. They noted that all the victims were elderly — one was 94 — and most had a history of heart trouble.

Most of the states where the swine flu vaccination program was under way continued the inoculations, although five states stopped using vaccine from the same lot as that involved in the Pittsburgh cases.

Authorities generally said the only after-shot reactions they had heard about were the expected ones: sore arms.

The Center for Disease Control in Atlanta said samples of the batch of vaccine used in Pittsburgh would be tested at the Bureau of Biologics in Rockville, Md.

Dr. J. Donald Millar, director of the center's bureau of state services, said, "The program will come to a screeching halt" if reports continue to link the vaccinations with deaths.

"The continued emphasis on what is an expected phenomenon ... is going to have a deleterious effect on the program," Millar said.

The head of the center, Dr. David Sencer, said: "We have no evidence to suggest that these deaths (in the Pittsburgh area) were caused by vaccine or the vaccine programs.

"Nevertheless, this is a highly unusual cluster of deaths and requires a full investigation. It must be realized that in any given 24-hour period, there are 11.6 deaths for every 100,000 persons between ages 65-75."

Autopsies on two of the Pittsburgh victims showed they died of heart attacks. Other deaths following flu shots were reported in Michigan, Oklahoma, Massachusetts, Tennessee and Florida. All of the victims were over 60.

The inoculation program was suspended in Texas, Wisconsin, Louisiana, Vermont, Alaska, Maine, New Mexico and Illinois, except for the city of Chicago. It also was halted in the Pittsburgh area; Pitt County in North Carolina stopped the shots temporarily on Tuesday; and the opening of two clinics in Virginia was postponed until Thursday.

Officials in New York, Michigan, Utah, Florida and Massachusetts discontinued use of vaccine shipped in the same batch as that given to the Pittsburgh victims. One Michigan county, where some doses of the vaccine from the Pittsburgh lot had been given, suspended operation of its three clinics today.

The $135 million program, aimed at vaccinating up to 200 million Americans against swine flu, began less than two weeks ago.

The shots were particularly recommended for people over 65, diabetics and those with chronic illnesses, heart, kidney and lung diseases. These highrisk people were among the first to receive the shots in many areas and, as in the case of the Pittsburgh victims, often were given a special combination vaccine designed to protect against both the swine and A-Victoria flu strains.

Millar said most of the 500,000 doses of vaccine given out so far had gone to people over 65. And he said there was evidence that the elderly people who were vaccinated were less vulnerable to death than those who weren't.

The Pennsylvania victims were two women and a man, all in their 70s.

Only four persons who died — the three in Pittsburgh and one in Florida — were identified as having received vaccine from lot A913339A. The other reported victims included a 94-yearold Boston man who died in his sleep several days ago after receiving the vaccine; two men in Michigan; an 86-year-old woman in Tennessee; and two elderly people in Oklahoma.

The type of vaccine that the three were given was produced by Parke Davis & Co. of Detroit and was part of lot A913339A. Sencer said about 1 million to 1½ million doses were in the lot, which was mainly distributed in the East.

Death penalty battle looming

Ventura rape, murder case questions rule

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Lawyers will fight over the constitutionality of California's death penalty law in a state Supreme Court hearing on a Ventura murder case Thursday.

A California statute lists 11 crimes, including murder of an on-duty policeman and multiple murder, which require the death penalty if a jury or judge finds the crime fits one of the categories.

Two justices who plan to retire soon, Chief Justice Donald Wright and Justice Raymond Sullivan, will sit with the court when it hears the case here, away from its San Francisco home base.

But court spokesmen said the two will take part in any decision on the case after hearing the arguments, even if the decision is not issued until after they leave the bench early in 1977.

In 1972 Wright wrote the court's decision striking down the state's earlier death penalty law. Since then the voters gave the legislature the power to write a new death penalty law, which is now on the books.

Now there are 64 men and one woman in state prison facing the new death penalty, state officials say. Gov. Edmund Brown Jr., a death penalty foe, has said he will uphold the law, whatever it is.

At issue Thursday will be the case of Steven D. Rockwell, 25, who was found guilty by a jury in Ventura of kidnaping, raping and murdering an 18-year-old woman, Linda Beth Coverly.

At this time, Rockwell is not facing the death penalty because the jury deadlocked 11-1 in favor of death in the penalty phase, necessitating a new penalty trial which has not yet been held.

Recent U.S. Supreme Court decisions held the character and record of a defendant must be considered in a death penalty case, and Rockwell's attorneys challenged the state law on that basis.

Arguments Thursday are certain to focus on whether the California law grants courts and juries enough discretion, given the recent U.S. Supreme court rulings, to consider mitigating factors in a case.

Howard Schwab, a deputy attorney general, said in an interview that he would argue the California law gives a judge and jury sufficient discretion to make it constitutional under the new court decisions.

Baja's 'booby' blue

VALLEY SPRINGS (AP) — A blue-footed booby bird from Baja California has been strutting around for the tourists about five weeks now, and no one seems willing to pay his way back to Baja.

The California Department of Fish and Game declares disintrestedly that a lot of birds get lost in storms like the recent ones in Baja and Southern California.

Cheryle Burke, who with her husband operates a marina at New Hogan Reservoir, said Tuesday the bird — nicknamed Boo — is doing well, strolling within feet of visitors and eating minnows out of their hands.

She said scores of birdwatchers are flocking in to see Boo. One couple came all the way from Texas, and a man from West Virginia flew to San Francisco and drove to this Sierra town in a rented car.

But as yet, Mrs. Burke said, no one has yet brought a bundle to bus the booby bird back to Baja.

Teen-age boy found hanged on stairway

PALM SPRINGS (AP) — A 14-year-old boy accidentally hanged himself in a noose fashioned out of electrical wire while showing off to other teenagers, authorities said.

The Riverside County Coroner's Office said Tuesday that Thayne Royce Jr. hung the wire from a stairway on the side of a residence near his home in a condominium complex and put his head in the noose.

"The boy was showing off to kids in the neighborhood," Coroner Bob Drake said.

Counter-culture political rally

Wavy Gravy touts Nobody

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — They held a presidential campaign rally in front of City Hall — and Nobody showed up.

But that was fine with Wavy Gravy and the rest of the crowd from the Nobody for President campaign, who kicked off a national tour under a warm October sun in Civic Plaza Tuesday.

The candidate himself — or herself — appeared late in the rally. The candidate's motorcade, a battered sportscar, drove across the sidewalk with a bunting-festooned wooden chair mounted on the trunk. Nobody was sitting in it.

Around the improvised stage were hung banners carrying slogans like "Nobody loves the poor," "Nobody will end war," and "Nobody will lower your taxes."

Mr. Gravy, a San Francisco Bay area counter-culture hero who says he's Nobody's Fool, was smeared with white clown makeup for the occasion. He told the estimated 200 people gathered around the reflecting pool that Nobody would address the crowd.

Then, a pair of plastic windup teeth chattered into the microphone, answering questions on foreign and domestic issues.

Paul Krassner, editor of The Realist magazine and a substantial counter-culture figure in his own right, told the crowd he wanted to see Nobody get elected.

"If we need an official greeter for the country, we can get Harry Belafonte or Paul Newman," he said.

Gravy Nobody's manager on the campaign trail, says his candidate has a good chance to win the election. He pointed out that 40 per cent of the eligible voters in the last presidential election voted for Nobody.

And he contends that, according to media analysts, Nobody won the first of the three presidential campaign debates.

Even Democratic hopeful Jimmy Carter gave Nobody a boost on one visit to San Francisco, Krassner said, when he told the throng assembled to see him that "Nobody has all the answers."

"We all cheered and he didn't quite know why," Krassner said.

The cross-country tour is scheduled for stops in Los Angeles, Albuquerque, N.M., Austin, Tex. and Washington, D.C., winding up in New York's Washington Square on election day, Nov. 2.

Police hearing slated in teen-age sex case

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Hearings before the police department's Board of Rights have been set for seven officers accused of sexual misconduct with teen-age girl Explorer Scouts.

The board hearings were set Tuesday and will consider allegations of official misconduct by the officers. The officers face penalties ranging from suspension to dismissal.

The police department's internal investigation began last July when a girl accused officers of having sexual relations with teen-aged members of the Law Enforcement Explorer Girls.

Five officers were named in criminal misdemeanor charges Thursday alleging illegal sexual intercourse with a minor and contributing to the delinquency of minors.

Individual departmental hearings for the officers were set to begin Oct. 16, with the last to be held Dec. 7.

Officers both charged in the criminal proceedings and facing departmental hearings included Lewis Parker, Robert Barnard, Richard Engstrum, Raymond Paladino and Kevin Kirsch.

Not named in the criminal charges, but facing departmental hearings were officers Michael Casadus, Ronald O'Roark, John L. White and Wayne Curtis.

Two other officers originally accused of misconduct have been cleared, a department spokesman said. Two others have been suspended for 22 days and two have resigned.

Brown prepares to ink industrial controls bill

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.'s administration is preparing a bill to give state and regional government control over the siting of industrial plants.

Bill Press, state director of planning and research, explained the bill Tuesday at a hearing of the state Economic Development Commission.

Much of the hearing dealt with a proposal by Dow Chemical Co. to build a $500 million petrochemical complex on the Sacramento River in Solano County.

Press said that under the bill, the state would determine what type of industry California wants and in what region it should be located. The regional agencies would determine the exact locations.

There would be no state veto over a regional agency, but the latter could overrule a local government's decision.

Press called the idea "local planning with state direction."

He said business is "very interested" in the proposal.

John Zierold, lobbyist for the Sierra Club, called it a "very sound idea."

But the issue of regional government has been controversial, and the plan could run into strong opposition in the legislature.

On the Dow plant, supporters say it has run into long delays because of an unnecessarily detailed permit process.

Press, said that to speed up the state's part of the process, four agencies will hold consolidated hearings in December. They are the Water Resources Control Board, Reclamation Board, State Lands Commission, and Department of Water Resources.

Harris trial set

OAKLAND (AP) — William and Emily Harris were scheduled to be arraigned today on a county grand jury indictment charging them with kidnaping newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst, who turned bank robber after the kidnaping and is serving a seven-year prison sentence.

The Harrises already have pleaded innocent to that charge, which was contained in a 19-count criminal complaint lodged against them September 23 in municipal court. The indictment supersedes that action.

Dogs shot

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Police say they had to shoot two large Great Dane dogs that charged them while they frisked the animal's owner.

Authorities said Tuesday that no one was injured in the incident.

Three officers called to a residential area after receiving complaints of a disturbance late Monday night were told by a man that a neighbor had set his two Great Danes after him following an argument but he had escaped unhurt, investigators said.

The policemen opened fire with two shotguns and a pistol, felling one dog, officers said. The second dog ran away and was found dead in shrubs about a block away Tuesday, police said.

Citizens' arrests

MAYWOOD (AP) — A nurse and union negotiator have placed each other under citizen's arrest after the nurse drove through a picket line to reach her post at Southeast Doctors Hospital here.

The two arrested one another Tuesday after the nurse, Margaret Leavitt, drove through the picket line of striking nonmedical hospital workers. But how fast she drove was a point of contention.

Suspect held

RIVERSIDE (AP) — Police at Guaymas, Mexico, are holding an Indio man wanted by Riverside County authorities in connection with the death of a La Quinta lawyer, according to the Riverside County sheriff's office.

A sheriff's spokesman said Tuesday that Charles Blumfield, 33, had been taken into custody by Mexican authorities after Valerie Pearlman, 30, also of Indio, passed word to Guaymas police that she had been abducted by Blumfield.

Kidnap car found

SAN DIEGO (AP)—Police reportedly are in custody of the car used in the Oct. 1 abduction of Lefteriya Ozbun, although officers say the search continues for the Death Row author sought in connection with the kidnaping.

A police source has said the car was located in the San Diego area and impounded for detailed examination. Higher ranking officers would neither confirm nor deny the statement.

Father collapses and dies after fight with his son

An 18-year-old Chino man Tuesday night was arrested for investigation of manslaughter following a fight with his father during which the father collapsed and died, apparently of a heart attack.

Booked into Chino Jail was David Ricky Montantes.

Chino police said the fight occurred at the home of Henry Samora Montantes, 52, 5311 Anderson St.

Detective Phil DuBois said it appeared the elder Montantes had been beaten prior to his death. Officers believe the elder Montantes arrived home and found his son there to meet him, and for some unknown reason, a fight developed.

DuBois said an autopsy has been ordered to determine the exact cause of Montantes' death.

Suspect arrested

Police have arrested a Cucamonga man as a suspect in the shooting of an Ontario youth last Saturday.

He is Rudy Leon Espinoza, 22, of 10210 Foothill Blvd., who is accused of attempted murder. Police and members of the San Bernardino County Sheriff's special weapons team arrested him Tuesday at a cactus farm in Etiwanda.

Espinoza is accused of shooting Raymond Arthur Lopez, 19, of 1114 Nocta St., Ontario. The victim was shot once in his side and once in the hand.

Investigators said Espinoza is the ex-boyfriend of Lopez' sister.

Police received a tip that Espinoza was hiding in a house in Cucamonga. But when they arrived, he wasn't there.

On a chance, officers then went to the Etiwanda cactus farm. The farm was surrounded police and was surrounded by police and deputies and Espinoza's parole officer was called. The suspect was taken with no shots.

Woman booked

A young Valinda woman was arrested in a Pomona massage parlor Tuesday night on charges of soliciting an act of prostitution and failure to possess a massage technician permit.

The arrest was made by Pomona police vice officers at the Pomona Valley Health Salon at 1567 N. Orange Grove Ave. The woman was identified as Mrs. Georgia Ann Bixler, 23. She subsequently was released on bail.

Surrenders

A Pomona man accused in the wounding Saturday night of a man in a La Verne bar turned himself in to La Verne officers and has been released on bail.

The suspect is Ernesto Figueroa, 28, who was booked on suspicion of assault with intent to commit murder in the wounding of Ascuncion C. Salazar, 27, of Ontario, at the Latino bar, 1904 Arrow Hwy. Salazar was reported in stable condition at the San Dimas Community Hospital where he was being treated for a gunshot wound in the right chest.

Police said they believe the shooting occurred during horseplay which became violent.

Figueroa was released on $3,000 bail for arraignment in Pomona Municipal Court Oct. 22.

Arby's robbed

Arby's Roast Beef at 1175 E. Holt Ave. in Pomona was robbed late Tuesday night by a man who fired a shot over the building before fleeing over a block wall behind before fleeing over a block wall behind the place.

Employe Priscilla L. Hancock, 19, said the man entered, showed a pistol under his shirt and demanded money. After obtaining cash from the cash register he fled across the parking lot. When he reached the wall he turned and fired one shot before vaulting the wall.

The robber was described as black, 25, 5 feet 10 weighing 150 pounds. He wore a dark-blue cap with a small visor, long-sleeved blue shirt, blue jeans and glasses with jeweled frames.

President Ford says he has "a pretty good batting average" in giving leadership compared with Jimmy Carter, despite the Earl Butz affair and confusion over Ford's statements on Eastern Europe and the Arab boycott of Israel.

As Ford was launching a tour of New York and New Jersey on Tuesday, Democratic nominee Jimmy Carter degan a two-day rest at his home in Plains, Ga., before his own trip to New York on Thursday.

A new Gallup Poll showed the two candidates nearly neck-and-neck in their race for the White House, but the poll results were admittedly outdated before their release.

George Gallup Sr. said the polling results taken just before last Thursday's debate in San Francisco show Carter and Ford "just about even." The Washington Post said the figures show Carter leading Ford by 47 to 45 per cent.

Gallup said, "We are making a new poll, but the figures aren't all in yet." He said early returns from the new poll show Carter regaining some of the ground he had lost.

But Gallup denied a report in the Post that the new poll will show a Carter gain of as much as 10 per cent. Gallup said, "No, that's totally wrong" when asked about the Post figures.

Ford traveled by motorcade through crowded New York streets, was picketed and heckled at some points and cheered at others.

The two vice presidential candidates, Democratic Sen. Walter Mondale and Republican Sen. Bob Dole, spent Tuesday preparing for their nationally televised debate Friday night, but Dole also campaigned in Tennessee.

Ford met late Tuesday with a group of New York news executives and was asked about Democratic charges that he showed poor leadership in dealing with three recent incidents:

The obscene slur about blacks by Butz; Ford's statement in last week's debate that the Soviets do not dominate Eastern Europe; and confusion over his stand on releasing the names of U.S. corporations that cooperate with the Arab boycott.

But Ford said, "On a comparative basis, I think my leadership, if you take those kinds of things, is a pretty good batting average and (Carter) is a minor leaguer.

Ford cited the Sinai agreement and U.S. efforts to mediate disputes in southern Africa as "the things that count as leadership, not the shopping list" of troubles that has plagued the Ford campaign.

But Ford told the New York news executives it would have been wrong to "shoot from the hip" on the Butz case.

Ford accused Carter of doing that in the recent dispute over FBI Director Clarence Kelley. Carter had said if he were in Ford's job he would have fired Kelley for permitting FBI employes to do work at his home and for accepting gifts from subordinates. Ford, who refused to fire Kelley, said Carter "ended up looking a little ridiculous."

V.P. candidates fail to impress

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A statewide opinion poll reported today that neither vice presidential candidate — Democrat Walter Mondale or Republican Robert Dole — appear to be having a significant impact on how California voters will cast their ballots next month.

"The large majority of the public feels the presence of either on the ticket makes little or no difference ... in voting for Jimmy Carter or President Ford," concluded pollster Mervin Field following a survey of more than 1,000 registered voters.

Field estimated two out of every three persons polled said Mondale and Dole neither strengthened nor weakened their party's ticket.

When asked which of the two candidates was best qualified to become president if necessary, responses fell predictably along party lines.

Noting that neither candidate has campaigned extensively in California, Field said this Friday's televised debate between the pair will give many Californians their first real impression of the two.

Hayakawa holds stand on internment camps

By BOB EGELKO
Associated Press Writer

Republican S.I. Hayakawa is defending his stand on Japanese-American internment camps, while his Democratic opponent, U.S. Sen. John Tunney, is calling for strict curbs on the export of nuclear technology.

Hayakawa said Tuesday he thinks the overwhelming majority of Japanese-Americans agree with him that some good came out of the World War II camps where Californians of Japanese descent were detained.

"I believe it would be only a minority, perhaps 10 or 20 per cent, who might still protest the whole matter of relocation," said the Canadian-born semanticist, who was in Canada during the war.

"I think the rest agree with me.... I understand it was unfortunate, cruel and unjust, but some good came out of it. Every social action results in unplanned results."

Hayakawa said during the Republican primary that the camps had the beneficial effects of breaking up patriarchal family structures and integrating Japanese into American society.

His comments Tuesday came after a talk with two local Japanese Americans, who said they had been in the camps and disagreed with his view, although they supported his candidacy.

"He didn't experience the same experience we did in the camps," said one of the men, Pete Hamatani, a Sacramento farmer.

The other, an attorney who declined to give his name, said he thought the majority of Japanese-Americans still resented the camps.

"I think like a Japanese-American. Hayakawa thinks like an American, a white man," the lawyer said, adding that he still prefers Hayakawa to Tunney.

He also said Hayakawa's stand is resented strongly by some young Japanese-American activists.

Tunney, at a civic luncheon in Los Angeles, warned that the export of U.S. nuclear technology could one day lead to nuclear blackmail by "the hungry masses of the Sahel or Bangladesh" or by terrorists.

"Our bombs are scattered around the world where they simply cannot be safe from terrorist threats," he said. "The United States, Germany and France are engaged in a mad race to sell nuclear technology to whoever will buy it."

Tunney proposed cutting off nuclear technical aid to any nation that refused to commit itself to an indefinite moratorium on reprocessing nuclear fuel.

In another development, a Hayakawa aide said a new poll commissioned by Republican candidates shows Hayakawa leading Tunney by two percentage points. Last week a California Poll gave Tunney a five point lead.

The Hayakawa aide, Jack McDowell, said both polls really show that the race is a "dead heat."

Leadership batting average good — Ford

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP) — President Ford, who says Jimmy Carter is "a minor leaguer" who would raise taxes on middle income Americans, today signed a $25.5 billion extension of the general revenue-sharing bill and called it "another milestone in the continuing effort to make the government work better for the American taxpayer."

The money will be distributed to thousands of state, county and municipal governments over a 45-month period from Jan. 1, 1977 to Sept. 30, 1980.

As a site for the signing, Ford chose the steps of the City Hall at Yonkers, a New York suburb which like the metropolis has had financial difficulties. New York state's fourth largest city with a population of 205,000, Yonkers was on the verge of defaulting last winter until bailed out by loans from the state and a consortium of banks.

Arriving here after attending a Republican fund raiser in New York Tuesday night, the President combined the symbolic bill signing — which ended 18 months of efforts by his administration to have the plan extended by Congress — with a campaign rally attracting several thousand persons.

He said that in the past four years more than $30 billion have been handed out to 39,000 government units under the federal revenue-sharing plan, and said this "has held the state and local property taxes in check and promoted economic well-being in thousands of communities.

"With revenue sharing we are restoring local control over local decisions rather than leaving them in the hands of some bureaucrat in Washington."

Ford said many Democrats in Congress had opposed the extension. "The Democrats in Washington don't trust local governments. The Democrats in Washington want to tell you how to run your state and local affairs," he said. "They would make federal government bigger, more powerful and more expensive."

Ford jabbed at Carter, saying the Democratic presidential candidate has stated his opposition to general revenue sharing in its present form, but found use for $141 million in such funds when he was governor of Georgia. "He didn't send back one penny to Washington during those four years," Ford said.

Carter has advocated extension of the revenue-sharing progrm for five years but with several changes, such as bypassing states to give funds directly to cities so they will have more control over the use of the money and because they cannot generate more taxes as easily as state governments can.

Carter has also said, however, that revenue sharing "violates a basic principle in government fiscal management, in that the responsibilities for raising and spending funds are separated."

Meeting Tuesday night with a group of news executives in New York, Ford said he thinks "the bumps are behind us."

Carter raps Ford for funds lost in Medicaid

PLAINS, Ga. AP — Jimmy Carter, back home and relaxing in the Georgia sunshine, said Tuesday the Ford administration "has offered no substantial proposals, not even a suggestion" on how it intends to reclaim money lost through fraud in the Medicaid program.

He said a Carter administration would change the way hospitals are paid through Medicare and Medicaid.

Carter's statement returned to themes he has addressed before. It was released through his press office. The Democratic nominee had said he would talk with no one but his family during two days of rest after eight days of campaigning.

In another statement issued in his name, Carter called on President Ford to order an immediate increase in the price support loan level for wheat farmers.

Without saying what the loan level should be or what it would cost, Carter declared: "The current loan level of $1.50 a dushel is completely inadequate and unrealistic. The President should use the authority Congress has given him to establish a realistic loan level immediately."

Carter's health-care statement was an attack on what he called "an unprecedented 19 per cent increase" in hospitalization costs to be paid by Medicare patients. Among his proposals was a bonus system for hospitals that bring costs below rates fixed in advance.

"Recently, the Social Security Administration in Washington announced that Medicare patients, who had been paying the first $104 of hospitalization costs, will now have to pay the first $124," the statement said.

Carter added that the Ford administration has proposed to have Medicare patients pay 10 per cent of the costs of the second through 59th day of hospitalization. Carter said that "would impose on Medicare patients the staggering burden of $1 billion in additional payments responsibilities."

He criticized the administration for making "no response at all" to a Senate investigating committee's report more than a month ago that there was a $3 billion to $5 billion annual loss in Medicaid funds.

However, administration witnesses in fact announced Sept. 22 that they had dropped their opposition to anti-fraud bills in Congress, saying legislation is needed.

Carter said as president he would restructure the system in an effort to eliminate fraud and waste "as we move toward the gradual phasing-in of a national comprehensive health care system."

"Hospitals which find ways to save and succeed in spending less than the estimated rates will be permitted to keep a bonus portion of the savings," he said. "Hospitals which exceed the estimates will not be fully reimbursed."

Carter also said he would establish "an aggressive central fraud and abuse unit to investigate violations of the law" and place Medicaid, Medicare and quality review under the same management.

He gave no cost for such a plan.

Czech student gains freedom

TRIESTE, Italy (AP) — A young Czech on a floating rubber mattress paddled 50 miles across the Adriatic Sea from Yugoslovia to seek political asylum in Italy, police reported today.

He was picked up by a police boat a few miles off this Italian port city.

Arraignment today in stabbing case

Joseph Rudolph Moreno, 22, of Montclair, is scheduled to be arraigned in Chino Municipal Court today on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon in connection with the scissors stabbing of a Chino woman Saturday morning.

Moreno was arrested by Chino police shortly after Trini Malgra Garcia, 21, of 13065 Fifth St., Chino, was stabbed repeatedly in the back and right side with a pair of nine inch scissors as she was sleeping on her bed.

Police said Moreno was allowed to come in the Garcia home early Saturday morning and he immediately went to Miss Garcia's bedroom.

Police believe the attack on the woman was the result of a lover's quarrel

Miss Garcia was listed in stable but improved condition this morning at Chino General Hospital with multiple stab wounds.

Desert winds heating up Southland

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Desert winds sweeping in from the east will keep most of Southern California uncomfortably hot through Thursday at least, says the National Weather Service which adds that the only cooling relief will come from low clouds and fog hanging over a narrow coastal strip.

NWS forecasters predict a comfortable day time 70 degrees on beaches, with temperatures dipping into the low 60s at night.

More 90-plus mercury readings are forecast for the Los Angeles basin, with valley highs expected to climb to the 95 mark.

Desert highs, however, will drop a bit from previous days — into the low 90s in the lower deserts and the 80s in the higher deserts. Mountain resort forecasts call for afternoon highs of 65 to 75.

Santa Ana winds sweeping through mountain passes into the valleys were expected to hit 25 to 35 miles per hour, and in spots reach as high as 40 to 45 miles per hour.

CHARGE DISMISSED — Steve Dain jokes with Deirdre Pollock, a former student at Emeryville High, as he waits outside court in Oakland Tuesday. The judge ruled in his favor.

Ex-woman teacher wins legal battle

OAKLAND (AP) — Steve Dain, a former girls gym teacher who underwent sex change surgery, has won another round in his legal battle to regain a job at Emery High School.

After listening to three hours of testimony Tuesday, Municipal Court Judge Roderic Duncan threw out a misdemeanor charge of wilfull disturbance brought against Dain by school officials.

However, Dain remains under notice of suspension for "unfitness to teach" and posing "potential psychological harm to pupils." The school board is scheduled to meet Thursday night to ratify the suspension with intent to dismiss.

Judge Duncan considered the case for 25 minutes before declaring that Dain had not committed a crime when he refused to leave a teachers' orientation session Sept. 2.

Duncan said Dain, a tenured teacher with 10 years service, had a right to be at the session, despite a written request from Supt. Lewis Stommel that he stay away.

Stommel and school board attorney William R. Johnson were the only witnesses to testify at the hearing.

On Aug. 31, Stommel said, he called Dain and "I said I thought it highly advisable not to attend the orientation session."

Dain, who had taught as Doris Richards until last December when she took a leave of absence to undergo the sex change, responded with an obscenity, Stommel said.

Stommel had Dain arrested at the orientation after the teacher refused to leave.

Dain says he will appeal the suspension if the school board ratifies it on Thursday.

"I still want to teach there," the bearded Dain said outside of court. "I feel I can effectively teach at that school. It's only a small group of people who are against me."

He then hugged about a halfdozen youngsters who said they were former students of Dain when he was Doris Richards.

Dain won another court squirmish last week when Alameda County Superior Court Judge Robert Barber ordered school district officials to assign him a teaching position and give him about $3,200 in back pay.

Cool weather across nation

By The Associated Press

Fair skies and seasonably cool temperatures dominated most of the nation early today.

Some high clouds covered much of the Gulf Coast, the northern Rockies and an area from the Great Lakes into the upper half of the Mississippi Valley. A few sprinkles were reported in parts of Minnesota, Wisconsin, Upper Michigan and southern Florida, but the remainder of the nation was clear.

Temperatures were again on the cool side along the Atlantic Coast, with 40s reaching as far south as northern Florida, and 30s as far south as North Carolina.

Temperatures in the 40s also prevailed across the northern Plains, and readings in the 50s were common elsewhere.

Volunteer involvement

The VOLUNTEER INCOME TAX ASSISTANCE (VITA) program is seeking volunteers to aid individuals in the preparation of their 1976 Federal Income Tax returns.

VITA volunteers are trained by the Internal Revenue Service to prepare simple tax returns for individuals in the lower income, elderly or non-English speaking taxpayer group, as well as others who find it geographically inconvenient to seek assistance from the IRS.

In the past, volunteers have been college students, employes of social action groups and members of civic, religious and retirement organizations.

Anyone can become a VITA volunteer either through an existing organization or by contacting a VITA coordinator. The deadline for recruiting volunteers this year is Nov. 15. Additional information may be on obtained by writing Robert Herrera, coordinator, Internal Revenue Service, 9050 E. Flair Drive, El Monte, or calling (213) 573-7890.

The Pomona office of the AMERICAN CANCER SOCIETY is seeking volunteer drivers who will transport patients to hospitals for medical treatments.

According to Betty Lessard, transportation coordinator for the local area, the major need is for volunteers who will take individuals to out-of-the-area facilities such as City of Hope Medical Center in Duarte, Loma Linda University Medical Center and several hospitals in Los Angeles.

The requirements to be a volunteer driver are having a valid California license, insurance and the willingness to wait while the patient receives therapy.

Persons wishing to assist or to know more about the program may call Mrs. Lessard at 624-9400 or the Pomona office at 623-0616.

The WEST END MULTI-SERVICE CENTER in Ontario is seeking volunteers to aid the elderly and shut-ins. Volunteers are needed to assist people with shopping, sewing or easy household duties. Especially needed are bilingual volunteers who can assist in emergency health programs when senior citizens have difficulty with the English language. Persons interested in assisting with the West End program which started last April may call the WEMS Center at 983-0775.

The Southern California Chapter of the ARTHRITIS FOUNDATION is seeking volunteers to participate in its annual "Neighborhood March Against Arthritis" on Feb. 4, 5 and 6 in the valley.

The door-to-door marchers will be assigned to their own community to call on residents seeking contributions for the foundation's many research and direct patient service programs.

Additional information regarding the volunteer effort may be obtained by calling the San Gabriel Valley office at (213) 442-8709.

Accordion Federation names new president

Doris Valentine of Upland is the new president of the Accordion Federation of North America.

Other elected officers are Ray Lewis, vice-president; Kenneth Aley, recording secretary; Kenneth Howell, treasurer; Bernard Rodrique, parliamentarian, and Oakley Yale, sergeant-at-arms.

Elections were held at a meeting after the conclusion of AFNA's 21st Annual Music Festival, a four-day event held in Los Angeles.

There were almost 5,000 entries in the various categories of competition.

Freeze batter

If you don't have time to mix and bake cookies all at once, store the batter in the refrigerator. Bake them later — when it's convenient, or let the kids do the baking. Cookie batter will keep refrigerated in a tightly covered container for up to a week.

DONALD BURNS, the California Association of Life Underwriter's representative before the state Legislature since 1956, will be speaker at the Pomona Valley Life Underwriters Association program Friday at noon at Griswold's Restaurant in Claremont.

Speakers service available

Pitzer College is offering a new speakers service to organizations in Southern California.

According to Dean of Faculty Al Schwartz, organizations interested in hearing good speakers on a variety of topics are invited to call the public relations office at Pitzer to request a free speakers bureau booklet.

The booklet is organized according to topics of popular interest rather than academic areas, according to Schwartz.

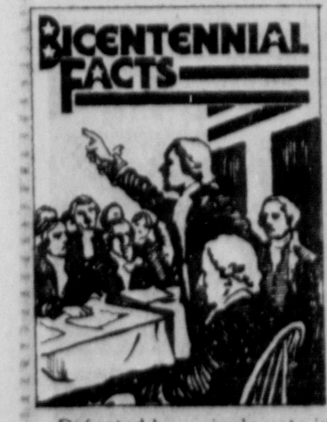
"For example," he said, "one of our psychologists might talk about 'gambling, speculation and risk-taking' and this would be listed under 'Sports and Play.' "

Other topics include: power and politics; other cultures; women; human development; environment; prehistory and history; art and entertainment; education; California; the human mind; career choices; folklore; money matters.

Also: communication — reading, fighting, talking; work; urban life and crime and punishment.

In most cases, the sponsoring organization is expected to pay travel and incidental expenses and an honorarium. However, the speakers bureau also maintains a list of lectures available without charge.

For more information, call 626-8511, ext. 3145.



Defeated by a single vote in the First Continental Congress on Sept. 28, 1774, Joseph Galloway's Plan of Union proposed solving the problem of home rule by giving the American colonies something approaching dominion status. An important feature of the plan was that the colonial government would have authority to regulate commercial, civil, criminal and police affairs when more than a single colony was involved. The World Almanac notes that the proposed government would have had veto power over parliamentary legislation affecting the colonies.

Professor sworn in

Peter Eng, assistant professor of the department of urban planning at Cal Poly Pomona, has been sworn in as a member of the Claremont Architectural Commission.

Eng, who lives at 1317 Tulane Road, Claremont, has lived there for two years.

He holds an M.A. degree in urban planning, and a bachelor of architecture degree.

He is a member of the American Institute of Planners.

Bonita students in semifinals

Two students at Bonita High School in La Verne are semifinalists in the National Merit Scholarship Program competition and three are recipients of letters of commendation.

Principal Louis E. Rosen said the semi-finalists are Sander Eller and Colleen Schultz. Those who have received letters of commendation are Keith Brandt, Monica Brukner and Michael Riley.

Visitation Day at MSAC

Representatives from 41 universities and colleges throughout California are scheduled to visit Mt. San Antonio College on University and College Visitation Day Oct. 28.

The event starts at 10 a.m. The representatives will be assigned stations in the Student Center where local students can obtain information about admission requirements, financial aids, and major program assistance. Brochures will be available from all colleges.

Visitation Day will be free and open to all students, their parents and members of the MSAC faculty. Those who want more information may call 598-2811, Ext. 261.

Seminars for medical professionals

"Drug Interactions and Adverse Reactions" is the theme of two seminars for medical professionals on Oct. 14 and 28 at Foothill Presbyterian Hospital, Glendora, both at 6:30 p.m.

The seminars are the first two in a series of 10 to be held on a rotating basis at five valley hospitals under the joint sponsorship of the Inter-Hospital Council for Continuing Education and the Department of Continuing Education in the Health Sciences at UCLA Extension.

In addition to the Glendora hospital, participants include Glendora Community Hospital, Queen of the Valley Hospital in West Covina, Covina Inter-Community Hospital, and San Dimas Community Hospital.

Inland club holds ski swap

The Inland Ski Club will hold its annual swap of equipment on Oct. 24 in the parking lot of Upland Square, San Antonio Avenue and Foothill Boulevard, Upland.

The sale is open to the public from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

All skiers are invited to bring their used equipment and sell it at the swap meet.

Travel film presented

"Magnificent Austria," a travel film, will be presented the Pomona Forum audience by John Roberts Monday in the Education Center auditorium.

A limited number of seats will be available to the public for a small admission fee. This is a Pomona Adult School program.

In his film, Roberts takes viewers to Vienna, Burgenland, Styria, Carinthia, Lower Austria, Upper Austria, Salzburg, the Tirol and Voralberg.

He shows the Vienna Woods, the Vienna Boy's Choir, strolling gypsy musicians, lakes, castles, festivals, houses, ski and snow scenes, the Alps, villages and resorts.

Roberts has fulfilled many film assignments for newscaster Lowell Thomas.

Flea market planned

The Bonita Band Boosters will hold a "flea market" Friday and Saturday at the Bonita High School parking lot.

Thirty spaces will be rented, with proceeds to help support the high school's music program.

For more information, persons may contact Millie Schaffer, 599-5440, or Pat Long, 599-2484.

Horse show slated

The North San Gabriel Council of 4-H Clubs will hold its Third Annual Benefit Horse Show Oct. 31 on Ridge Riders Field in West Covina.

The show will begin at 8:30 a.m.

First-place winners will receive silver awards. Ribbons will be presented all second- through eighth-place winners.

The public is invited. Admission is free.

Additional information may be obtained by calling Phyllis Pepper at (213) 443-5759.

FBI special agent speaks

Special Agent Joseph A. Krahling of the Los Angeles office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) will speak at a luncheon meeting in Pomona Tuesday.

His subject will be "FBI Investigations in Housing Frauds."

The luncheon, to be sponsored by the affiliate division of the Pomona Valley Board of Realtors, will be held at noon at the Mission Family Restaurant. Cost is $3.50 per person. Reservations will be accepted through Friday.

Krahling, a native of Maryland, has been with the FBI since 1962. He was assigned to offices in Miami, Fla., and Cleveland, Ohio, before coming to Los Angeles in 1967.

Flag disposal program

Pomona Elks Lodge 789 will conduct its annual American Flag disposal program Oct. 23, at 10:30 a.m.

The ceremony will be held on the lot behind the lodge at 1471 W. Holt Ave.

Jack Gebel, past exalted ruler and chairman of the lodge Americanism committee, said the public is invited to the program which will include appearances by the Al Malaikah Shrine Temple Legion of Honor Corps of Los Angeles, an ROTC unit from Chino, a youth band from West Los Angeles, members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars (VFW), civic dignitaries and the Pomona Fire Department honor guard.

Gebel said those with used, worn or torn American flags to be disposed of may call the lodge at 629-1092 and members will pick up the flags. If owners desire, they may deliver the old flags to the lodge.

Proper military disposal of the old flags is the purpose of the ceremony, Gebel said.

Magic Mountain trip planned

The La Verne Parks and Recreation Department will sponsor a trip to Magic Mountain on Saturday. Busses will leave at 9:30 a.m. and return at 5:30 p.m. The prices are adults, $7.50 and children, $6.50. The fee includes transportation and the cost of all the rides and attractions inside Magic Mountain.

Reservations are being accepted at the La Verne Parks and Recreation Department. All reservations must be made and fees paid prior to the trip. For further information, persons may call 593-4571.

Pro-life action plan

A pro-life action plan will be explained at a public meeting Oct. 27, at 7:30 p.m. at Our Lady of Lourdes Catholic Church in Montclair.

The meeting, which has the endorsement of the Pomona Valley-West End Right to Life League, is being held by the 35th Congressional District Action Committee to provide educational materials on political candidates.

The committee's purpose is to help voters understand how they may relate their feelings, as a group, to lawmakers. It will deal with social justice issues including housing and labor laws but will first concentrate on gaining grassroots support for the Human Life Amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

Robert Reilly of the California Pro Life Council will speak at the meeting, along with a Los Angeles attorney who will discuss legal aspects of abortion and the Human Life Amendment.

League officers said the committee has the support of West End Catholic churches, but that the committee is non-denominational.

Homicide symposium scheduled

A national symposium on homicide is scheduled Oct. 26 to 30 in San Francisco conducted by the California District Attorneys Association.

Topics will include the law, the death penalty, psychiatric and psychological evidence, autopsies and various types of murders. One aspect of the seminar will be the press and the effect of coverage of homicide cases. Experts in various fields related to the investigation and prosecution of murder cases will speak at the five-day session.

Bus tour to Rose Hills

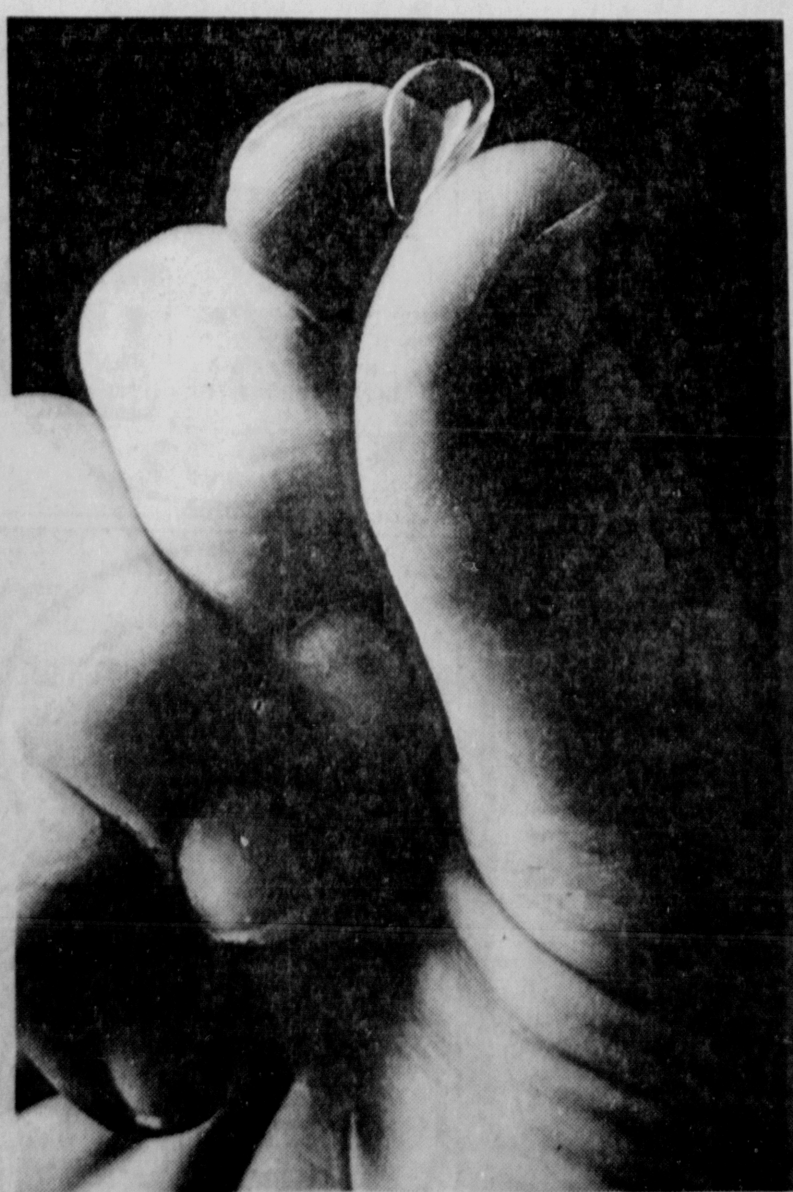
The La Verne Recreation Department will conduct a bus tour for senior citizens to Rose Hills Memorial Gardens in Whittier on Oct. 26.

The bus will leave at 9:15 a.m. and return at 11:15 a.m. Pick up points are at the main building at Hillcrest East and Hillcrest West and the minipark at the corner of Third and D streets.

Cost for the trip is 50 cents per person. For additional information, persons may call the recreation department at 593-4571.

MONTGOMERY WARD | VISIT THE OPTICAL DEPARTMENT

There's more to soft contacts than meets the eye.



You can tell just by looking at a soft contact lens that it is designed to be comfortable on the delicate surface of the eye. It's flexible and soft, just as its name implies.

But the difference between regular contacts and soft contact lenses goes even deeper than that. Soft contacts actually absorb fluid to become even softer and more comfortable while you're wearing them.

Chances are the Optical Department at Wards can fit you with a pair of soft contacts. Wards has the latest in fitting equipment and contact lenses including bifocal contacts.

So, if you're thinking about contacts, think about the Optical Department at Montgomery Ward.

Put your face in our hands.

Friends of OIA to host Anderson

Rep. Glenn M. Anderson, chairman of the House Subcommittee on Aviation and the Committee on Public Works and Transportation, will speak at the Thursday meeting of the Friends of Ontario International Airport.

The meeting will be held at 4 p.m. in the conference room of Ontario International Airport.

Rep. Jim Lloyd, D-35th Dist., a member of the House armed forces committee and the House science and technology committee, will also speak.

All the aviation bills which are acted upon by the House of Representatives pass through Congressman Anderson's sub-committee. Such bills as the 1976 Airport Development Aid Program which provides funding for the growth of OIA are passed under the guidance of Anderson.

The meeting is open to the public.

Thieves do early Christmas shopping

Some burglars have done their Christmas shopping early — at the expense of local needy children.

During the past several weeks, thieves have forced entry three times into the Santa Claus, Inc., workshop on the Pomona Mall and stole numerous toys being prepared for distribution to needy children next Christmas.

The stolen items include 10 bicycles, 10 sets of toy race cars, 10 sets of electric rail car sets and a box of dolls.

During one entry, burglars scattered toys throughout the building and destroyed numerous doll patterns.

Used toys are donated to the workshop during the year and then recycled for Christmas distribution. Some 1,500 children were provided toys last year.

"It's a shame that some deserving children will be without toys because of the actions of a few," said Ula Smith, workshop supervisor.

Arnold

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Funeral services have been held for Lucille Arnold, the mother-in-law of Mayor Tom Bradley.

Mrs. Arnold, 93, died Friday at California Hospital. Private services were held Tuesday with interment at Evergreen Cemetery in East Los Angeles.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A Post Cereals offer of sports equipment for boxtops has drawn a broadside from Consumers Union, which plans to petition state school officials Tuesday to outlaw the giveaway on elementary campuses.

"Programs such as these convert thousands of young and impressionable school children into company salespeople whose commission is teacher and peer approval," the petition contends. "It is unconscionable for education resources and classroom time to be diverted to profit motives of private enterprise."

A company official, reached at the White Plains, N.Y., headquarters of General Foods, Post's parent company, declined to comment until the petition ould be examined.

The offer, as it appears on cereal packages, tells children to take the boxtops to their school. If the school is participating in the program, the boxtops can be exchanged for baseball gloves, balls, gym sets and other athletic equipment for the school.

Sally Williams, executive director of the Committee on Children's Television, says:

"We figured that if, as one package suggests, 750 children each provided nine boxtops, the cereal will cost about $7,000," Mrs. Williams said. "Sporting goods wholesalers tell us that the promised balls, bats and gloves for a baseball team can be purchased for $200."

CLEVELAND (AP) — A Maryland firm will use a 20foot model of the 1,000-foot Great Lakes bulk carriers to test bow resistance to ice in a project aimed at opening northern waterways to year-round shipping.

The Commerce Department's Maritime Administration and seven lakes shipping firms will finance the $230,000 project jointly, Robert J. Blackwell, the department's maritime affairs secretary and head of the administration, said Monday.

Blackwell said $50,000 of its cost will be provided by a consortium headed by Pickands Mather & Co. of Cleveland. The administration will cover the rest.

Political briefs

FOR THEIR OUTSTANDING SERVICE and contributions to the 94th Congress, 10 California Congressmen have received commendations in "California in Congress, 1976," the 18th annual report of the California Congressional Recognition Program.

Those honored are Rep. Rousselot, R-26th Dist.; Rep. Phillip Burton, D-6th Dist.; Rep. James Corman, D-21st Dist.; Rep. Mark Hannaford, D-34th Dist.; Rep. William Ketchum, R-18th Dist.; Rep. Robert Lagomarsino, R-19th Dist.; Rep. George Miller, D-7th Dist.; Rep. Norman Mineta, D-13th Dist.; Rep. Henry Waxman, D-24th Dist.; and Rep. Charles Wiggins, R-39th Dist.

Jack L. Stark, president of Claremont Men's College, wrote the introduction to the report. Besides listing accomplishments of all 43 California Congressmen, the 113-page report contains maps of California's Congressional Districts as reapportioned in 1973.

TED SNYDER, Democratic candidate in the 33rd Congressional District, has named Sarah Lapple of Whittier as Democratic Presidential Elector for the district.

This means that if Jimmy Carter wins the November election, Mrs. Lapple will cast one of California's 45 electoral votes.

Mrs. Lapple was named Democrat of the Year by the County Committee in the 66th Assembly District in 1974. She is a charter member of the Mark Twain Democratic Club and has served two terms as president and two as vice president.

She is a sales secretary for an insurance company and a 25-year Whittier resident.

REP. JIM LLOYD, D-35th Dist., has volunteered to fully disclose his personal financial statement every year he continues in public office.

This has been Lloyd's practice in the past.

He has volunteered to disclose his income tax returns for every year he has served in public office, both as a Congressman and a Covina councilman.

Lloyd made statements to this effect at an Upland forum, sponsored by the American Association of University Women.

Lloyd's opponent in Nov. 2 elections is Covina businessman Louis Brutocao.

U.S. Senatorial candidate S.I. (SAM) HAYAKAWA, speaking in Santa Barbara, said "common sense is the most potent, but least used, anti-crime weapon we have."

He said the chance of an American being murdered, robbed or raped in 1970 was twice as great as in 1960.

"This increase in major crime is absolutely unacceptable," Hayakawa said. "Common sense tells us that punishment for serious crimes must be certain and swift."

Anti-smog legislation by Assemblyman BILL McVITTIE, D-65th Dist., has been signed into law by Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr.

The measure permits Air Pollution Control districts to require the annual renewal of permits by the APCD officer before building, erecting, altering, replacing or operating machinery or equipment which may cause emission of air contaminants.

"By making permits subject to renewal, an APCD can more closely monitor potential violators and revoke or suspend the permits of polluters," McVittie said.

McVittie was chairman of the San Bernardino County APCD hearing board prior to his 1974 election to the Assembly.

Legislation sponsored by REP. JIM LLOYD, D-35th Dist., to authorize a study on the creation of a Sheep Mountain Wilderness in Angeles and San Bernardino national forests has been passed by the Senate and now is on President Ford's desk.

Former newsman FRANCISCO MORENO has been appointed area coordinator for the California Carter/Mondale campaign in the Pasadena/San Gabriel Valley area.

His region includes Claremont, Pomona and the entire northeast portion of Los Angeles County.

MELVIN BELCHER

Poly names engineering assoc. dean

Melvin B. Belcher, professor of electrical and electronics engineering, has been appointed associate dean of Cal Poly Pomona School of Engineering.

The school is made up of eight departments: aerospace engineering, chemical and materials engineering, civil engineering, electrical and electronics engineering, engineering services, engineering technology, industrial engineering and mechanical engineering.

Belcher joined the Cal Poly faculty in 1958. In addition to his teaching responsibilities he has served as acting associate dean of engineering, 1973-74, and articulation coordinator for academic affairs.

Belcher earned his bachelor of science at the University of California, Berkeley, and his master of science at the University of Southern California.

Probe begins on treatment of autistic

LAURA SCHREIBMAN

Large-scale research into the treatment of autistic children will be commenced this year by Claremont Men's College psychologist Laura Schreibman and her research partner, Robert Koegel of UC Santa Barbara.

The team has received a $17,548 grant from the National Institute of Mental Health to fund the first year of the project, which Miss Schreibman says will take approximately four years to complete.

The team will research and compare two types of behavior modification treatment of autistic children. One is "parent-training," where the parents will be taught how to work with their children and the children receive no in-clinic treatment; the other is clinic treatment only, where children are treated by trained therapists.

From this comparison the psychologists will obtain more information on each approach, considering which has the most impact on the child and the effects of the two treatments on parents and family. They hope to eventually build a complete new program for the treatment of autistic children, encompassing the strong points of each approach.

Miss Schreibman said the grant will be resubmitted as a renewal grant in November, and they are hopeful that they will be provided with funds to complete the project. She has been working with autistic children for ten years, and has written numerous articles on childhood psychopathology. Koegel is with the Social Process Research Institute at UC Santa Barbara. The two have collaborated on autism research for several years.

On campus

The Sunday Arabian horse shows at CAL POLY POMONA are beginning their 51st season. Shows are scheduled at 2 p.m. each Sunday in the W.K. Arabian Horse Center on the campus.

Riders parade in the costumes of the desert horsemen of Arabia, the original breeder of the Cal Poly line of horses which bear their country's name.

Tezadi, a trick-performing horse will salute, bow, rock a cradle, push a buggy and open a cash register during each show.

Other acts include jumping, trail and stock events, and driving.

Admission to the show is 25 cents for children, 75 cents for senior citizens and $1.25 for general admission.

The shows have been performed in the area since the early 1920's when W.K. Kellogg started the Arabian line in the Pomona Valley.

The 1976-77 season runs through Nov. 28 and again from Jan. 9 through May 29.

The biochemistry of mental illness will be the topic of a PITZER COLLEGE convocation Oct. 14 at 11 a.m. in Avery Auditorium on the Pitzer campus. The event is free and open to the public.

Speaking will be Steven Matthysse of the Harvard Medical School and former member of the Pitzer faculty.

A graduate of Yale University, Matthysse received his Ph.D. from Harvard University. Author and co-author of numerous publications in his field, he also has done extensive research in schizophrenia and is currently research director for a schizophrenia research program in Lexington, Mass.

The Phi Beta Kappa Visiting Scholar Program will bring author Kenneth Lynn to SCRIPPS COLLEGE for a two-day visit.

A public lecture scheduled in Scripps' Humanities Auditorium on Monday at 8 p.m., is part of Lynn's itinerary.

His topic, "The Patriots and Loyalists of the American Revolution," will examine the extent to which family life was influential in separating individuals politically.

Under the Visiting Scholar Program established scholars take full part in the academic life of participating institutions. This allows undergraduates and faculty to enjoy both formal and informal encounters with specialists in various fields.

Lynn, professor of history at Johns Hopkins University, is considered a specialist in American literary and intellectual history.

Pictures of solar flares, the most titanic explosions that can occur in our solar system, will be shown and discussed in an illustrated lecture at CITRUS COLLEGE Auditorium at 7:30 p.m. on Oct. 15. The program is free and open to the public.

Harold Zirin of Cal Tech, distinguished solar astronomer and founder and director of Big Bear Solar Observatory, will conduct the program which will include both movies and slides of the sun.

Zirin, in his lecture entitled "Solar Activity and Interplanetary Storms," will discuss the events which will take place on the sun in the next few years when the sunspot cycle reaches the next maximum.

For additional information about the free program, call 599-8339.

Assemblyman Bill McVittie, D-65th Dist., announced today that applications are now being taken for the ASSEMBLY FELLOWSHIP PROGRAM for 1977-78. The fellowship begins Aug. 2, 1977 and ends June 30, 1978. Fellows receive a salary of $764 monthly.

The fellowship program, now in its 19th year, provides an 11-month working education in the assembly for recent college graduates with bachelors or advanced degrees in all fields of study.

The 10 Fellows chosen will be assigned to staff positions with members of the assembly for five months followed by six month placements with assembly committees. The Fellows will research legislation, assist in committee business, work in both the district and capitol offices on specific projects assigned by members or staff consultants.

Applications may be obtained by writing to the California Assembly Fellowship Program, c/o Political Science Department, University of California at Riverside, Calif., 92502.

Alvin H. Thompson, director of CAL POLY POMONA'S teacher preparation center has announced openings in the center's two new specialist programs: bilingual/cross-cultural specialist and the early childhood education specialist. Graduate credit is given in both specialist programs. Program credit can also be applied toward a master of arts degree in education.

The bilingual/cross cultural specialist is open to individuals who hold a valid teaching credential, are bilingual and biliteral. Financial aid is available to qualified applicants.

The early childhood education specialist is open to individuals who hold a valid teaching credential and who preferably have an early childhood or elementary education background.

Both specialist programs are approved by the California Commission for Teacher Preparation and Licensing. For more information phone 598-4753.

Stuart T. K. Ho, president of Capital Investment, Inc., Honolulu, has been elected to the board of trustees of CLAREMONT MEN'S COLLEGE. Ho is a 1957 alumnus of the college.

Born in the Philippine Islands in 1935, Ho lived in Honolulu where he received his elementary education before attending college at Claremont. Upon receiving the J.D. from the University of Michigan School of Law, he became Deputy Corporation Counsel, City and County of Honolulu.

In 1966, he was elected to the Hawaii House of Representatives, serving as majority floor leader from 1968-70. Also in 1968 he was a delegate to the Hawaii State Constitutional Convention.

The Union Pacific Foundation has made grants totaling $15,500 to colleges in Claremont.

A $6,000 grant went to the libraries of THE CLAREMONT COLLEGES. It will finance the first steps of a five-year project that will integrate about 700,000 library records into a national computer library network.

Other grants in Claremont were $7,000 to POMONA COLLEGE, $1,500 to HARVEY MUDD COLLEGE and $1,000 To PITZER COLLEGE.

The foundation presented a total of $137,250 to various Southern California institutions. It makes annual grants in the 13 states in which Union Pacific Railroad operates.

Two CLAREMONT UNIVERSITY CENTER administrative officers have been promoted in a reorganization of the center.

John F. Albrecht retains his title of associate provost and also becomes associate vice president for business. Kimble M. Williams, who has been director of personnel, becomes assistant vice president for personnel.

The university center is the central coordinating institution of the six Claremont Colleges.

Albrecht came to the Claremont Colleges in January of 1967 as joint campus plans officer after working 10 years as an architect. Claremont Graduate School awarded him a master's degree in management in 1974, and he is working toward a Ph.D.

Williams came to the colleges in June of 1973 as director of personnel from Yale University, where he had the same title. Under his direction the personnel department has revised the staff retirement plan, overhauled the long-term disability plan, established a wage and salary plan, produced a staff handbook, revised staff grievance procedures, expanded the colleges' health plan, and expanded benefits for part-time employees.

NORMAN COUSINS

University Club hosts N. Cousins

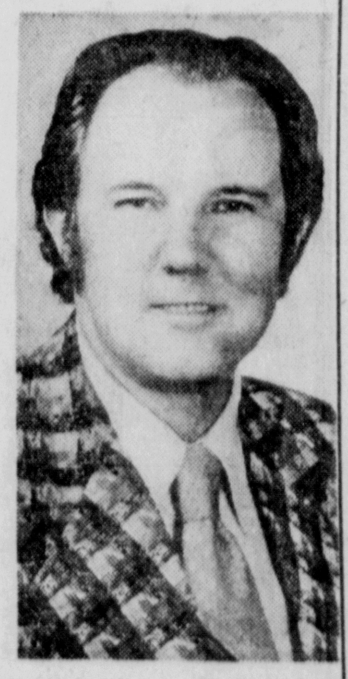
Norman Cousins, editor of Saturday Review, will address members of the University Club of Claremont at a breakfast, Oct. 23 at the La Verne Church of the Brethren.

His subject will be "The American Character and Mentality — Where Now?"

The meeting is open to the public but reservations are necessary. They will be accepted until Tuesday by mailing check to Franklin Ulf, Jr., PO Box 822, Claremont, Calif. 91711 for $2.75 per person. Breakfast serving will begin in fellowship hall at 9 a.m.

Cousins has been editor of Saturday Review, except for a two-year interval, since 1942. He had served as a New York Evening Post as literary editor, and then managing editor of Current History, founded by the New York Times.

Saturday Review is a biweekly magazine with headquarters in New York City. It has a present circulation of 500,000. Cousins is the recipient of 23 civic awards and 31 honorary college and university degrees, including the University of Southern California Award for Excellence in Journalism and the Eleanor Roosevelt Peace Award. He is author of 13 books on World Affairs and Human Problems.



DON GRANT

Glendoran named dean at APC

Don Grant of Glendora has been named dean of Azusa Pacific College, effective immediately.

As dean of the college, Grant will serve as chief academic officer of the institution and be responsible for the overall academic quality, programs and academic development of the college, according to President Paul E. Sago.

Grant has been with Azusa Pacific College since 1956. He served as dean of instruction from 1971 to 1976 and as chairman of the division of fine arts from 1956 to 1971.

He received his bachelor of arts degree from Azusa Pacific College, a master of arts degree from Claremont Graduate School and a doctorate in education from USC.

Special permit

According to the National Automobile Club, a drive across the United States in 1904 required a special permit from the driver's state.

Sticking with family tradition

Cucamongan named president

Continuing a family tradition started generations ago, David R. Ewart of Cucamonga has been named president of the Ewart's corporation.

In 1908 David J. Ewart and his son, James D., opened a store for men and boys at 372 W. Second St., Pomona. Control later went to the founder's grandsons, Bill and Robert.

David R. Ewart, a fourth-generation namesake, has been with the firm since 1967. Prior to being named president he was manager of Ewart's store in the Central City Mall in San Bernardino.

He and his wife, Susan, and their children, David Jr. and Diane, live at 7503 Alta Cuesta in Cucamonga.

His father, retiring president Robert X. Ewart, still will be actively connected with the business and will serve as board chairman.

The original store opened July 11, 1908 with $25,000 in merchandise. Now the firm operates stores in Pomona, Riverside and San Bernardino.

Repeating one of his great-grandfather's principles, young David R. Ewart stressed, "honesty, quality merchandise and fair prices are what keep a store in business."

They may be old fashioned virtues, he said, but for more than 68 years they have been symbolic of what the name Ewart's stands for.

Akron in 1933

Author claims airship crash 'not crew error'

WASHINGTON (AP) – History's worst dirigible disaster, the 1933 crash of the Akron, was caused by structural failure rather than crew error, according to a new, privately published book by Thom Hook, a federal aviation official who looked into the incident on his own time.

The 785-foot-long Akron crashed into the ocean off Barnegat, N.J., during a storm on April 4, 1933, killing 73 of the 76 men aboard.

After a court of inquiry, the Navy concluded that the crew thought the dirigible was considerably higher than its actual altitude and, battling the storm, flew the craft into the water.

But Hook, in his book "Sky Ship: The Akron Era," contends that the actual cause of the crash was failure of the upper vertical fin at the rear of the Akron. Hook is an employe of the Federal Aviation Administration, but his study was not officially sanctioned.

The same fin on the Akron's sister ship, the Macon, failed 21 months later and caused that airship to crash off Point Sur, Calif.

These fins were weak and collapsed because of the force of the wind, Hook contends. The structures had been modified when the two airships were built and the fins, 11 feet thick and 41 feet high, had been increased in height and were less securely attached than originally planned.

Hook, an information specialist with the FAA, theorizes that the Akron disaster was caused when the upper fin collapsed and ruptured two gas cells in the stern of the ship, allowing helium to escape and causing the Akron to drop into the sea.

To support his conclusion, the author cites testimony from two survivors who reported hearing the sounds of parting girders in the fin area before the crash, and some loss of control, indicating damage to steering cables.

In his book, published by Airshow Publishers in Annapolis, Md., Hook also cites previous travelers on the airship, including Navy photographer George A. Carroll and journalist Ernie Pyle, who both reported vibrations and creaking of the fins on earlier Akron flights.

Capt. Anton Heinen, a German Zeppelin expert hired to train U.S. Navy airmen, speculated on the possibility of a fin collapse before the crashes took place, Hook writes.

And he notes that during the construction of the Akron and Macon there was considerable publicity given to allegations of a mechanic and a construction supervisor that the materials were defective and that there were hundreds of loose rivets.

However, the Navy got both men later to sign statements that they were not qualified to pass judgment because they were not engineers.

Finally, Hook notes that the crash of the Akron took place after 1,695.8 hours of flying and that of the Macon occurred after 1,798.2 hours. Any technical failure, Hook states, "would surface most likely within a similar total of hours"

Winnie-the-Pooh: 50 and rolling in clover

By MICHAEL WEST
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — Winnie-the-Pooh will be 50 years old on Thursday, in good shape and rolling in money.

But Christopher Robin says he's not happy with the way things turned out for his teddy bear.

The famous bear made his literary debut on Oct. 14, 1926, when British author A.A. Milne's book "Winnie-the-Pooh" was first published.

With illustrations by Ernest Shepard, it told of the imaginary adventures of Milne's 5-yearold son, Christopher Robin, and his toys at Cotchford Farm, Milne's home in a Surrey wood about 30 miles southwest of London.

"Now We are Six," a collection of poems, followed in 1927, and "House at Pooh Corner" appeared in 1928.

Christopher Robin's other toys — Pigwet, Tigger, Kanga and Eeyore the donkey — kept their innocence while the books were becoming childhood classics. But Winnie-the-Pooh, the teddy bear, crossed the Atlantic, met Walt Disney and has been coining money ever since.

Walt Disney Productions bought the film and merchandising rights to Pooh 10 years ago. Today, the little stuffed bear promotes a wide variety of merchandise ranging from tee shirts to electronic calculators.

Disney farmed out the American merchandising rights to Sears Roebuck.

"When you consider that the Sears Roebuck concession alone is worth between $2 million and $6 million a year to us, you will see that Winnie-the-Pooh is very big worldwide," said Keith Bales of Disney's London office.

But Christopher Robin Milne, who now runs a bookshop in Dartmouth, on the southwest coast, told a London newspaper:

"I don't identify with many of the things which are being marketed under the name of Pooh as anything to do with anything I ever owned or felt any fondness for.

"Frankly, the exploitation of the books makes me sick. It's nothing to do with any of the Milnes. It's a caricature.

"To me, Pooh is a toy I had as a child. When he first appeared in print, the books were true to my idea of him and that was fine. But he has now gone well beyond that and become a cult."

Royalties from the Pooh books and Milne's other writings still average 100,000 pounds a year, or about $165,000 at current exchange rates. The author died in 1956, his widow in 1971, and the income is now shared by their son, London's Garrick Club for theatrical people, the Westminster School which A.A. Milne attended, and the Royal Literary Fund, a charity which helped James Joyce, Joseph Conrad and other writers.

Pooh's birthday will be celebrated Thursday by his British publisher, Methuen and Co. Ltd.

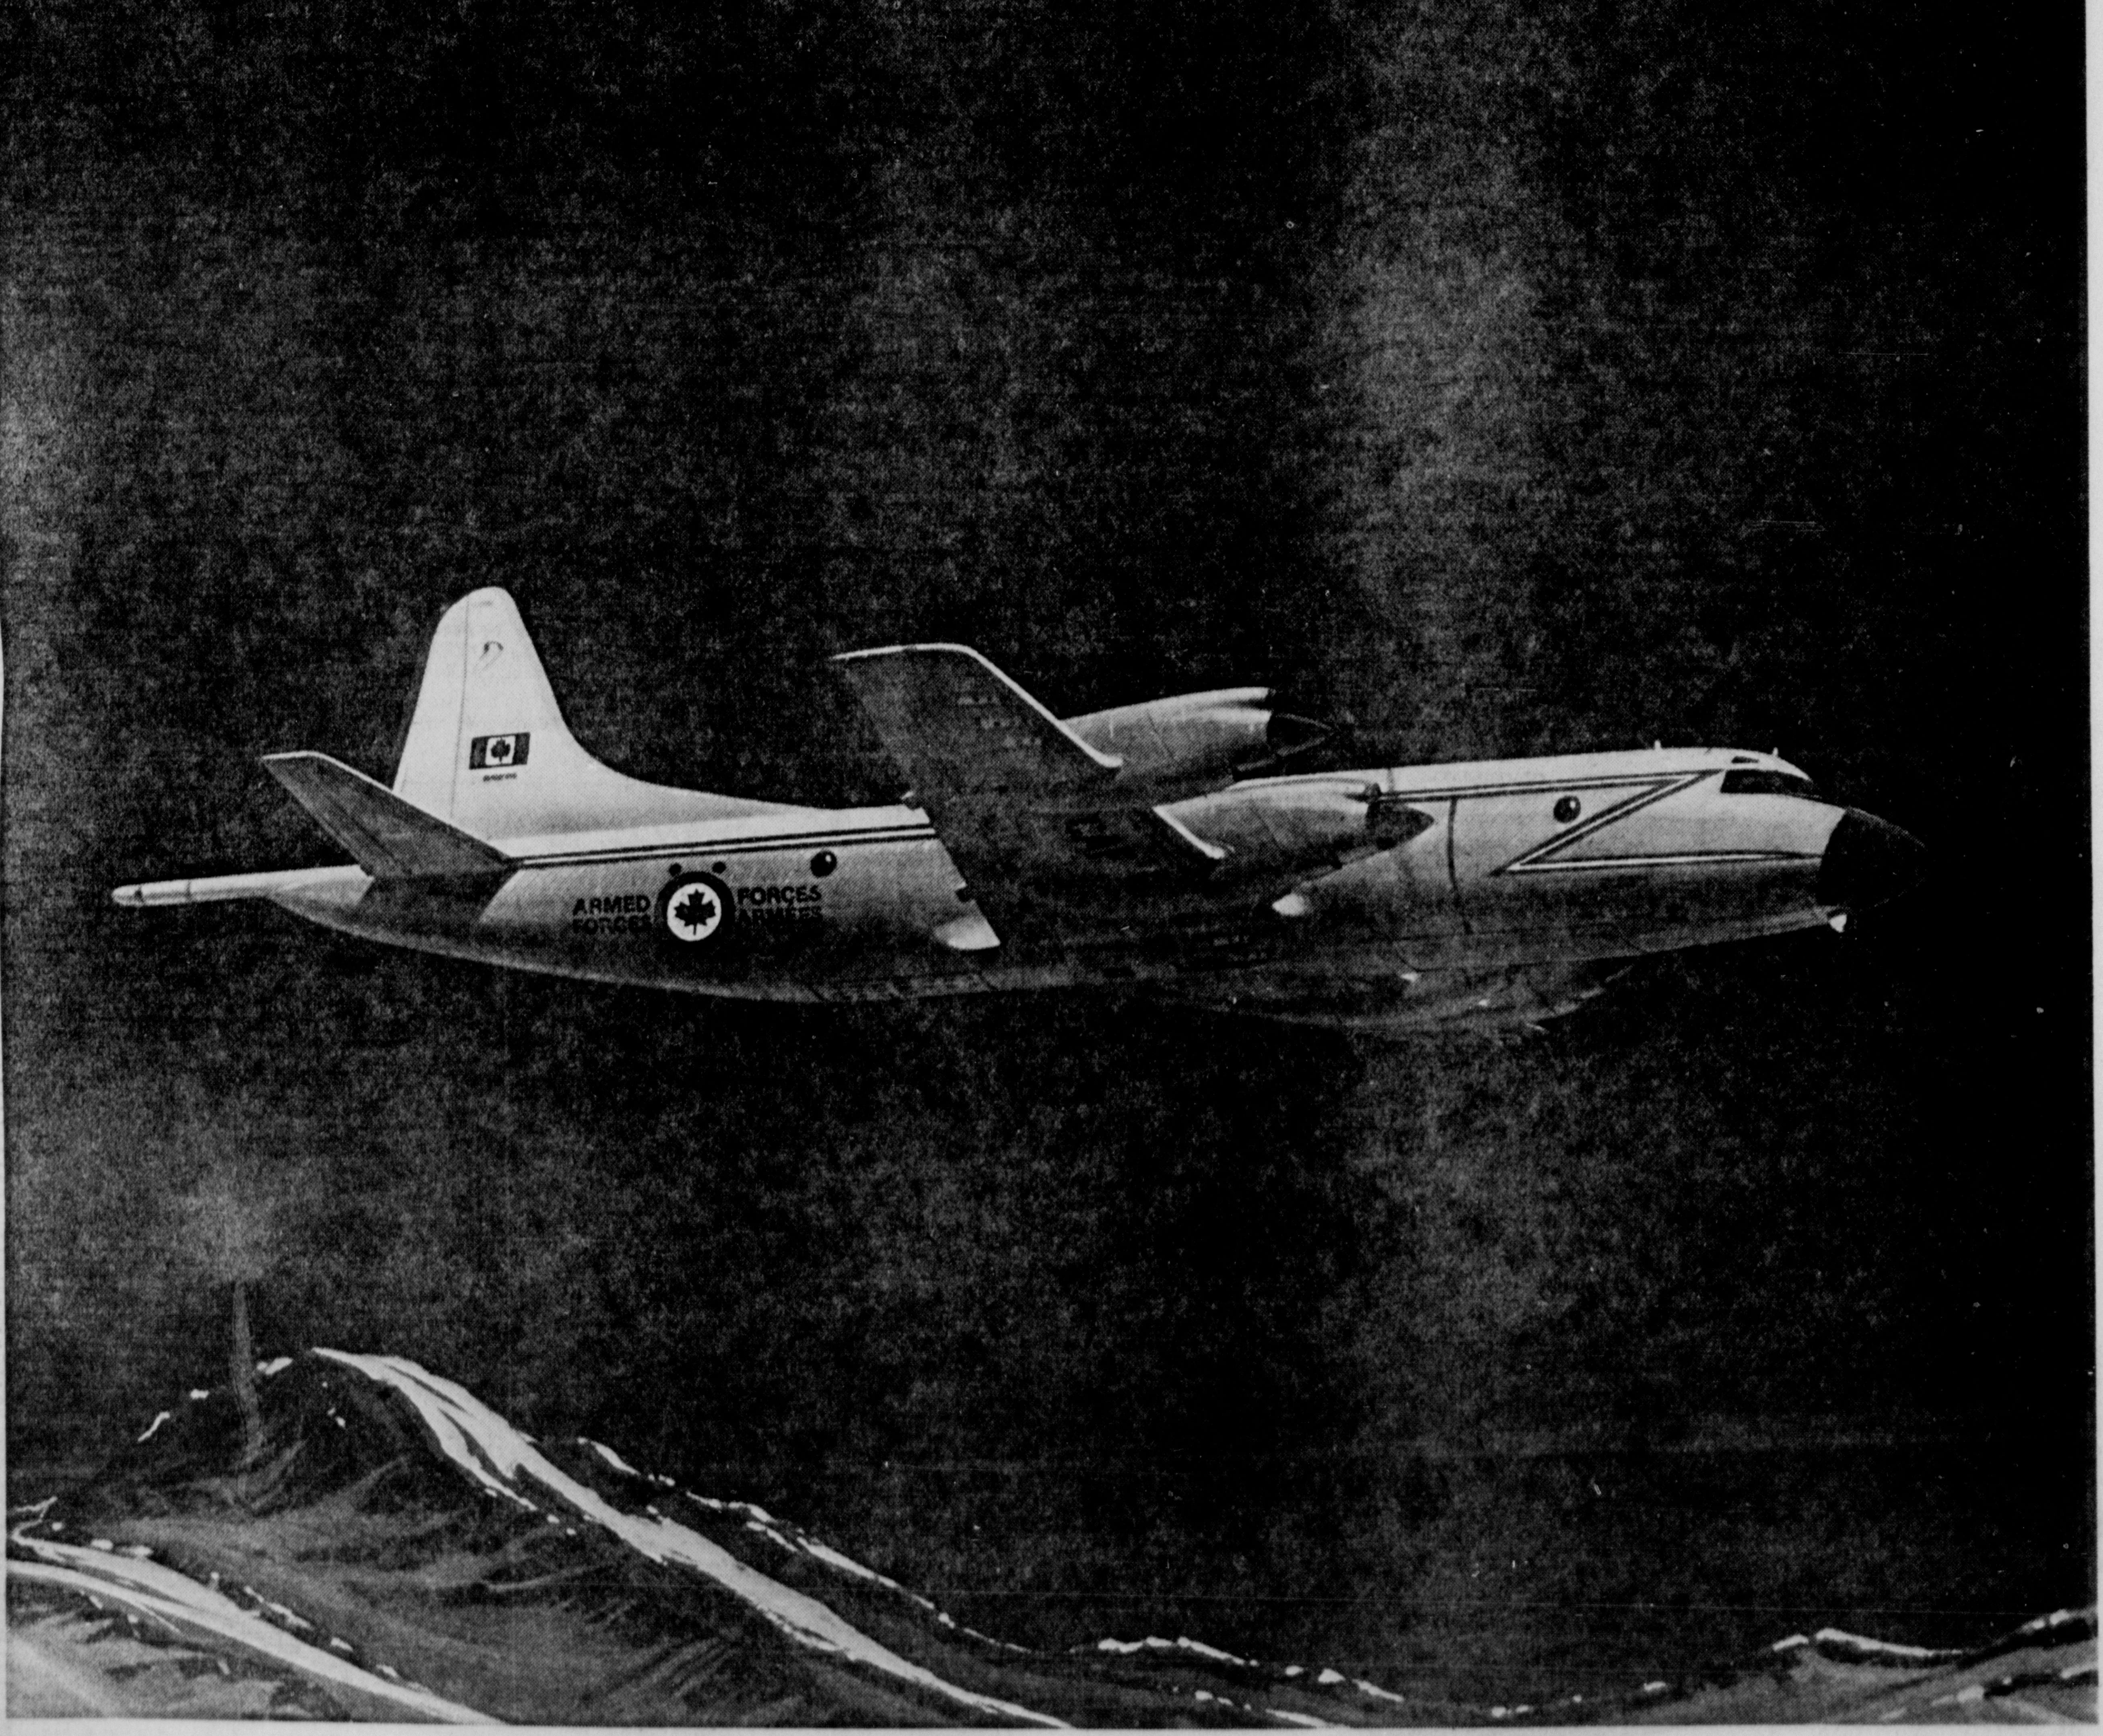
Coming to Canada: the world's most advanced maritime patrol plane.



To meet its NATO commitments, Canada has chosen Lockheed to build the world's most advanced maritime patrol and antisubmarine plane.

Called Aurora, its electronic, infrared and acoustic equipment will give it the keenest "eyes" and "ears" of any patrol plane. It also will carry the most advanced communications equipment of any patrol plane. And its photographic equipment and radar will give it unique capability for reconnaissance, search and rescue.

Aurora, a major derivative of the P-3 Orion, is the latest in a long line of maritime patrol planes that have been rolling off Lockheed production lines continuously for several decades.

The most advanced maritime patrol plane.

One of the technological achievements of the 55,000 workers at Lockheed.

Phillips Ranch development study slated

Special consultant services for review of the proposed $100 million housing subdivision of the old Phillips Ranch property in Pomona have been approved by the Pomona City Council.

The council voted unanimously to contract with the firm of POD Inc. Monday night for professional review of the Specific Area Plan to be presented to the city by Westmor Development Co.

Tentative proposal for the 950-acre site would include the construction of about 1,500 homes initially, with up to 1,000 additional homes to be constructed in the future.

City Planner Sanford Sorenson told the council that POD Inc. could also assist the city in developing suitable development standards for the area.

Comments from council members Monday indicate that one of the development standards they will pursue is increasing the quality of the homes proposed for the area.

Georgia Grove reiterated her belief that homes for the site should cost no less than $55,000 and Councilman Adrian Wright said that homes should sell for $70,000 or $80,000.

Westmor Development Co. has proposed selling prices starting at $43,000.

The Phillips ranch site is located on both sides of Dudley Street between the Pomona Freeway and Corona Expressway. The site extends westward to the city line and takes in what is now the Claude Osteen Motor Bike Park.

In other business Monday, the council denied a citizen's request for installation of stop signs on Towne Avenue at Alvarado Street.

Denial was made following a staff report indicating that traffic counts and the accident-history of the intersection do not justify a stop sign under accepted traffic standards.

Despite the report, Wright voted to place the stop signs at the location.

Frances C. Chandler, 565 E. Alvarado St., had requested the stop sign.

A $42,000 contract for street improvements on La Verne Avenue and Fulton Road was awarded by the council to the firm of United Asphalt Co. Inc. of Paramount, which was the low bidder on the project.

Commercial use

Horse ban in San Dimas set

By BOB SWETNAM
PB Staff Writer

There will be no commercial horse facilities allowed in a certain northwestern neighborhood of San Dimas, at least not for a while.

By unanimous vote, the San Dimas City Council denied a zone change request by horse property owners Tuesday night that would have paved the way for commercial uses of property now zoned exclusively for residential use.

The decision was not without controversy, however.

A lengthy public debate on the issue showed the community was deeply divided over the uses that should be allowed on horse property.

Bonnie Sanders, representing Joe Sfameni who originally requested the zone change from the present residential-agricultural to light agricultural, in order to conduct a commercial horse operation in the area, spoke in favor of the change.

"We feel the zone we are asking for is not that different from what is presently there. A majority of our neighbors are in favor of the change," she said.

Councilman Jim Lough, however, expressed concern over whether or not a majority of residents were actually in favor of the change.

"Many of the signatures on the petition we received (for the zone change) are suspect," he said. "I don't think half of them are worth the paper they're printed on."

A resident of the area whose name was on the petition also questioned the validity of some of the signatures.

The resident, Robert House declared, "My name is on the petition and I never signed it. Two of my neighbors claim they never signed it either. I don't like the way this is being done."

But primarily the controversy centered on the agricultural uses that should be allowed in the area.

Cheryl Torres speaking in favor of the change told the Council of her concerns over the future of the area. "I want San Dimas, at least in my area, to remain a rural area," she said.

A number of other residents told of their fear that without the change their property rights might be in jeopardy.

"I don't want to look across from my property some day and see apartments going up," said E. J. Seymore, expressing the sentiments of a number of the proponents for the change.

Opponents of the zone change saw it in a different light, however. To them the issue was the potential commercial uses of the property, which was apparently the reason Sfameni had requested the zone change anyway.

"I don't know why all of these people were not around when we originally zoned the area," said Pansy Spoulos. "I think this was the only way for the gentleman requesting the change to get around a problem he had got himself into," she said.

Other opponents told that they were not opposed to horses and other animals in the area but were fearful of potential "commercial uses" in the area.

The light-agricultural designation would have allowed with a conditional use permit such activities as horse boarding and breeding, chicken ranches, aviaries and cemeteries.

Mayor Marvin Ersher reccomended denying the request for the change and instead suggested that the planning commission look into the possibility of re-zoning the area which if amended would protect single-family-agricultural, horse and animal owners' rights to keep their animals for non-commercial use.

Ersher also suggested that the feasability of constructing a public riding facility in the area by studied in order to fulfill a need that was described by horseowners in the area.

Sunday special day

Teacher marks decades of service

Sunday will be a special day for Mrs. Martha M. Dent, a retired Bonita High School teacher now living at Hillcrest Homes in La Verne.

Way back in the 1920s, Mrs. Dent wrote the words for the Bonita High School Alma Mater.

Sunday at 2 p.m. the Bonita High School Band is going over to Hillcrest Homes and present a concert in her honor.

Band director Robin Snyder said band members agree it is a privilege to play for Mrs. Dent and other Hillcrest Homes residents. They're going to play outside for some 90 minutes and all residents are invited.

"They've always supported the band," said Snyder and, he added. "This is a move to merge the senior and the junior citizens of our community."

Bonita High School opened in a vacant store in 1903. In 1904, the high school moved into the second story of the old La Verne Heights Elementary School. In 1905, the district purchased the property where Damien High School now is situated and the school operated there for 50 years.

In 1950 the new school was built on D Street.

In the early 1920s, a man named William Randall was principal of Bonita High School. Mrs. Dent was added to the faculty in 1922 as a vocal and instrumental music teacher and it was during those years that the school added an athletic program.

Chino officer alert following 3-week coma

Gary Cauble, a security officer at the Youth Training School in Chino seriously injured during a recent riot and mass escape, has regained consciousness after being in a coma for nearly three weeks.

Cauble, 30, was struck on the head by a heavy object Sept. 21 by wards freed from their cells after another security officer was overpowered.

The injured officer was taken to San Antonio Community Hospital with skull fractures and facial lacerations. He remained in a coma for three weeks, only slightly responding to feel and touch.

Doctors are now hoping for a full recovery. Cauble is married and has three children.

Thirteen wards escaped during the melee, with 12 recaptured within 24 hours. The San Bernardino County Grand Jury issued indictments charging escape against 11. They are scheduled to go on trial later this month.

Board 'shock wave' hits student paper

By JON MORRIS
PB Staff Writer

A controversial article on birth control in Chino High School's student newspaper elicited "shock waves" from the school board Tuesday night.

Board members severely criticized the article in the Oct. 1 issue of "The Lariat" and indicated they may seek some authority over future stories in the paper.

Several trustees said the article was "in poor taste."

The story, entitled "Truths About the Pill," contained an interview with a student who claimed the "pill" was "about the best birth control method I know of besides vasectomy and getting your tubes tied."

Board member Augustine Tapia referred specifically to the quote and noted the article gave the impression that the pill should be encouraged for use by students.

Tapia called on the board to establish a policy on articles in the paper, "if administrators don't.

"Where do we draw the line on these issues?" he asked. "There are moral overtones here. Is the next issue going to be 'The Truth About Marijuana?'"

Tapia said, "We're here for one reason — to educate kids, not to suggest things to them."

Trustee Paul Peterson charged the article was "in poor taste. I'm not critical of those involved, but in the way this was used, for mass distribution among the high school student body."

Peterson noted that he had not shielded controversial issues from his own children, "but we've been celestial in the way we've presented it."

Kay Moore, former assistant principal at the high school, told the board that students were trying to present "items of relevance to them."

She later said, "We have a problem in that these problems exist on campus. I feel that trying to get the proper information to these kids is vital. Society has changed and the more proper information given to students, the better."

Rhead Lown, advisor to the newspaper, declared that teachers want to inform students on certain facts. "They are ill-informed in terms of some books they read on subjects such as venereal disease, unwed mothers, suicide and alcoholism. "

Peterson noted that "innuendo" in the story was that the student interviewed took the pill and felt it was bad at first, "but it was okay later."

Commenting on a reference by Lown to "passing around copies of Playboy magazine, Peterson said, "If we flaunt suggestive material in front of anyone, then their minds will go that way."

Cal Poly professor scores hit

'No-fault' marriage road map

WRITES POPULAR BOOK

Mrs. Marcia Lasswell of Pomona, counselor and college professor, has written "No-Fault Marriage," a guide for families with problems. The book offers many solutions.

By VONNE ROBERTSON
PB Staff Writer

Just released to the public last week, a book on marriage by a Pomona counselor and Cal Poly professor is already a hit.

The book, "No-Fault Marriage," by Marcia Lasswell of Pomona and writer Norman Lobsebz is based on the professor's years of counseling families and is a guideline to solving many of the problems facing couples in today's changing society patterns.

Before the book, published by Doubleday, was released to virtually every bookstore in the valley, excerpts were printed in four issues of "McCall's" magazine and a part was purchased for the November issue of "Reader's Digest" and the Nov. 14 issue of the Family Weekly section of the Progress Bulletin.

"I'm sure that most of the excellent reactions from reviewers and others who had advanced copies of the book result from the fact that it offers help to couples without attempting to lay the blame for problems on anyone or design a 'perfect marriage'," the author said.

"It's rare that the problems in a marriage are caused by just one partner. Usually, the cause is an interaction between the couple, or a lack of communication."

The book points out that a couple must stop trying to blame the other partner. Instead, look at the situation and then decide what both can do to modify or eliminate it.

"Marriage is not a battle to be won, but a cooperative partnership which undoubtedly will have some problems to be worked out mutually," said the counselor. "It's not a power struggle.

"The book makes no attempt to set up an ideal marriage. After all, if a couple likes how they are living, then they are happy."

While sexual relations may not be a prime cause of problems in a marriage, they are usually affected by other areas of discord, said Mrs. Lasswell.

The women's movement has had a great effect on marriage, the author reports, because women are now offered many more choices of a life style.

"Women have more options and are exercising them. The resulting changes force both partners to make many new adjustments. Any change in habits or living patterns can cause discord," continued Mrs. Lasswell who is a behavorial science professor at the university.

The book is not designed to solve problems for a couple requiring professional counseling, but it should help families to determine if they need outside help or whether they can resolve their differences, the author said.

Mrs. Lasswell calls the last chapter "highly valuable," saying it tells how to analyze a marriage, how to communicate, and how to deal with the problems.

Additionally, the final chapter tells how to seek a counselor if needed, what qualifications to look for, how much time can be expected for counseling to be effective and other helpful information which the general public should know.

The idea for the book came from an interview with Mrs. Lasswell and two of her clients in "Life" magazine a few years ago. People wrote from all over the country trying to obtain counseling by mail.

"Of course, that is impossible," Mrs. Lasswell said.

Russ research threat grows

We concentrate on the rate of Soviet arms buildup and military spending.

The direction of Soviet research should concern us more.

Data now available makes clear the Kremlin is investing heavily in poison gas, germ and radiation warfare. They have an extremely wide-ranging program for developing new chemical, bacteriological and radiation agents, new methods for the effective delivery of these terror weapons and new means of defense against them. The studies include means for assuring their use of these agents would not do damage to their own troops, as did the use of poison gas by the Germans in World War I.

It is now known that the chemical and bacteriological programs have been on a top burner in the USSR for many years — many of the studies having been disguised as ordinary civilian medical research.

This research program includes studies into the relative effectiveness of multiple chemical and bacteriological combinations as compared with single agents.

The Russians appear to have been convinced for some time that a delivery system containing a compound of several deadly chemicals or several deadly bacteriological - biological agents can be many times as effective as agents containing but one powerful chemical or one type of disease germ. Counter agents, defensive clothing and equipment, precautionary practices and treatment are much more difficult.

Even more disturbing is the fact that it may be extremely difficult for the defense in any military operation to quickly determine the combination of agents being used. By the time analysis is complete, the chemical agents may have done their deadly work. Once the defense solves this problem, a new combination of chemicals can be introduced and the disaster repeated.

The bacteriological - biological studies being made by the Russians include diseases which attack humans and those which attack plants and animals. The agents they're working with are capable, as noted above, of inducing one type of disease or another, or a combination of diseases at one shot.

It will be recalled that the Russians experimented with new types of CBR several years back on the battlefields of Yemen. This was hushed up and quickly fogotten.

A second top priority in Soviet military research aims at insuring the invulnerability of their missile systems — development of mobile land-based missiles, improvement in submarine-launched missiles, the development of less-noisy missile launching submarines to make them more difficult to detect and track. Indications are that the Soviet scientists have made rapid progress in these areas.

Not much has been heard of late of Soviet technological advances in space. Much has been made of apparent Soviet failures in systems they've designed to shoot down satellites. But there is now considerable evidence that the current Soviet military space program is well conceived, broad and imaginative enough to lead to breakthroughs in the use of space for military purposes. Though the Soviets have had many disappointments in this area, it is expected here their persistence will lead to some developments which will give us pause.

There's another less dramatic and more pedestrian area of Soviet research which could in the end be of major importance their strong metallurgical program. They're now developing some very high-strength metals and coming up with imaginative methods for the production of alloys and for processing metals. These developments make possible the design of superior weapons.

Stamp inflation

In view of the fact that a first-class stamp now costs 13 cents, it is heartening to report that postal patrons are getting more for their money — in one respect,anyway.

The U.S. Postal Service has evidently decided that if it can't give us better service it will give us bigger stamps. Maybe we're wrong, but stamps do seem to be getting larger and larger.

One recent special-issue 13-center measures no less than one and one-quarter inches by two inches, or half the depth of a standard letter envelope. The subject is Arthur S. Ochs, who was publisher of the New York Times from 1895 to 1936.

Unbiased as we are, we can't think of a more appropriate subject for a jumbo-size stamp than a newspaperman, though some people may wonder why a publisher should rate twice the square-inchage of a president.

Not to mention their consternation when they address an envelope and then discover that part of the information is eclipsed by Mr. Ochs' visage.

Disillusioned with teachers

Dear Editor:

When schools become plants, when school boards become fund disbursing, when administrations become fund raising with quests for grants, etc., when teachers become union collective bargaining groups, when students become products pushed through with barely adequate "grades" then our public education has lost its value.

The Pomona School Board vs. teacher negotiations hassle is symptomatic of the struggle for power, nothing more, that is happening in many public service areas today.

I am one of the many citizens who is disillusioned with teachers — teachers, I repeat — who were once the most venerated, most respected, most dedicated of professional people.

So I agree with Gov. Brown — if I read him correctly — that money for special programs and salaries, or whatever is poured into the system by my taxes, will do nothing to improve real education.

Low priority of students

Dear Editor:

I teach drama and English in the Pomona Unified School District. Twenty four weeks of the school year, five days a week, two to three hours a day I involve high school students in an extracurricular drama production program, in addition to my regular teaching duties. I am for kids and I want to feel the district's support for my program and my kids.

Last December my storage room and all my props and costumes were burned by vandals. One morning recently I arrived at school to find an administrative office in disarray — fire-bombed the previous night. The painters were hard at work on the office, less than 24 hours after the incident. The ashes remain heaped in my storage space. The walls are charred — nine months later. One must wonder about a school district which gives such low priority to the students for whom it supposedly exists.

Ford's son gets his, too

WASHINGTON — President Ford isn't the only member of the family who has accepted small favors from the special interests. During his congressional years, Ford accepted golfing vacations from U.S. Steel and personalized guide books from the Carpenters Union. The giant Thiokol chemical firm also flew his son Jack between Vail, Colo. and Logan, Utah, where Jack was attending Utah State University.

Thiokol, a major government contractor, put its luxury plane at the disposal of corporate executive James Brown, who is a friend of the Ford family. Like the Fords, Brown also vacations at Vail and had a son attending school in Utah.

The White House told us that the plane was making the flights anyway and that young Ford was invited along only on two occasions. His father was the House Republican leader at the time.

Last month, we reported that Ford had golfed at U.S. Steel's Pine Valley, N.J., resort. His expenses for these golfing weekends, we reported, were paid by the company.

This has now been admitted by the White House, after a preliminary press report was put out that corporate executive William Whyte paid the bills out of his personal pocket. The White House has also acknowledged that Ford was the golfing guest of Bethlehem Steel, Aluminum Company of America and Firestone Tire and Rubber.

Now we have learned that the Carpenters Union gave Ford 200 handsome, personalized guides to Congress each year during his last years on Capitol Hill. These sold at $4 each, although the union was able to buy them wholesale for $1.35 apiece.

The annual gift, therefore, added up to hundreds of dollars. The guide book, titled "Know Your Congress," usually carries a simple cover. But the Carpenters Union arranged with the publisher, Dr. Diosdado Yap, to print Ford's picture on the cover.

Similar personalized copies of the guide, it should be noted were also distributed by the union to Speaker Carl Albert, Rep. John Rhodes, R.-Ariz., House Clerk Edmund Henshaw and Sergeant-at-Arms Ken Harding.

We have also learned that Ford was ferried around in a $600,000 Lear jet, owned by Potlatch Forest, Inc., when he was House Republican leader. He was flown from a political speech in Spokane, Wash. to Salt Lake City for another political appearance. The flight occurred while the timber lobby was fighting some big battles in the House.

Ford has said he was unaware who owned the jet. The man who provided it, Potlatch president Benton Cancell, attended the University of Michigan about the same time as Ford.

The House code carries penalties ranging up to expulsion for members who "accept (a) gift of substantial value, directly or indirectly, from any person, organization or corporation having a direct interest in legislation before the Congress."

The President has said that he didn't consider the golfing outings to be substantial gifts.

Footnote: We were unable to get responses from Thiokol about any other trips in the company plane by members of the Ford family. Indeed, the secretary to Thiokol's president slammed the phone in our face when we tried to inquire.

SPY BASES: Fifteen months ago, an angry Turkish government evicted U.S. intelligence forces from over 20 bases, which were producing some of the most valuable intelligence in the history of espionage. The loss was regarded by U.S. officials as catastrophic.

Now the United States has quietly recovered "most" of the intelligence capability lost when the bases were closed, according to sources familiar with the supersecret intelligence operations.

"As long as the Turks merely threatened to close the bases," a senior Pentagon official told us, "they had a viable weapon. By actually closing them down, they forced a nation with great resources to find some alternatives."

Actually, our sources say the bases can never be totally replaced. From Turkey, U.S. intelligence installations could even pick up a pilot in the heart of Russia requesting landing instructions from the control tower.

A listening post at Sinop on the Black Sea was particularly important, because it contained radar devices that could zoom directly on Soviet missile launch sites.

American technology and ingenuity, however, have produced some substitutes. This has been accomplished, according to inside sources, by adjustments at electronic listening posts in West Germany, Iran and on the Greek island of Crete. At least one observation satellite has also been launched.

At the time the bases were closed, intelligence sources claimed they were responsible for about a fourth of the clandestine information gathered about Soviet military activities.

In an effort to spur Congress into approving a $1 billion base pact with Turkey, Ford Administration officials are still mouthing the line that the Turkish bases are "irreplaceable."

Deputy Defense Secretary Robert Ellsworth declared before a Senate committee only last month that the bases are essential for monitoring "Soviet compliance with the ABM treaty and . . . compliance with the pending (disarmament) agreement."

The truth is that the bases would be useful but that the United States has managed to keep a close watch on the Soviets without the bases. There is some evidence, moreover, that the Turkish facilities were never as necessary as the Administration would have us believe.

Our man in Washington

Candidates victims of familiarity

By TERRY WADE
PB Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — "I'm getting sick and tired of being forced to vote against someone, instead of for someone."

Those words were muttered by a suburban Washington commuter as he and a few other bureaucrats waited on a bus to carry them to work here recently.

His meaning was clear — the overwhelming majority of Americans think neither Jimmy Carter nor Gerald Ford is really fit for the presidency.

What the man said and meant are not peculiar to him.

According to most of the wisened minds around here, you have to go all the way back to the John Kennedy-Richard Nixon race of 1960 to find two really worthwhile candidates in the same race.

These same people will argue that there may have been a few losers before that, but by and large the choices were better in the days before Johnson (Lyndon), Nixon and now Ford.

Maybe the Virginia commuter and the wise ones are right. Maybe Ford and Carter aren't men you'd vote for, but perhaps it's our attitudes that have changed and not the quality of our leaders.

Isn't it a little difficult to believe this country hasn't produced a large enough group of capable men to provide us with a decent choice in presidents since 1960?

Perhaps it is just a coincidence that television and mass media have become the dominant sources of news in this country during the same period we have been unable to come up with leaders that can stand the test of a presidential campaign.

Isn't it just possible that it is the familiarity we now have with anyone that runs for the presidency that makes us think less of them than we did men we knew less well?

For instances, most Americans did not realize Franklin Roosevelt was still a cripple when he occupied the White House.

As someone once said and as has oft been repeated "familiarity breeds contempt" and there is probably a better chance that our presidential candidates of today are the victims of this than of the lack of leadership qualities.

In our thirst to know and the media's intense competitive desire to quench that thirst we may have made it impossible to ever have another "great leader."

What we must do is find a way to reconcile our pain at finding out no one is perfect. We must learn to live with people as our leaders and not psuedo-deities.

Doc Peirsol

Just in jest

We have become so preoccupied with making certain that minority groups and races get everything that is coming to them — and just a little bit more for good measure — that one sometimes wonders whatever became of the theory that successful government should operate on the theory of the greatest good for the greatest number. And at the international level, here's how this obsession with minority rights can sometimes take over regardless of the law of the land. — A special permit to hunt deer in Northern California was recently granted the brother of the Shah of Iran one week prior to the season's opening. — But then, what does one out of season deer amount to if its death thereby promotes more oil for the cars of America? And after all, what was really taking place was a typical example of the greatest good for the greatest number theory of government in actual operation.

Sacramento scene

Battle arising in State Senate

By EARL G. WATERS

Regardless of the outcome of the November elections a new struggle for power, now developing in the Senate, will come to a head when the Legislature convenes in December. Anticipating with reasonable certainty that the Democrats will retain their 25 to 15 majority, and perhaps add to it but at least not lose enough ground to become the minority, the attention is being focused on the membership of the Rules Committee. Unlike the Assembly, where one man, the Speaker, reigns supreme naming committee chairmen and members and assigning bills to committee, the Senate is ruled over by a committee of five appropriately named the Rules Committee.

Its membership is composed of the President Pro Tem, elected by the full Senate, and two members from each party selected in party caucus. Since the majority party, by weight of numbers, selects the President Pro Tem, barring a coalition revolt, the Rules Committee is balanced 3 to 2 on a party basis.

That a mild storm is generating is assured by the retirement of three of the present committeemen. This will be the first disturbance of the lull which followed the partisanship struggles of a few years ago when Senator Hugh Burns stepped down as President Pro Tem after 12 serene years.

Burns was succeeded in quick order by Republican Senators Jack Schrade and Howard Way. The present President Pro Tem James Mills then emerged and wore the crown uneasily for many months as the Democrats quarreled amongst themselves and several real or near challenges were made.

In the forthcoming contests Mills' post does not appear, at the moment, to be involved. But the chairs of retiring Senators Robert Stevens, Clare Berryhill and Joseph Kennick will open up two places for the Republicans and one for the Democrats.

Complicating the situation will be the chairmanships of several committees which may become vacant and one, Agriculture, being vacated by retiring Senator Way. Foremost is that of Finance whose present chairman, Anthony Beilenson, is considered a virtual cinch to win election to Congress. Three other senators chairing committees are in tough election battles. They are Business and Professions chairman Schrade, Local Government chairman Milton Marks and Public Employes chairman James Wedworth.

Since members of the Rules Committee may not also serve as committee chairmen, some who might aspire to the Rules Committee may alter their goals if these committee chairmanships become open.

As it stands the two most avid candidates for the Democratic Rules seat are Senators Omer Rains and Jerome Smith. That there may be two Democratic seats depends on whether Senator Nick Petris opts to vacate Rules for a committee chairmanship. Not all the Democrats are behind Rains and Smith, two newcomers to the Senate. Senator George Zenovich is toying with the idea of making a bid for the committee and there is support for Senators Robert Presley and Reuben Ayala.

On the Republican side Senators John Stull and Newton Russell are considered the most likely to be named although Senators Bill Richardson and Dennis Carpenter could be challengers.

Aside from the Rules Committee battle the other big contest will be for the chairmanship of Finance if Beilenson does win the Congressional race. That is the post for which Petrie might sacrifice his Rules seat. It is also the most sought after chairmanship in the Senate.

Watch purchase dispute resolved

In March I ordered a watch from Aldens, a mail order company in Chicago. I paid $44 for it.

About three weeks later it was delivered but after I examined it I decided to return the watch because it was not exactly what I expected it to be.

Three weeks after that I was billed for the price of the watch.

At once I notified the company that the merchandise had been returned by me and requested that an inquiry be directed to the firm's receiving department.

The reply was to the effect that the package containing the watch had not been received.

Threatening letters have been sent to me. My employer has been notified of the case.

I would like to ask your help in trying to solve this problem because I seem unable to do so. — A.G., Pomona.

Our letter to Aldens brought no direct reply but a couple of weeks later you received word of a settlement of $48.51 that had been approved by Aldens. This apparently included postage. You were told there was no need to write again unless the credit for the amount does not appear on one of your next two statements from the company.

I sent the company a check Jan. 5 for $13.50. It was cashed. Every month I get a past due notice. I have written to the company several times to explain that I have paid for the renewal.

We hear a lot about what we as citizens should do about conserving energy. Is the government actually doing much beside spreading propaganda about conservation? — N. T., Diamond Bar.

Yes. For example, the National Bureau of Standards, working with the General Services Administration, has designed a monitoring and instrumentation system to evaluate for the next three years GSA's new Norris Cotton Building in Manchester, N. H.

The seven-story building has solar collectors integrated with a heating and cooling system, six different type of heating and cooling systems on different floors, and several combinations of artificial and natural illumination for evaluation of occupant reaction.

Devices within the building measure temperature, humidity, air and water flow, solar radiation, electric power consumption, barometric pressure and illumination.

This, of course, will generate an additional flow of information, which you may label propaganda.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You're prone to act on impulse today, then stew about it later. Dismiss those negative thoughts: what you did was right at the time.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) The way you handle commercial situations today is quite clever, though you could lose a few points by obliging those who don't deserve it.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Although you'll aim high today, conditions could drift you right off the mark. Second-best is nothing to be ashamed of.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Minor issues may vex you today, but in situations that really count you'll find yourself in the driver's seat.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Enjoy yourself today, but don't feel you have to spend a bundle. Things that are too costly won't be fun anyway.

Ann Landers

The baby is your affair alone

Dear Ann Landers: A few years after Charles and I were married we tried to have a family. After a long stretch of disappointments we went to our doctors to be checked. It turned out I was OK but Charles had a low sperm count, in fact so low his doctor said he couldn't possibly get me pregnant.

We immediately put our names in at three adoption agencies. After two years of waiting I became discouraged and talked Charles into letting me try artificial insemination. (The sperm I received was from an anonymous donor.) I became pregnant almost immediately.

We don't want to tell anyone about the artificial insemination but what choice do we have? Years ago we confided to our families (and some friends) that Charlie was sterile. (They kept asking us why we were childless.)

My husband is so thrilled about the baby he couldn't care less what people think. But I DO care. I don't want anyone to think I had a lover on the side. What should I say? — Red-Faced In Pittsfield

Dear Pitt: Nothing. You've said too much already. The condition of Charles's sperm was nobody's business. If anyone reminds you that your husband was supposed to be sterile just say, "Miracles DO happen. It's just too wonderful for words." Then clam up.

Dear Ann Landers: You frequently deal with human problems that cause misery — drug abuse, alcoholism and infidelity. There's another problem in our town that is equally destructive. It is "gossipism."

Six months ago I went through a scandalous divorce. It was the result of my husband's numerous escapades with a long list of women. All sorts of innocent people were hurt and it was a mess. (Our divorce caused two others.)

As soon as the story came out in the papers I was besieged by "well-wishers" who couldn't wait to supply me with "unpublished" facts and figures, names and places — all the details.

Why can't people keep their mouths shut? Heaven knows I already had enough information, I didn't need more. I'm still getting phone calls and drop-in visitors bearing tales. How can I turn them off? — Heartbreak In Tiffin

Dear Heart: When people insist on telling you more than you care to know, you CAN turn them off with one brief sentence. Sample: "Thanks for your concern, but I don't want to hear any more on that subject." Embark immediately on another topic. Even the dimmest clod will get the message.

Dear Ann Landers: I want to say "Thank you" to the 18-year-old who used to be ashamed to kiss her parents in front of her friends. She said it made her feel like a baby. When her father died she changed her mind.

I used to feel the same way, but after reading her letter I realized how lucky I am to have two parents to kiss — and how great it is that they are so affectionate.

I'll bet that gal helped many other teenagers who had the same hangup. Sign me — Grateful To A Stranger

Dear Grateful: Thanks for letting her (and millions of others) know. That letter also reminded ME how fortunate I was to have grown up in a warm and loving family.

Do you feel awkward, self-conscious — lonely? Welcome to the club. There's help for you in Ann Landers's booklet, "The Key to Popularity." Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

How do you spell relief?

"For this relief much thanks," says the castle guard in "Hamlet" (Act I, Sc.1) as another guard comes to take his place in the night.

Relief is a strange and glorious feeling — execpt when you're on relief. It is "an easing, as of pain, discomfort or anxiety; the setting free of some cause of distress in body or mind." We say "What a relief!" It is different for everybody and comes from a variety of sources, but the reaction is always euphoria and whew!

It goes without saying that the greatest relief of all is when, in utmost agony, you make it to the bathroom on time. The relief is so intense as to be almost spiritual at times.

Other sighs of relief are emitted when — you are the defendant and the judge says "Case dismissed!"

— your check clears at the bank;

— Junior graduates. (He also feels relief at getting out of college, and his professors feel relief to be rid of him at last.);

— Howard Cosell shuts up.

You experience relief

— when you hear the car come into the driveway and know your teenage daughter has returned safely from her first drive in your car;

— when you come home from work at the end of the day, sink into your armchair and take the first sip of your martini;

— when the dentist looks into your mouth and says, "Well, no cavities. We'll just give you a cleaning."

— when the highway patrolman says, "I'll overlook it this time, but drive more carefully in the future."

— when your plane lands.

Relief is nothing but beautiful. You feel it when — the Internal Revenue Service admits it made a mistake;

— the TV goes blank just as the World Series starts — and you find that the dog has pulled out the plug;

— the restaurant tab is $10 more than you expected, and you find an overlooked 10-spot in your wallet;

— the last guest leaves after a long dinner party.

You heave a great sigh and your shoulders sag

— when your income tax refund check arrives just in time to cover your rent check;

— when the Yankees win in the bottom of the ninth;

— when the mechanic says, "That rumble in the transmission is nothing. I'll fix it in a jiffy."

— when your mother-in-law leaves after a month's visit;

— when the boss is an hour late to work the morning you are a half-hour late;

— when any Maude program ends;

— when your car, stalled in an intersection, finally starts.

Relief is when the doctor tells you those pains are not cancer but acid indigestion; when you knock a bottle of soda and a bottle of whiskey off the shelf and only the soda smashes; when the shaking of the bed in the middle of the night is not an earthquake but the family dog scratching his fleas under the bed.

Relief is getting out of a tight girdle. It's pulling into a gas station after driving on the freeway for 10 minutes with the gas gauge at EMPTY. Relief is waking up at 6 a.m. and realizing it's Saturday. Relief is reading your name in the newspaper and it's not in the obituary column.

How do YOU spell relief?

Diet and walk to lose weight

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 55 years old, 5 feet 6 and weigh 158 pounds. blood pressure is 150 o 100. Also my husband is dying of cancer. Now my doctor says it's my few pounds overweight that is causing my blood pressure to be high.

I went on a 1000-calorie diet to lose weight and did lose a few pounds. But, I have to work hard and couldn't make it so I increased the diet to 1200 calories a day. Naturally I can't lose any more.

My doctor wants me to go to a psychologist and be hypnotized to see why I like to eat. I tried to explain it wasn't the desire to eat alone, but I needed food to have strength to do my job.

He said I would have to be down to 90 pounds to be weak from no food. Ever since I had this round with him the other day I have been very upset and my heart just pounds. I feel I have enough with a sick husband without this from him.

DEAR READER — Your doctor is right in trying to help you lose weight as the best way to get your blood pressure down. However, I question the way you are trying to do it.

You should be able to lose weight slowly if you are on a real 1200-calorie diet and are reasonably active. And it is true that you will have a loss of energy on a diet too low in calories, whether or not you have already lost all your excess fat deposits. Anyone who has been on a severely restricted diet knows this. Loss of energy is par for the course. I agree it is hard to work and stay on a 1000-calorie diet very long.

May I suggest that you really stick religiously to a 1200 calorie diet and try to include at least 30 minutes of walking a day. I'm sending you The Health Letter number 4-7, Weight Losing Diet. Constructed as a balanced 1200-calorie plan. Try it with some regular exercise and it will do the trick for you gradually.

Your pressure may be lower when you have less stress than you have now. Life situations are often a factor in increasing the blood pressure.

Others who want information on the Weight Losing Diet can send 50 cents for it. Send your request to Dr. Lamb in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have a friend who is losing his hair. He has to keep combing his hair different to cover up the thin places. I feel he should see a doctor and that he probably lacks some vitamins in his meals. He says he feels good and that it will grow back again. I will appreciate any information on his.

DEAR READER — If a person is eating a balanced diet containing sufficient vitamins, taking additional vitamins will not prevent loss of hair.

It is true that a diet deficient in protein can lead to hair loss. Most people, however, get plenty of protein and usually far more than needed.

Premature hair loss can be associated with poor nutrition, any illness, and even occurs as a complication of pregnancy about three months after the baby is born. In these situations the baldness or hair loss is temporary.

Hereditary factors are a major reason for early baldness. In any case I agree that anyone who has excessive loss of hair at a young age should see a doctor, preferably a dermatologist since they specialize in disorders of the skin.

It is normal to lose about 70 hairs each day. The life cycle of a hair is from two to six years and the hair follicle has a resting period without hair for about three months.

You can't live without faith

Some months ago I found myself waiting for a traffic light to change on a bustling Manhattan street in midday.

Suddenly, I felt my feet tremble as an underground train passed beneath me. Wow! It felt for a moment like the beginning of a California earthquake, like the entire street could at any moment cave in. But all around me, people went about their busy business of working and living exercising such faith!

It is impossible to live without faith, faith that the sun will rise, faith that you will return safely to your home at night, faith that the street or skyscraper will not collapse. You live with faith each day. Isn't it time to meet the Author of your faith? He is God, the Creator, the Almighty, All Powerful, All Wise, All Loving Source of Your Everyday Needs. Meet Him and really live!

Says who?

Some painters using liquor

An organization of watercolorists whose members use liquor instead of water to mix their hues is called the Whiskey Painters of America. Or WPA, for short. Now any Seasoned Citizen will recall that WPA during the Great Depression stood for that government agency known as the Works Projects Adminstration. And that's when the whiskey painters got started. The first of them painted in bars and taverns, using whatever was on the table to thin their paints, then selling their art for drinks and food. Now they're much more affluent, generally. They paint with whiskey, gin, vodka, rum and beer, presumably because they like to keep it closer at hand than water. At a recent show of such art in Tulsa, Okla., buyers on the first night took home about $6,000 worth of the whiskey paintings.

THE EXCEPTION

Q. "It's a common expression to say, 'The exception proves the rule.' I don't get it. How does an exception prove a rule?"

A. It doesn't. Generations ago, the word "prove" was synonymous with "test." An exception tests a rule, all right. But it doesn't prove it, not the way we use "prove" today. It disproves it, in fact. Our Language man gets really riled up about such phrases. When somebody says "I could care less" instead of "I couldn't care less," he almost turns blue. It's wondrous.

Q. "What was the special embalming technique that the Egyptians used to make mummies?"

A. No special technique The absence of bacteria in the hot dry air and sand permitted near-perfect preservation. The deserts of Arizona, New Mexico and Southern California likewise have mummified remains.

Q. "What's the longest railway trip you can make one way without changing trains?"

A. The run between Moscow and Peking.

PYGGY BANK

In England during the Middle Ages, most household utensils, such as pots and jars, were made of cheap clay called "Pygg." And usually it was in such a pygg pot that a housewife hoarded whatever she wanted to save. Thus, that minor treasure chest came to be known as a pyggy bank, long before it was molded into the shape of a hog.

You've heard that George Washington Ferris introduced the first Ferris Wheel at the Chicago World's Fair before the turn of the century. But do you know where he got that bright idea? At Fort Genoa, Nev., it was. An irrigation wagon wheel turned him on.

Mao's shade haunts China, influences leaders

Hua Kuofeng: man of mystery may avert violence as bond between party radicals, moderates

EDITOR'S NOTE — The writer, an Associated Press Chinese-affairs specialist based in Tokyo, currently is visiting the United States.

By John Roderick
Associated Press Writer

The emergence of Hua Kuofeng as successor to Mao Tsetung suggests the old chairman's influence lives on a month after his death and that the Chinese Communist party has chosen compromise rather than confrontation.

The news from Peking leaves no doubt that the Mao protege — virtually unknown a year ago — is taking over at the relatively young age of 57 with a firm rather than shaky hand. He succeeds to all of Mao's old titles: chairman of the party, chairman of the Military Commission (meaning he has the army's backing) and head of the party Politboro.

It is also reported that he is to choose his own successor as premier.

All this means that the Chinese party — split by a quarrel between moderates, represented by the late Premier Chou En-lai, and the radicals, led by Mao's widow, Chiang Ching — decided for stability rather than violence. As far as China and the international community are concerned this could be all to the good.

For what China does internally could deeply affect the balance of power system carefully elaborated in recent years by the United States, the Soviet Union, Japan and China itself.

A radical China, dedicated to revolution at any cost, could alter the good relations now existing between Peking and Washington and Peking and Tokyo.

These links, the product of diplomacy only four or five years old, are vital to the over-all balance all four wish to maintain, with the Soviet Union in the other scale.

It now seems likely that China will remain a viable part of the international equation, pursuing Mao's policy of detente with the United States and the West.

It also suggests that Mao's line of opposition to the Soviet Union is not about to be drastically changed in the near future. This could have been part of the bargain Madame Chiang Ching's people struck with the moderates in agreeing to Hua.

The possibilities for disruption which preceded Hua's selection as party chairman seemed immense at the time of Mao's death Sept. 9 at the age of 82. Hua's oration at Mao's funeral and last Tuesday's address by Foreign Minister Chiao Kuan-hua to the United Nations General Assembly, gave no clues to the direction of the struggle between the two party factions was taking. But it did indicate that Hua was carrying on with confidence.

His personal political triumph against many odds makes him a fascinating subject for China watchers to study, but the Chinese have maintained more than usual secrecy about Hua's origins.

Little is known of his life before the mid-1950s, when he gained Mao's attention by performing well in rural projects in the late chairman's home province of Hunan. Nothing official has been said even about where he was born.

He gained Mao's confidence by leading the investigation into the alleged coup by the late defense minister, Lin Piao, in 1971. For this he became minister of security and sixth vice premier.

He was no man's apparent choice to take over the premiership when Chou En-lai died last January. Teng Hsiao-ping, Chou's protege, was the favorite, but he wasn't Mao's.

When demonstrations broke out in Peking and other cities in favor of Teng, Mao personally ordered him broken, stripped him of his party and government titles, and put Hua into the premiership.

Though Hua now takes over, Mao lives on in China. For how long is the next question.

The chances are for quite a while — at least for as long as power inside China depends on carrying out Mao's ideas.

These ideas center around the Chineseness of the Communist revolution, self-reliance, independence from other Communist parties, and a vigorous pursuit of class struggle, whose ultimate aim is a classless society under communism.

Whoever takes over in the future will have to pay at least lip service to these principles while maneuvering to get China into the 20th century with a minimum of struggle, fuss and talk.

English students?

DAVIS (AP) — University of California English Prof. Sidney Berger remains baffled by the spelling of some of his senior students taking an advanced composition class.

In a semester of many errors, students talked about families going on a picknick, someone playing the chello, a mob in a pannick, people being taken to the hospital in an ambulience, a luietennant dying tragicly and churches becoming more accumedical.

Other misspelled words included descriminate, arther (for author), illistrate, competance, definate, challange and jubilent.

BICENTENNIAL FACTS

American soldiers during the Revolution were lucky to get any clothing at all. Aside from militiamen, uniforms were non-existent. Washington, recognizing the practical attire of the riflemen, tried to have the hunting shirt adopted as uniform, but Congress took no action. It was not until October, 1779, The World Almanac recalls, that blue was adopted as the official Army uniform.

Ford's finances: Personal expenditures resurface as political football, Carter calls for complete disclosure of tax returns

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's personal finances have resurfaced as a presidential campaign issue because of an old Internal Revenue Service audit report that he once paid a few personal bills with money from a bank account containing some political contributions.

Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter said Saturday that Ford should make public his income tax returns since "there seems to be a discrepancy" between the audit's findings and Ford's statements that he had never converted campaign funds to personal use.

Ford replied that FBI, IRS and congressional investigations have given him an "absolute clean bill of health" and added: "I suggest that people who throw stones shouldn't live in glass houses."

The 13-page audit report, a copy of which was obtained by The Associated Press, does answer some questions about Ford's finances. The audit was of Ford tax returns from 1967 to 1972. The report is dated Nov. 9, 1973.

It shows that in 1972 Ford paid a handful of personal bills with funds from a bank account containing speaker's fees, reimbursements for political and other travel and some political contributions. The money was spent on $871.44 worth of clothes for himself and Mrs. Ford, the audit found.

The report said Ford agreed with an IRS determination that the clothing money was personal income and that he then paid taxes on that amount. The report indicated Ford repaid the vacation funds to the account, maintained in Grand Rapids, Mich., which he represented in Congress at the time.

The audit report also said IRS agents calculated that Ford was able to get by with only $5 a week in spending money, something Carter also called on Ford to explain. The audit report noted that Ford himself was surprised to learn how little pocket money he used.

The report concluded that Ford had taken sufficient action to clear up IRS questions about the special bank account and his own out-of-pocket cash expenditures.

The IRS required no other adjustments, and Ford asked the agency to give the audit to the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation when he was undergoing confirmation hearings for vice president.

Carter has listed two areas that he says need further clarification from the President — one concerning the bank account and the other concerning Ford's spending money.

The Bank Account

Carter has repeatedly raised questions during the past three days about Ford's use of the Grand Rapids bank account to pay $1,167 for a family vacation to Vail, Colo., in 1972, and $871.44 for clothes for him and his wife for the 1972 GOP convention.

The IRS audit found these expenditures came from the "Gerald R. Ford Fifth District Account" at Union Bank and Trust, one of seven accounts it examined.

"The principal source of the deposits are honorariums, reimbursements for travel expenses and some political contributions," said the IRS audit of the account.

The audit report said deposit slips could not be found for some deposits, but that these were explained by Ford and his counsel, Phillip Buchen, by reference to Ford's personal diary, which listed speaking engagements and honorariums.

Most of the payments from the account were used for expenses for 78 trips taken by Ford, including numerous political trips, the audit report said. The travel and clothing expenditures were exceptions to this general rule.

The audit said a check dated Nov. 30, 1972, for $1,167 was for "the purchase of tickets to Vail, Colorado, for the family Christmas Ski Vacation.

"Mr. Ford believed this amount had been repaid. He instructed Mr. (Robert J.) McBain (Ford's accountant) to make the necessary reimbursement which had been overlooked."

The Wall Street Journal said this week one of it's reporters had seen a canceled check that was apparently Ford's $1,167 reimbursement to the account.

But the situation was different for the second expenditure the audit examined.

The account provided a total of $871.44 for four purchases of clothing for himself and Mrs. Ford for the 1972 GOP National Convention.

Ford's accountant told the Senate when it was considering Ford's vice presidential nomination in 1973 that Ford had deducted this amount as a business expense and that the deductions had been disallowed, meaning additional taxes of $435.77.

But the audit said: "This item has been adjusted and the taxpayers counsel has accepted the addition to income for the purchase of clothing from the 5th Congressional district account."

Thus, the audit said Ford accepted the IRS contention that these funds were personal income, even though they did come from an account that included some political contributions.

The portion of the account that came from campaign funds was not specified in the audit. The lack of clarity in the audit report as to the breakdown of the sources of funds for this account made it impossible to say whether the clothes were actually purchased with political contributions.

But Carter said: "Now it is reported that an IRS report stating that campaign money was used to buy clothes for Mr. Ford and his family and to pay for vacation trips to Vail."

"I don't know what the facts are about Mr. Ford and his income tax. He does," Carter said.

"The point is that there is a question he should resolve," he said and suggested Ford release his income tax returns.

Ford has denied any impropriety in his personal or campaign finances.

"All of those were thoroughly investigated by the FBI, by the IRS and by two committees of the Congress, and they gave me an absolute clean bill of health," Ford said in Dallas on Saturday. "I suggest that people who throw stones shouldn't live in glass houses."

Carter was principally referring to Ford's statements in a Sept. 30 news conference at the White House.

At that news conference, Ford dealt with reports that the Watergate special prosecutor was investigating his campaign finances in Grand Rapids, seat of Kent County, Mich.

"Q. Mr. President, one of the issues raised is whether any of this campaign money was actually diverted to your personal use. Would you like to say flatly whether that was so or not?.

"A. Well, I don't know whether that is an allegation that is being investigated by the Special Prosecutor's office, but I can say there was never any money given to me by the Kent County Reublican Committee. The Kent County Republican Committee may have done some advertising on behalf of my candidacy or candidates of other Republican candidates running for public office. That is their function.

"...No money even went to me personally."

Later, he added:

"Q. Mr. President, to follow up on Fran Lewine's question earlier, she asked you if any of the funds had been diverted to personal use, and your answer was, sir, you had never received any of funds from Kent County. Are we to understand that as a 'no', that you have never used any of these funds for personal use?

Ford's finances —

"A. From the Kent County Republican Committee?

"Q. From any campaign?

"A. I will say any campaign funds for personal use."

Five Dollars A Week

Carter has also emphasized the IRS audit finding that in 1972, Ford apparently lived on $225 in out-of-pocket spending money — less than five dollars a week.

"It's reported that he only spent on personal expenses out of his pocket $5 a week for himself and his family. There seems to be a discrepany there," Carter said Friday.

The $225 figure comes from the IRS analysis of checks written for "cash" by Ford from another bank account, this one used primarily for his personal expenses. The figure represents only Ford's cash expenses, not the entire family's, contrary to Carter's comment.

The audit found the Ford out-of-pocket cash flow followed a pattern: far lower expenditures in campaign years than in non-election years.

Here is the year-by-year breakdown of the cash expenditures as listed by the audit: 1967, $3,600; 1968, $1,130; 1969, $1,940; 1970, $980; 1971, $3,350; and 1972, $225.

The audit said Ford had an explanation for the difference.

"He was surprised himself to know that he can go through a week spending $5.00 or less because of his numerous meetings and lunches paid by others, particularly during the campaign season. When he is on the road in his congressional district, all 3 meals each day are paid for by some political or social group," the audit said.

The audit said Ford also pointed out that many of his expenses while working on Capitol Hill were paid out of another account funding his expenses as House minority leader.

The audit even delved into Ford's eating habits in considering the cash question.

"Mr. Ford stated when asked about the number of times he eats at the House of Representatives Restaurant personally and the cost, that 'the House session starts at 12:00 noon and he only eats there two possibly three times a month.' He also stated that the cost of his usual lunch of cottage cheese and unsweetened grapefruit juice is very nominal."

The audit also pointed out, "Substantial living expenses were paid by check in 1972."

The audit report also said that Mrs. Ford wrote checks to the Farlington Beauty Salon in round amounts, which "appear to be more than for her hair. He (Ford) believes she is receiving cash."

But the Wall Street Journal said that it contacted Fairlington Beauty Salon in Alexandria, Va., and its manager Mrs. Madelyn Bourbeau. The audit report misspelled the beauty parlor's name.

The Journal quoted Mrs. Bourbeau as saying Mrs. Ford "very rarely" wrote checks for more than the cost of the hairdressing services.

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) — A U.S. District Court judge has ruled that the owners of a Fairfax City, Va., photo studio cannot collect damages from the city for a break-in by the Central Intelligence Agency and city police.

According to attorneys in the case, Judge D. Dortch Warriner held Tuesday that the owners' promise to exempt one defendant from paying certain damages means that nobody can be held liable.

Warriner dismissed the $24.2 million suit after a five-hour closed pretrial hearing with lawyers for both sides.

The plaintiffs, Orlando Nunez and his wife, Deborah Jane Fitzgerald, also attended the conference.

One of the couple's lawyers, John Hale, said the decision will be appealed.

The couple charged that, in 1971, three police officials had helped CIA agents enter the studio without a search warrant to photograph some documents. The officials were former Fairfax Police Chief Murray Kutner, former chief of detectives Carl Buchholtz, and Sgt. Robert L. Fleck.

'Nobody is smiling'

Soviet commentator sees U.S. discontent

By SETH MYDANS
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — "Look at their faces: nobody is smiling. Life is not happy for the people who live among the riches of America."

With these words, commentator Valentin Zorin concluded a nine-part tour of American cities that has been aired here on Kremlin-controlled television during the U.S. election season, a time when Russians struggle to understand their rich and turbulent rival.

From city to city around America, Zorin says he has found a nation of dramatic contrasts between riches and poverty, privilege and oppression, material wealth and spiritual emptiness.

"There is something very rotten at the core of a social system which increases its wealth without reducing poverty, and in which crime increases more rapidly than the population," Zorin said, quoting Karl Marx, in the final installment last weekend.

He concluded his series, titled "America in the '70s," in New York City, which he said exhibits "all the problems that are tearing America apart" — crime, unemployment, pollution, racial prejudice and crumbling cities.

With his camera lingering on the faces of New Yorkers, Zorin said, "Their faces are imprinted with their anxieties and troubles. There is little joy, it seems, not only for the poor but for those who would seem to have no troubles.

"Their faces are an illustration of the Russian proverb, 'Money can't buy happiness'," he said.

The people of the Soviet Union are acutely aware of the gap in wealth between their nation and the United States, and often use the American standard of living as a gauge for their own progress.

But Zorin ridiculed the notion that the average American is well-to-do, saying, "There are three kinds of lies: lies, big lies and statistics. Oh, those American statistics! They average out their rich and their poor and arrive at figures to prove their prosperity."

He said New York is the home of some of the world's richest and poorest people.

"Several hundred men out of 10 million rule the factories, mines and railroads," he said, and they live "as though they were not surrounded by poverty, homelessness and all the problems which beset their countrymen. Here, it's every man for himself and nobody for the people."

Emphasizing his theme that there is a spiritual emptiness beneath America's gaudy exterior, Zorin took his viewers down Broadway. "Here we see a lot of glitter and poverty, rosy hopes and lost illusions, noisy entertainment and silent despair," he said.

"No, Broadway is not as joyful as it seems at first glance. It's smiles are unnatural, forced, as if stuck on with paste."

To Zorin, New York is typified by big business of Wall Street, ostentatious wealth of Fifth Avenue and the poverty of the Bowery.

It is also the home of the U.S. Communist party, "courageous fighters for human rights" who often have to flee over rooftops to escape police harassment, he said.

In the earlier installments, Zorin made these observations about other American cities:

—The proud history embodied in Philadelphia's monuments is mocked by the squalor of its slums, and the great ideals of the Declaration of Independence are forgotten.

—Chicago is a home of capitalist exploitation, gangsterism and broken promises, where workers toil to enrich the Rockefellers, Morgans and McCormacks.

—Atlanta demonstrates that what Lenin called the "slaveowning South" is changing, but that bitter race oppression continues. Zorin said the changes have forced Jimmy Carter to avoid "wild racism."

—San Francisco is a collection of ethnic ghettos, demonstrating that the American melting pot has gone cool and that only a handful of "100 per cent Americans" live privileged lives.

—Boston is the scene of the Boston Tea Party, the home of the Kennedys and the "arena of racial injustices."

—And in California, Disneyland is "a marvel of kindness, joy and love" that only emphasizes the fact that "kindness is one of the most deficient qualities in the United States."

Surveying New York's skyline in his last look at the United States, Zorin stood by the Hudson River, a crisp breeze ruffling his hair.

"America has accumulated many riches," he mused, "but have these riches made the people any happier, any more confident of their future?

"No, they haven't," he said, "because the riches of a few can't bring happiness to the whole of society, because money can't replace justice, spiritual happiness, the joys of human warmth, great ideals or noble aims."

King Carlos

CARTAGENA, Colombia (AP) — King Juan Carlos and Queen Sofia of Spain are celebrating the 484th anniversary of Christopher Columbus' greatest accomplishment in what was once part of Spain's New World empire.

On Monday, the royal couple sailed aboard a Spanish frigate into the harbor of Cartagena, a Caribbean port built by the Spanish conquistadors 400 years ago and visited by Juan Carlos 20 years ago as a naval officer. They were welcomed by President Alfonso Lopez Michelsen and units of the Colombian navy.

Retarded couple making a happy go of marriage

FRESNO (AP) - Almost everyone who knows Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Montgomery told them their marriage would never work.

Neither has a skilled trade and both are unemployed.

A middle-aged couple, their meager, combined income makes it difficult to meet rent payments on their ramshackle house and keep food on the shelves.

Estelle's right leg has been shriveled by polio and she needs Floyd's help dressing and bathing.

These hardships would severely test the bonds of any marriage, but Floyd and Estelle must deal with one other misfortune.

Both are mentally retarded.

The couple sat side by side on a threadbare sofa in their sparsely furnished living room here and with some difficulty, told what it's like to survive under such circumstances.

"I've never been happier in my life," said Estelle, 45, in rapid, slurred speech.

"It was the right decision. When I lived with my sister, everybody made my decisions for me. Now I'm leading my own life."

Floyd, 38, regrets only that he didn't meet Estelle sooner in life. "Ever since we've been married, I've been happy. People told us that mentally retarded people just don't work out together. They said I'd just get tired of her and throw her out after a while.

"But we knew better than they did," he said with a smile that Estelle returned.

Officials of a sheltered workshop discouraged the couple from marrying as did other friends and relatives of the Montgomerys. The two met at the facility and began courting after Estelle had fallen and broken her leg. Floyd rode his bicycle six miles every day to visit her at the hospital, where he proposed.

"With a broken leg, she couldn't escape," Floyd said. "I had her cornered."

A friend took them to get blood tests and a marriage license and a justice of the peace performed the ceremony. Seventeen states have laws forbidding retarded people to marry, but California is not one of them.

Married almost a year and a half now, Floyd and Estelle said that setting a few ground rules has helped them make the partnership a success.

"We play a game of marbles every day and the loser does the housework," Estelle said. "And our biggest rule is that we never go to bed mad at each other."

Frances Davis, a social worker who makes sure that the Montgomerys receive proper health care and Social Security benefits, characterized both as "moderately retarded on a scale that runs: profound, severe, moderate and mild.

"Their arrangement is certainly not something I would recommend for all mentally disabled people, but they seem to have handled it very well," she said. "Floyd cares a lot about Estelle and Estelle cares a lot about Floyd. I think they did the right thing."

The Montgomerys have no reservations about endorsing marriage for other retarded couples.

"If two people meet and fall in love like we did, I'd tell 'em to go ahead and do it," Floyd said.

The couple doesn't plan to have any children because doctors say Estelle's weak legs could not hold up under the strain of childbearing, but being mentally disabled did not influence their decision.

"Why shouldn't retarded people be allowed to have children?" Floyd asked.

Both are well aware of their own limitations, however. Estelle said that since her bout with polio at age six, her speech has been poor and she is unable to think as clearly. Floyd said he's not sure of the medical reasons behind his disability, but he has "always been a slow learner."

During the conversation, each acted as interpreter for the other, explaining the meanings of words and concepts that the other was unfamiliar with.

Estelle can read and write to a limited extent. Floyd can do neither, but he has a driver's license and can draw on the experience of living independently for several years before his marriage.

Both have trouble managing money, however, and Mrs. Davis fears store clerks may be taking advantage of them when they shop.

"Neither would know if they are getting the right amount of change back on a $20 bill," she said. "And it seems strange that even though they're not wasteful, they're always short on money at the end of the month. I'm afraid someone might be taking advantage of them."

The Montgomerys combined monthly income of $550 from Social Security leaves little room for extravagance. Floyd said there have been times when they were out of food, out of gas and out of money.

Their living quarters are simple. The furniture is plain and the floor uncarpeted. Hinges are broken and there is other evidence of disrepair, but the house is clean.

Apparently, all the Montgomerys need is each other. And they don't fully appreciate the significance of their venture.

"It's nothing big, two retarded people living together," Estelle said. "We know the difference between right and wrong, and that's all we have to know."

Five elected to Scripps board

Five Southern Californians have been elected to the Scripps College board of trustees.

They are Frank V. Cahouet, Ellen Ellis and Nancy Trask, all of Pasadena, Dorothy Ledwell of Walnut and Linda Lebenbaum of Newport Beach.

Cahouet is executive vice president of Security Pacific Corporation and a member of the Scripps College Parents Council advisory board.

Mrs. Ellis and Mrs. Trask are both members of the college's class of 1939 while Mrs. Ledwell graduated in 1956 and Miss Lebenbaum is a recent Scripps graduate.

Reds are like bottled lightning

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds are like bottled lightning. You never know where or when they'll strike.

Manager Sparky Anderson's Reds looked like a beaten team in the ninth inning of Tuesday's third game in the best-of-five National League playoff game against the Philadelphia Phillies.

The Phillies led 6-4, and had ace reliever Ron Reed out there to assure their first victory in the series and stave off elimination. It certainly appeared that the Reds' fourth National League pennant clinching in six years would have to wait at least one more day.

But as Phillies' shortstop, Larry Bowa, would say later, the Reds never quit. First they bombed Reed for consecutive homers by George Foster and Johnny Bench. Then they bled the Phillies for the winning run in a 7-6 pennant clincher.

Reed left after those two shocking home runs sent a Cincinnati crowd of 55,407 into a frenzy. Gene Garber came in and gave up a single to Dave Concepcion. Phillies' Manager Danny Ozark lifted Garber and sent in 22-year-old Tommy Underwood.

Underwood, chewing bubble gum nervously, walked Cesar Geronimo on four pitches.

"I let them sacrifice the runner without an out," Underwood said after the game.

Pinch-hitter Ed Armbrister sacrificed the runners to second and third, and Pete Rose was intentionally walked. Ken Griffey, who lost the league batting title on the final day of the season, stepped to the plate.

"Be patient, just get the ball you want to hit," Anderson told Griffey.

Griffey, who probably beats out more infield hits than any other National League player, topped a ball toward first. Concepcion broke for home. The ball ticked off first baseman Bobby Tolan's glove and Concepcion streaked home.

A single, a walk, a sacrifice, a walk and an infield topper, and the Phillies were dead.

Despite his disappointment, Bowa, paid tribute to the Reds and predicted they'd blow out the American League champions in the World Series starting Saturday in Cincinnati.

"There was no luck involved," said Bowa. "They had more experience. They took advantage of every mistake we made. There was no excuse. We just got beat. They simply don't quit. I feel sorry for whoever plays them in the Series. I don't think there is a team over there (American League) who can compete with them."

Reed sat on the floor in an office by the clubhouse for at least a half-hour after the game. He was distraught.

"There is no way you blame anybody on this club but me for that loss," said the 6-foot-6 former pro basketball player. "I made two mistakes, and there was no excuse in the world for them. I hung a slider to Foster and threw Bench a high fastball."

Foster, who went to the plate in a 1-for-11 slump, said his eyes lit up when he saw the pitch in the middle of the plate.

"I had made up my mind to wait for a good pitch," said Foster, who hit 29 home runs in the regular season. He got it.

Bench, whose .234 batting average was the lowest in his storied 10-year career, said that after Foster's homer had reduced the Phillies' lead to 6-5, "I knew I was on the block. I wanted to hit one out more than anything."

Bench, the Reds' All-Star catcher, admitted he was thinking about his home run in the 1972 playoffs against Pittsburgh that tied the deciding game in the ninth inning. The Reds went on to win that one on a wild pitch.

Someone asked if Bench could put the two homers in order of importance.

"No, I can't. It's like apples and oranges. They were both great. It's hard to decide."

Griffey said of his game-winning chopper: "As soon as I saw it hit off his glove, I knew it was over. This is better than any batting championship," added the outfielder who has been dubbed the infield hacker for his ability to beat out slow dribblers.

The champagne still was pouring in the Reds' clubhouse when Anderson turned his thoughts to the World Series. He announced that left-hander Don Gullett would start for the Reds regardless of which team won the American League pennant, the New York Yankees or the Kansas City Royals.

The Phillies started Jim Kaat against the Reds and the 37-year-old, blanked the Reds on one hit through six innings. The Phillies, meanwhile, built a 3-0 lead off Cincinnati starter Gary Nolan and reliever Manny Sarmiento.

Mike Schmidt and Greg Luzinski hit successive doubles for a fourth-inning run. Bowa walked, Kaat sacrificed, Garry Maddox ripped a one-out double scoring Bowa, and Schmidt doubled home Maddox in the seventh.

The Reds erupted for four runs in the seventh to go ahead 4-3. Kaat left after Griffey beat out an infield single and Joe Morgan walked with none out. Reed relieved.

Tony Perez singled for one run and Foster hit a sacrifice fly for the second. Bench walked and Geronimo hit a fly into short left field that Tolan lost for a triple that sent home two more runs.

The Phillies, however, came back with two runs in the eighth off ace Reds' reliever Rawly Eastwick. Jay Johnstone, who was 7-for-9 in the playoffs for a .778 average, doubled with one out. Bob Boone walked. Bowa doubled to left for one run and Dave Cash sent the other in with a sacrifice fly.

Philadelphia picked up an insurance run in the ninth when Jerry Martin reached first on an error by Rose, and Johnstone tripled.

But, that was it and the Reds had another championship.

Cash, who played out his option and is a free agent, said the Phillies had one consolation in this deciding game.

"We didn't beat ourselves. They came and beat us," said the Phillies' second baseman.

For the record, Garber was the loser and Eastwick the winning pitcher.

BACK OF THE WEEK

USC running back Ricky Bell, shown here outside Heritage Hall on the Los Angeles campus, was named Associated Press Back of the Week for his performance against WSU Saturday.

Bell can take punishment

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ricky Bell runs like an out-of-control locomotive, bulling over linemen and leaving defensive backs strewn in his wake. But like all power runners, when he deals out physical punishment to defensive players, he's also punishing himself.

It seems, though, that the University of Southern California's 6-foot-2, 218-pound tailback has a great capacity for taking the pounding that goes along with carrying the football 35-plus times a game.

"He's so damn tough it's frightening," Trojans Coach John Robinson said. "I took him out of the Purdue game when we found out his shoulder had been knocked out of its socket. He jammed it back in with the other hand and said, 'Why did you take me out?'

"He punishes tacklers like no one I've seen," Robinson continued. "You watch all those defensive players patting each other on the back and shouting, 'We're gonna stop Ricky Bell.' Then you watch on the next play, and their heads slam into the ground. He runs right over them."

Last Saturday against Washington State, Bell's durability got an acid test, as the quarterback called his number 51 times.

Bell responded by grinding out 347 yards — equaling the second-best performance ever by a college runner — and scoring two touchdowns in the Trojans' 23-14 victory over the Cougars. The peformance earned him National College Back of the Week honors from The Associated Press.

Robinson, who admits to a bit of hero-worship in Bell's case, said after the triumph over the Cougars, "His rushing total speaks for itself. As far as I'm concerned, he is the best football player of all time.

"The tougher the game got, the tougher he got. He never seemed to act that tired, although people might want to put me in jail for cruelty."

A statistician's error late in the game Saturday night in Seattle may have cost Bell the NCAA single-game rushing record. The statistics indicated Bell had topped Eric Allen's NCAA mark of 350 yards, so Bell didn't carry the last few plays of the contest. As it was, Bell joined Ron Johnson at No. 2 on the one-game rushing list.

Bell is literally making a runaway out of the college rushing race this season. Last season he gained 1,875 yards, falling just six short of Ed Marinaro's single-season mark. But the Trojan senior already has gained 1,007 yards in five games this fall and needs to average just 145 yards per game the rest of the way to top Marinaro's record.

Bell said he gets excited during games and doesn't even notice how many times he carries the ball.

"You get caught up in the game when you're playing and don't realize things like that," he remarked. "I don't mind carrying the ball 51 times. As O.J. Simpson said, I have no plans to join a union."

A marked man in all USC's games, Bell said he seems to be the target of more "cheap shots" than he used to.

"A guy from Iowa sat on my legs for what seemed like five minutes until I finally pushed him off," Bell recalled.

He indicated, however, that he's getting wiser about such things.

"I try to be nice to them, say something like, 'Hey, you guys are hitting hard.' They may say 'That Ricky Bell is not that bad a guy.'

"I may get some edge that way because they won't be out to get me as much."

Bell, who also won Back of the Week honors once last season, this week edged running back James McDougald of Wake Forest and quarterbacks Terry McFarland of McNeese State, Rodney Allison of Texas Tech, Tommy Kramer of Rice, Tim Ellis of Mississippi and Marc Cousins of Wyoming.

Offensive line shines for S.D.

By JIM McCONNELL
PB Staff Writer

Many reasons have been bandied about this fall for the success of the San Dimas High football team, but Saint coach Bob Baiz claims the real strength of his squad has been overlooked.

Baiz, whose Saints are off to a quick 2-0 start in Hacienda League action, feels his team's biggest plus so far has been the play of the offensive line.

The S.D. mentor has the statistics to back up his claim.

"Our five offensive linemen, Bob Tatalovich, Sonny LaFargue, Dave Garrison, Steve Evans and Sean O'Brien, have just been super," Baiz notes. "People are quick to credit our running backs, or our defense, for our success, but the one thing which has pleased me most about this year's team is the play of those five linemen."

All five are seniors. Tatalovich and LaFargue are guards, Garrison and Evans tackles, and O'Brien is the Saints' center.

"Look at our statistics and you can see what a great job those guys are doing," Baiz continued. "We have rushed for 1,033 yards in four games on only 148 carries. That's an average of seven yards a carry, which I think is outstanding for any team at any level. It's obvious with an average like that, the guys up front are doing a great job."

Baiz has a couple other facts to back up the play of his offensive front five.

"Our quarterback, Don Hargett, has yet to be sacked in four games. That plus our running backs have been stopped behind the line only a couple times all year, which again is a tribute to our line play."

Running behind Tatalovich, LaFargue, Garrison, Evans and O'Brien, Bob Pleasant is the leading Saint rusher with 379 yards in four outings. Fred Carter, out with a broken collarbone, had 296 yards on the ground in three games, while his replacement, Perry Aris, has already amassed 211 yards. QB Hargett has clipped in with 131, including some key yardage in last week's Hacienda win over rival Bonita.

"Don did a fine job last week against Bonita," Baiz noted. "He caught them off-guard with his runs up the middle, and kept them from keying on our other backs. He is also throwing the ball better each time out, and that has also helped out our running game."

The Saints and Alta Loma are the only two H.L. teams still unbeaten after two league outings. Most observers figured Baiz' crew to be right in the thick of the Hacienda pennant race, but Alta Loma has been the surprise team of the loop so far, ringing up 78 points in two contests while allowing only six.

"Yes, I'm afraid Alta Loma is very much for real," responded Baiz when quizzed about the Braves. "They have two excellent running backs in Mike Munoz and Rob Ward, and their quarterback Dave Silva has been outstanding. It will be interesting to see how they do this week against Walnut. It will be a good test for both schools."

Walnut, at 1-1 after last week's drubbing of Sierra Vista, faces a "must-win" situation against Alta Loma. Meanwhile, the Saints have what looks to be a "breather" vs. winless Gladstone, but Baiz isn't buying that theory.

"I don't take anyone for granted in this league," the veteran Saint skipper said. "Anybody can beat us if they catch us napping. I'm sure before the season is out Gladstone will sneak up on someone, I just hope it isn't us."

Graig Nettles outshines Brett

NEW YORK (AP) — This is the tale of two third basemen.

George Brett plays the position for the Kansas City Royals. When he made two errors in the first game of the American League playoff series against the New York Yankees, he had a straight-forward answer.

"I never said I was good fielder," he said. "I'm a good hitter."

That can be confirmed by his .333 average, highest in the American League this season, and six hits in 10 swings against the Yankees in the playoffs.

Graig Nettles plays the position for the Yankees. He batted .254 during the regular season but led the American League in home runs with 32—half as many as the entire Royals' club collected. And during the playoffs, he's been a virtual vacuum at third base, as well as contributing a vital RBI-single in New York's 5-3 third-game victory Tuesday night.

And this is the tale of a double by Lou Piniella—a ball that got past Brett and started a Yankee comeback that wiped out a 3-0 deficit and beat the Royals in the pivotal third game.

"The ball was catchable," said Kansas City Manager Whitey Herzog.

"Definitely catchable," agreed Brett. "This year, I have made some of those plays and missed some of them."

He missed this one and a moment later, Chris Chambliss walloped a two-run homer that put Yankees back in the ball game.

Two innings later, New York overtook the Royals, rallying for three runs as Herzog paraded four relief pitchers to the mound, trying to stop them. Thurman Munson and Elliott Maddox had key doubles in the comeback inning but it was a ringing single by Nettles that delivered the go-ahead run."

"That was the biggest hit of my career," Nettles said.

And Herzog's only comment was somewhat grim.

"The Yankee third baseman has played better than mine in this series," he said.

Harsh words but they ring true. Nettles has made some outstanding defensive plays and delivered some timely hits against the Royals. And while Brett's bat has been productive, his glove has not.

When the Royals score runs, you can usually find Brett's bat in the middle of the production. It was no different Tuesday night as Kansas City touched up Dock Ellis for three first-inning runs. Brett drove home the first one with a base hit and then scored the second on a sacrifice fly by John Mayberry.

It seemed for a while that Ellis might not survive the inning, especially after Tom Poquette's double made it 3-0.

Kansas City starter Andy Hassler rode the 3-0 lead into the fourth and then with two out, Piniella drilled a ball between Brett and the third base bag. "Catchable," decided Herzog, "but it would have been an outstanding play if he made it."

He did not and the Royals paid dearly for the oversight when, two pitches later, Chambliss homered.

Two innings later, New York took the lead. Roy White opened with a walk and Munson doubled to right field. That finished Hassler and Marty Pattin relieved. His only job was to issue an intentional walk to pinch-hitter Carlos May, loading the bases.

Now Herzog, employing his left-hander strategy which calls for as many southpaws as he can find to face the Yankees, went to Tom Hall.

Nettles responded to the challenge with a run-scoring single—the hit he called the biggest of his career—and the Yanks were on top to stay.

Suns whip L.A.

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (AP) — Alvin Adams scored 29 points and Paul Westphal added 23, including a key threepoint play late in the game, as the Phoenix Suns whipped the Los Angeles Lakers 116-110 in a National Basketball Association exhibition game Tuesday night.

The Lakers, down by as much as 18 points in the third period, staged a fourth period rally and closed to 106-104 with 2:08 left to play on a pair of baskets by Lucius Allen.

But Westphal took the inbounds pass and went the length of the court to score and added a foul shot to put Phoenix in front 109-104 and the Suns stayed in front easily the rest of the way.

The loss dropped the Lakers' preseason mark to 1-3 while Phoenix snapped a three-game losing streak and evened its exhibition mark at 3-3.

Allen led Laker scorers with 25 points.

SAL's balance worries Damien coach

By MIKE BROSSART
PB Staff Writer

Damien High football coach Dick Larson is aware that the San Antonio League is a very balanced league.

His Spartans were co-champs last year and made it to the third round of the CIF playoffs. Favored to repeat as titlists, they have followed a season-opening loss to San Dimas with three straight wins. Damien is one of only two teams (Garey is the other) to win its first two SAL games.

But Larson doesn't take any thing for granted, including Damien's Friday night date at Montclair. The Cavaliers, winless in league play since 1974, arose to knock off Upland Friday and Larson knows that will work in Montclair's favor this week.

"I'm sure Rich Bare (coach of the Cavs) has them sky-high over there," said Larson. "There's something about winning; it's a good feeling — once you get a taste of it you want to do it again. I don't think this will be an easy week for us at all.

"I'd certainly love to have Kent Gurney (Montclair's star running back, defensive back, kicking and kick return specialist) on my team. And he's not the only talent on that team by any means."

Larson is generally pleased with the way his team is shaping up, he says, "especially since we haven't been as healthy as we'd like to be."

The major injury to strike the Spartan squad was suffered by senior quarterback Brian Potter early in the first game of the year. A bone chip in Potter's right (throwing) hand required the insertion of a metal pin, and a visit to the doctor this week is expected to determine how soon he can return to action. Larson hopes that Potter, who has been running extensively to stay in shape since his injury, will be back on the field in a week or two.

Junior Dan Marconi has filled in ably for Potter, making him one of several Spartans who were not expected to be starters but who have done good jobs in that roll.

"We've had quite a few Mickey Mouse injuries — nothing too serious — but the players filling in have done well." John Davis and Tom Lopez at offensive ends, John Rayburn at running back, Mark Leavens at linebacker, Jim Abacherli at guard, and Gil Garcia at safety are some of the players who have impressed Larson, though several of them are playing unfamiliar positions.

Two players who will probably miss Friday night's action are linebacker Art Delgado (hyperextended elbow) and linebacker-tight end Mike O'Neill (twisted ankle).

Damien has certainly had no trouble putting points on the board this year, scoring 94 points in four games. But Spartan opponents have been nearly as productive, with 85 points in those four contests. But Larson isn't overly concerned about his defense. "Actually," he said, "24 of those points have been the direct result of offensive mistakes — fumbles and pass interceptions.

"One thing that does bother me is giving up a touchdown right before halftime, which we did against both Ganesha and Pomona. We want to be able to use up the clock on defense in that situation, and we're working on it."

Jockey has 166

Teenager big winner

CHICAGO (AP) — Steve Cauthen, son of a Walton, Ky., blacksmith, started breaking yearlings when he was 12 and straining for the time he would be 16 so he could become an apprentice jockey.

Since reaching that age last May, the boy from the farm has booted home 166 winners.

Sizzling Steve, now riding at Hawthorne Park in suburban Chicago, is being touted by horsemen as "the next Eddie Arcaro."

The 5-foot-1, 92-pounder, who will earn his journeyman papers around Kentucky Derby time next year, said that when he went to races he studied the jockeys.

"I watched what Shoemaker could do with his hands, the way Baeza rode straight and flat. And when I went out to ride, I'd copy guys like Cordero and Pincay'' he said. "At Churchill Downs on May 12 I got my first mount, a 136-1 shot named King of Swat. We finished next to last."

Cauthen finally arrived at River Downs near Cincinnati and had his first winner with Red Pipe, scoring by 1½ lengths. By the time the River Downs meeting ended on Labor Day, he had entered the winner's circle 94 times in 106 days, eclipsing a record of 88 set by Carlos Marquez in 1968.

Cauthen made two weekly visits to Arlington Park in August, riding a winner each time, then took up residence there Sept. 7. Before Arlington closed, he had 40 winners in 164 mounts, including five winners in one afternoon. Money started to show on him in the mutuels and he began getting some very lively mounts.

Phil Georgeff, veteran Chicago track announcer, says he never has seen Steve get in trouble or even in close quarters.

"I've seen him in more than 150 races. He never makes an abrupt move," says Georgeff. "Several times his horses have been bumped, but he stays smooth and cool. It's hard to believe sometimes how he gets himself out of potentially dangerous situations. Not since Arcaro have I seen such a low profile in the saddle."

Veteran jockey Phil Rubbicco says Steve sits lower than any jockey he has seen and "he hardly every uses the stick (whip)."

Cauthen stays with close friends of his parents, trainer Chuck Tailiaferro and his wife. He says after Hawthorne he will go to Churchill Downs and then to Florida.

"In Florida I'm getting a tutor and taking a correspondence course so I can finish high school," he said.

Cauthen takes sprints, route races and grass races all in stride.

"They're all different, just like horses, and I'm not particular" he said. "The thing you have to do is let your horse do what he does best."

HE'S OFF! — Steve Cauthen, 16, of Walton, Ky., wearing No. 9, breaks from starting gate in Cicero, Ill., recently. Since reaching 16 last May, Cauthen has booted home 166 winners.

IOC asked to break deadlock on China

BARCELONA, Spain (AP) Adrian Paulen, one of Europe's veteran sports administrators, called on the International Olympic Committee (IOC) Tuesday to break the deadlock on China before the next Olympic Games.

The 74-year-old Dutch president of the International Amateur Athletic Federation (IAAF) said the solution could be a change of name by the Republic of China (Taiwan).

"My federation may ask the Taiwanese to drop the name of the Republic of China," Paulen said. "If all the federations acted together, the Taiwanese might agree.

"What we need is a strong lead from the IOC. If the IOC were to make a bold decision on China, the federations would follow."

The IOC executive board is meeting with the federations here this week, and China is one of the topics. The IOC is seeking a formula to try to avoid a repetition of the events at the Montreal Olympics, when the Canadian government shut out the Taiwanese because they insisted on calling themselves the Republic of China.

The 26 federations which control the Olympic sports are split over China. Sixteen, like the IOC, recognize Taiwan. Nine favor the People's Republic of China, the Communist mainland.

Mainland China consistently refuses to belong to anything alongside the Taiwanese.

The IAAF, one of the most important federations in the Olympic movement, is firmly faithful to Taiwan.

"There is no prospect of my federation withdrawing recognition from the Taiwanese," Paulen said. "There is no reason why we should do that.

"But we could ask them to change their name. We are waiting for the IOC to give a lead."

At Montreal the IOC tried to save the Taiwanese by asking them to drop the name of the Republic of China for this occasion only. The Taiwanese refused, saying they could not take such a step at short notice.

Meanwhile, none of the 15 federations which recognize Taiwan shows any sign of changing its position.

Charles Palmer, president of the International Judo Federation, said: "We recognize Taiwan, and that is that. If Mainland China applies to us for recognition with the usual conditions—that we drop Taiwan—then it's no deal. If the Chinese apply without conditions, we will consider it."

Javier Ostos, Mexican president of the International Swimming Federation (FINA), said: "We discussed this fully two years ago, and we decided to continue to recognize Taiwan. There is no prospect of a change in our position."

Mrs. Inger Frith, Danish-born president of the International Archery Federation, said: "Mainland China used to be affiliated, but withdrew. It was nothing to do with the two Chinas. They said there were imperialist influences in the sport.

"Now we recognize Taiwan. There has been no application from Peking for recognition."

Taiwan, and not Mainland China, is also recognized by the federations controlling gymnastics, pentathlon, cycling, handball, field hockey, luge, skiing, soccer, shooting, yachting, boxing and equestrianism.

But Communist China is accepted in the world organizations of rowing, basketball, canoeing, fencing, weightlifting, ice hockey, wrestling, skating and volleyball.

Lord Killanin, president of the IOC, said in an interview it is now up to him to decide when to take up an invitation to visit Mainland China.

"I shall probably go soon, but I do not expect to learn anything that would help solve this problem," he said.

Meanwhile the federations were expected to discuss a plan, hatched by Palmer, to exclude all international sport events in Canada for the next 10 years, as a reprisal for the Canadian government's action against the Taiwanese. This plan has not yet been discussed by the IOC.

Palmer also wants a five-year ban on the Africa countries which pulled their athletes out of the Montreal Games as a protest against a New Zealand rugby team touring apartheid South Africa.

That is another burning topic being discussed by the IOC and the federations this week.

Ray signs, Wilkes may play out option

OAKLAND (AP) — Golden State Warriors center Clifford Ray has signed a new contract, but star forward Jamaal Wilkes remains unsigned and could play out his option this year, it was reported Tuesday.

The Warriors refused to reveal the terms of Ray's new pact, but it is believed to be a high six-figure deal over three years. The signing means the Warriors may carry three centers into the regular season, with Ray, George Johnson and rookie Robert Parish now on the roster.

Scotty Stirling, assistant to the president, said negotiations with Wilkes are continuing. He said neither Wilkes or his agent had indicated the possibility Wilkes might play out his option and seek a better deal elsewhere.

Coach Al Attles said no further cuts are planned until after Saturday's clash with the Los Angeles Lakers. The team must be down to the regulation 12 players by Oct. 22 when they play their National Basketball Association season opener against the New York Nets.

L.A. picked by 9 points

RENO, Nev. (AP) — The San Francisco 49ers are eight-point favorites over the New Orleans Saints and the Oakland Raiders are three-point picks over the Denver Broncos Sunday in listings supplied by Harrah's Reno-Tahoe Racebook.

Other pro games: Miami over Kansas City by 12; Washington over Detroit by 2; Seattle and Tampa Bay even; Cincinnati over Pittsburgh by 4; Cleveland over Atlanta by 4; Baltimore over Buffalo by 7; Green Bay over Philadelphia by 2; Minnesota over New York Giants by 11; Houston over San Diego by 4; Dallas over St. Louis by 4; Los Angeles over Chicago by 9; and New England over New York Jets by 13.

Quotes

UCLA linebacker Jerry Robinson, who made 21 tackles against Stanford, giving him 101 in five games: "I get so many tackles because I have speed. Speed alone does it. That's way I'm always in the area of the ball."

Sports briefs

LONDON (AP) — Joe Bugner came out of retirement with a vengeance Tuesday night to knock out ex-paratrooper Richard Dunn in the first round and regain the European, British and Commonwealth heavyweight crowns at the Empire Pool Stadium.

The 26-year-old Hungarian refugee floored the bewildered Dunn twice then knocked him out in a whirlwind two minutes, 14 seconds.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jack Kent Cooke, owner of the Los Angeles Lakers and Kings, has been sued for divorce by his wife of 42 years.

Mrs. Barbara Cooke filed the Superior Court petition Tuesday, citing irreconcilable differences.

Cooke, 63, and his wife, 59, were married in Toronto in 1934 and separated last July 2. They have two sons, Ralph, 39, and John, 35.

Mrs. Cooke's petition for community property estimated her husband's worth at about $100 million but said the exact amount was not known.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Free agent quarterback Roman Gabriel signed a contract with the Philadelphia Eagles Tuesday after passing a series of physical tests that confirmed his right knee has recovered from a fifth operation.

Gabriel, 36, was the National Football League team's top signal-caller for last year's 4-10 season. He became a free agent in May but was verbally committed to rejoin the team after rehabilitating his knee.

Gabriel is expected to serve as backup to quarterback Mike Boryla, who has led the Eagles to a 2-3 record so far this season.

The Eagles will have to release one player from their 43-man squad to make room for Gabriel.

SAN DIEGO (AP)—A former partner in the San Diego Jaws says the North American Soccer League team will announce its move to Las Vegas Oct. 19.

"The Jaws are definitely leaving," Steve Zaret said Tuesday. "Their players and coaches were in Las Vegas this week looking for quarters. They've scheduled a press conference Oct. 19 to announce it."

Zaret said the team will close its offices in San Diego shortly.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Steelers said Tuesday they have invited Neil Graff to tryout for a spot behind injured quarterback Terry Bradshaw.

Graff, 26, was cut by the Seattle Seahawks, a National Football League expansion team, after two preseason games.

Graff was originally drafted by the Minnesota Vikings in 1972 and spent that season on the taxi squad. He was cut in 1973 and did not play football that year.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Veteran outfielder Lou Brock will become a player-coach next year for baseball's St. Louis Cardinals, new manager Vern Rapp announced Tuesday.

Joining the 37-year-old Brock on Rapp's coaching staff will be Mo Mozzali, a Cardinal scout for about 15 years. Brock will handle the outfielders and baserunning, Rapp said, while Mozzali, 54, will be the Cardinals' hitting coach. The remaining three positions on the coaching staff are to be filled later.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Danny Ozark, who piloted the Philadelphia Phillies to the title in the National League East Division, was named major league manager of the year Tuesday by the Sporting News, a weekly publication.

The 52-year-old Ozark, in balloting by American and National League managers, outpolled the Kansas City Royals' Whitey Herzog by a single vote.

New York Yankees catcher Thurman Munson was named American League player of the year by the Sporting News and Cincinnati Reds outfielder George Foster the player of the year in the National League.

SAN DIEGO (AP)—Veteran pro John Block is a new assistant coach at San Diego State University after 10 years in the National Basketball Association.

The 6-foot-10 forward-center has played for the Los Angeles Lakers, Milwaukee Bucks, Philadelphia 76ers, Kansas City Kings, New Orleans Jazz, Chicago Bulls and San Diego Rockets.

After playing at the University of Southern California, Block was the Lakers' second-round draft pick. He made the NBA East All-Star team in 1973 with the 76ers.

Block, 32, is one of two aides Tim Vezie, head coach of the Aztecs.

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. — Bjorn Borg of Sweden took a one-point lead in the World Invitational Tennis Classic as he teamed with Sue Barker of Britain to defeat Arthur Ashe and Evonne Goolagong 6-2, 6-2.

MADRID — Top-seeded Guillermo Vilas of Argentina eliminated John James of Australia 6-0, 6-3 to advance to the third round of the $75,000 Madrid Grand Prix Tennis Tournament.

NEW YORK (AP) — Pitcher Jim Palmer of the Baltimore Orioles was named Tuesday by the American League as winner of the fourth annual Joe Cronin Award for "significant achievement in baseball."

Palmer, whose 22 victories were the most in the league this season, was presented with the award prior to Tuesday night's playoff game between the New York Yankees and the Kansas City Royals.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. — The State Supreme Court refused to allow the National Collegiate Athletic Association to force the University of Oklahoma to reduce its football coaching staff.

NEW YORK — Point in Time, $15.80, captured the $25,000 Miss Dogwood Handicap at Belmont Park, edging Island Venture at the wire.

Hoople appears in high gear

By AMOS B. HOOPLE
Fearless Forecaster

Major Hoople's Football Forecast

Egad, friends, I am flushed with success this week, to borrow a phrase from our neighborhood plumber, Ignatz Bogle!

The Hoople system moved into high gear last week, correctly picking 15 of 18 valley grid tilts. Only blemishes on the Hoople name were Montclair's upset of Upland and La Verne's defeat to Azusa Pacific in the college ranks. Ontario Christian and Valley Christian tied, all of which leaves my season mark at a lofty 58-19-6. Jove, that's 75 percent! Let other pigskin "pickers" try to top that!

Now down to the business — heh-heh — at hand. Correctly tabbing the ups and downs of the San Antonio League is giving this correspondent gray hairs before his time, but here goes with another week's predictions.

Damien and Garey will stay atop the pack — barely. The Spartans will get a scare from Montclair before besting the much-improved Cavaliers, 22-13. The Vikings will have a tussle of their own with Upland, as that contest will go down to the wire before the Pomona lads prevail, 19-18.

Other SAL battles should see Pomona notch its first win of the season, 19-14 over Claremont, and Chino also hit the win column for the first time this fall with a narrow 14-13 nod over Ganesha.

Over in the Hacienda League, the situation is the same as the two frontrunners will continue to get rich. San Dimas should have no trouble at all with Gladstone, prevailing by a 22-6 count. Alta Loma will have it tougher, but the Braves still figure to best Walnut, 14-8.

Other Hacienda clashes will see Royal Oak downing Ontario 19-14 and Bonita bombing hapless Sierra Vista, 33-7.

And, for you folks who like lots of scoring, head east to the San Bernardino Orange Show on Friday. There Chaffey and Eisenhower will open their Citrus Belt League season on a wild note, as the Tigers will outlast Ike by a huge 36-33 count!

Lone winner on the local college scene among four-year schools figures to be Pomona-Pitzer, with a 48-7 laugher over Cal Tech. Cal Poly and La Verne will both fall in road games, Poly by a 29-22 score at Northern Arizona and La Verne by a 26-20 margin at Cal Lutheran.

Citrus and Chaffey will continue their winning ways at the JC level with victories in Mission Conference play, but Mt. San Antonio will see its winning streak snapped by South Coast Conference power Grossmont.

The Owls will out-gun San Diego City College 29-14, while the Panthers will nip Palomar 19-18. However, Grossmont will prove a bit much for MSAC, as the Griffins will stop the Mounties 21-18.

There's big doings on the national level in the Big Eight Conference, with all members meeting league foes. Would you believe that, including this Saturday's engagements, the four games featuring these eight teams have been contested a total of 223 times? Jove, that's a lot of football!

For the record, here is how they line up: Nebraska vs. Kansas State (61st renewal); Oklahoma vs. Kansas (their 74th joust); Missouri vs. Iowa State (for the 69th time), and the baby of the series, Oklahoma State vs. Colorado (their 19th meeting).

Reading from the top, here is how the Hoople System sizes 'em up: Nebraska 37, Kansas State 7, in a cake walk; Oklahoma 31, Kansas 28, in a real barn-burner; Missouri 22, Iowa State 18, in another thriller-chiller, and Colorado 28, Oklahoma State 17, in a good, tough football game.

About half a dozen times a year, your faithful correspondent wishes he were twins so he could witness two games the same day. This Saturday would that we could be quadruplets so we could take in four great intra-state engagements which are always firercely contested. At Tallahasse, The Florida State Seminoles will host the Florida Gators with 40,500 shrill spectators on hand. Alas, your Fearless Forecaster has bad news for the Seminole adherents as our reports indicate a Gator triumph 26-12.

Also down south, the North Carolina State Wolfpack will invade Chapel Hill to engage the North Carolina Tar Heels. The latter has dominated this series — 43-16-6 — and this week should rack up victory No. 44. North Carolina's prize runner Mike Voight, who averages better than 100 yards rushing per contest, will give the Tar Heels the edge, 25-10.

Offensively, Larson was displeased with the Spartans' blocking in their 25-23 win over Pomona last week. "I like to think that we're better blockers than we showed in that game," he said.

Damien at Montclair, 7:30 p.m.
Garey at Upland, 7:30 p.m.
Saturday's game
Pomona vs. Claremont at Citrus College, 7:30 p.m.

Damien is blessed with a number of good running backs. Leo Burke and Jason Wight gain most of the Spartans' ground yardage (as well as a good share of the passing yardage as receivers) but Rayburn and Doug Paul also run well with the ball.

Damien's co-leader, Garey, will head for Upland Friday night while Ganesha visits Chino. Pomona and Claremont will wait until Saturday evening to clash at Citrus College.

The Viking-Highlander confrontation will pit a defense that does not give up many points — Garey's — against an offense that does not score much — Upland's.

Garey's opponents have managed just 33 points in four games, and just seven points in two SAL games. Meanwhile, the Scots have scored just five touchdowns in four games — and have yet to score an extra point! Garey is 3-0-1 on the year while Upland is 1-3 and 1-1 in league play.

Chino (0-2, 0-3-1) has also scored just five TDs, but has made five extra points, thanks to the kicking of Tony Gonzales. Ganesha (1-1, 1-3) finally got untracked last week in an 18-14 triumph over Claremont.

Claremont (1-1, 1-3) will try to keep Pomona (0-2, 0-4) winless. The Red Devils have lost two SAL games, each by a two-point margin.

Saints tough to stop

In addition to Walnut, Bonita and Royal Oak also face key games in the Hacienda League chase. The Bearcats must rebound from their loss to San Dimas to beat Sierra Vista Friday, or it could be the end of another H.L. crown for the La Verne school.

Friday's games
Alta Loma vs. Walnut at MSAC, 8 p.m.
Sierra Vista at Bonita, 8 p.m.
Ontario vs. Royal Oak at Charter Oak High, 8 p.m.

Royal Oak, another traditional Hacienda powerhouse, faces Ontario Friday. The Romans, at 1-1, are in the same boat as Walnut and Bonita. They can't afford to slip against a less-talented opponent.

If the Saints and the Braves stay unbeaten, it's going to be a while before the two grid powers clash. They are slated to meet Nov. 5 at Chaffey College, the week before the end of the regular season.

The Saints do appear to have the slight edge in the race at this point, having played toughies Walnut and Bonita already while Alta Loma has yet to face the better teams in the H.L.

However, the Braves' season stats are awesome, which means they must be doing a lot of things right. In four games, they have held opponents to a net of 213 yards in total offense, including only 104 yards rushing.

That figure is amazing enough by itself, but consider this additional fact: It has taken Alta Loma's foes 101 attempts to reach the 104-yard mark. That means the Braves' opponents have averaged only one yard per rush all year!

Wicks glad to join Celts

BOSTON (AP) — "I'm a winning basketball player and I like to be around winners."

That's all cocky forward Sidney Wicks has to say about his heralded move from the sleeping Portland Trail Blazers to the Boston Celtics, holders of the National Basketball Association crown.

Wicks, whose contract was purchased in a straight cash deal Tuesday, was to arrive here today to join the Celtics and confer with team officials.

He can't miss the 13 championship banners hanging from the rafters of Boston Garden. Another attraction for him is that here basketball is usually played through May, and Wicks likes the longer season.

"I'm looking forward to being in Boston. I know the Celtics — a great bunch of guys — so I think I'll fit in there well," said the 6-foot-9, 225-pound player who was on his option year at Portland.

"I think they think so also. Otherwise they wouldn't have negotiated with me," he added.

Wicks, a product of powerful UCLA, came to Portland in 1971, the second college player in the nation drafted that year. He is the Trail Blazers' all-time leading scorer with 8,882 points in five seasons.

He averaged 22.3 points a game and 10.3 rebounds with Portland but the team failed to make any playoffs during his tenure.

"What can I say but whoopee!" Celtics' Coach Tommy Heinsohn exulted from Denver before Boston lost to the Nuggets 108-104 in an exhibition match.

"I think he's a super ballplayer. He knows what it takes to be a champion. He liked the taste of being a winner when he played at UCLA — let's hope that attitude comes with him to Boston," Heinsohn added.

Although Wicks has not yet signed a Celtics' contract beyond 1976-1977, agent Sam Gilbert says Boston has offered a "very generous" long-term proposal. No details were disclosed.

Wicks was sold to the New Orleans Jazz this year but became Portland property again when he refused to report. He then made it known he was looking to join another ballclub.

Red Auerbach, the Celtics' president and general manager, compared Wicks with the legendary forwards of the game — Elgin Baylor, Bob Pettit and Heinsohn.

"We saw a golden opportunity to get a super player and we grabbed it," Auerbach said. Irving Levin, chairman of the Celtics' board, negotiated the deal in Portland.

Injuries slow Bronco runners

The Cal Poly cross country squad, its two top runners injured two weeks ago, did not perform up to its capabilities in last Saturday's triangular meet at Puddingstone Lake, topping Cal State Los Angeles in dual meet competition but finishing third in the triangular.

Bronco Greg Morrison was forced to drop out of the meet about three-and-a-half miles into the five-mile course because of tendonitis in his left knee. Cal Poly's top harrier, Mark Lotich, had to settle for seventh in the triangular with a 29:54 time. Lotich is suffering from a strained left food.

The Broncos will not see action again until Oct. 23, when they visit UC Riverside for an 11 a.m. meeting.

The triangular meet was the Broncos' only "home" meet of the year. In the dual meets, Cal Poly beat Cal State LA 26-29, and lost to Cal State Northridge 16-46. CSN topped CSLA 23-58.

The triangular scores were CSN — 24, CSLA — 55, and Cal Poly Pomona — 62.

"We're going to rest up now and try to get these injured guys healthy," said Broncos' coach Jum George. "We're not even going to worry about Riverside — first we'll get everybody ready and then start working back from there."

Accused 'spy' calls Royal's charges 'lies'

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Lonnie Williams, the man Texas Coach Darrell Royal accused of spying on Longhorn practice for Oklahoma, Tuesday night labeled the charges a "bunch of lies."

"It's a bunch of lies, all of it," Williams said. "How could one person be in all those places they're talking about?

"I'll tell you what the whole thing is about. Darrell Royal's trying to divert attention from the kind of coaching job he's doing. He has lost one game, he almost lost another.

"The whole thing is ridiculous. It's getting almost comical anymore. If they keep this up, I'm going to come down hard on someone. They're all liars."

Williams refused to say whether he had consulted with an attorney, or was contemplating a lawsuit.

Royal claimed that Williams spied on Longhorn practices and then relayed the information to Larry Lacewell, the Sooner defensive coach who has known Williams for years.

He also has been accused of spying on Oklahoma State, Arkansas and Colorado.

Williams has been unavailable for comment since the allegations began Friday, but said Tuesday that he was not "running from anyone."

He said he was in the process of moving his family to an Oklahoma City suburb.

Also, he said, he attended Saturday's OU-Texas game in Dallas with his wife and four children.

Williams said he is employed "in the oil business" and has worked since February for C.W. Culpepper of Oklahoma City.

Williams said he has been living since February at a motel near the Will Rogers World Airport in Oklahoma City.

"I've been staying there during the week and commuting back to Dallas to see my family on the weekends," he said.

He said he was primarily a salesman for Culpepper and travels "all over the country."

Williams also denied allegations by former acquaintances that he told them he was spying.

He said Jerry Morgan, a former Dallas business partner, was upset because of their soured business deal. Williams said he and Morgan failed in the construction business, and that since then Williams had worked for a pipeline firm.

Williams said he met Tony Herry of Houston while working for the pipeline firm. Herry also has alleged Williams told him about spying.

"You know what Tony Herry has around his office?" Williams said. "He has pictures of Texas football players. He even said he played for Texas. Now would I go and tell him if I had been spying on Texas?"

Williams said he isn't even sure where Stillwater, home of Oklahoma State, is, "and Arkansas. Why would I spy for them? The only guy I know at Arkansas is Jimmy Johnson (line coach and former Sooner aide). I bet I haven't been to Denver 10 times in my life, and then mostly it was just to change planes."

JC releaguing plan postponed

Citrus College's battle in hopes of dissuading the state Junior College Committee on Athletics from releaguing the school wasn't a complete victory last Thursday, but it wasn't a defeat either.

The Committee voted to table the proposal presented by its releaguing subcommittee at last week's meeting in Los Angeles. Instead, a poll of all Southland JC's will be conducted as to their feelings on the proposal, and the results will be forwarded to the COA meeting in December.

The Owls had been scheduled to join seven other JCs in a new league next fall. Citrus forwarded a letter to the COA asking to be taken out of the new alignment because of significantly smaller enrollment and lesser number of feeder high schools than the other seven schools. Also cited by the Citrus athletic department in opposition to the planned league were the hazards of time of travel, and the lack of traditional rivalries between Citrus and the other schools.

"We feel the action taken last week was fair," explained Citrus Athletic Director Ed Conly. "This way, every Southern California school has a chance to be counted on in this matter, instead of just six people on the releaguing committee."

Conly said he was impressed with the actions of the COA, particularly the northern members who admitted they did not have enough information pro and con on the releaguing matter.

"Our biggest objection in this was the use by the subcommittee of wrong attendance figures," Conly added. "15 of the 48 schools cited had incorrect figures, and we were happy the COA recognized problems in the submitted information and delayed action.

"I think they also recognized there isn't the rush that the subcommittee cited in approving the measure. If releaguing is approved in December, we'll still have time to organize our schedules for next year."

The proposal had the Owls moving out of the Mission Conference and into a new alignment with L.A. Trade Tech, L.A. Pierce, L.A. City, L.A. Valley, Ventura, Moorpark and Santa Barbara. Replacing Citrus and Saddleback in the M.C. would have been Mt. San Antonio and Rio Hondo.

Poly nabs 'V' ball win

The Cal Poly women's volleyball team beat host Biola College 15-9, 15-8 Tuesday afternoon.

The win gives the Poly women a 2-3 season mark. They will continue volleyball activity today with a home match vs. Cal State Bakersfield. That match will get underway at 3 p.m. at Kellogg gym.

Big meets loom for JC harriers

Cross country showdowns loom in the South Coast and Mission conferences this week.

In the SCC, Mt. San Antonio will collide with Grossmont at Grossmont. Both teams are unbeaten on the year so the meet will decide the SCC dual meet championship.

The Mounties and Griffins, along with Santa Ana, will go at it Friday at 3 p.m. in El Cajon.

Over in the Mission Conference, Citrus College will host Palomar and Chaffey Friday in a double dual meet which will settle the M.C. title.

The host Owls stand at 3-1 in conference, while Chaffey and Palomar are both unbeaten at 4-0. The three teams will race at 4:15 p.m. at the Monrovia Nursery, the Owls' home course.

Expected to lead the Mounties vs. Grossmont are freshmen Dave Tillery, Barry Boettcher and Joe Ebiner, along with letterman Cip Gomez. Other Mountie harriers include Billy Jones, Gary Smith, Neal Ward and Kevin Kellogg.

Top Citrus runners are Tom McCann, Mike Caballero and Parry Kleinsasser. Other Owl runners include local prep products Mike Green (Bonita) and Doug Moore (San Dimas).

Claremont netters still unbeaten

The Claremont High girls' tennis team stayed unbeaten on the year Tuesday afternoon with an impressive showing at Montclair.

The Claremont varsity squad downed Montclair 6-0 and the J.V. team beat the hosts 5-0. Both squads sport perfect records on the year, 8-0, and in San Antonio League action, 4-0.

The play of Connie Elwell in singles and the doubles teams of Kathy and Karen Claussen and Carin and Colleen Christian sparked the Wolfpack varsity Tuesday, while the J.V.s did not allow a single point to Montclair.

Elsewhere in the SAL, Ganesha scored a "shutout" of its own, as the Giant girls downed host Garey 6-0. Ganesha's varsity mark now stands at 2-1-1 for SAL matches.

In a Hacienda League match, Bonita opened loop play with a narrow 11½ to 11 win over Alta Loma. The Bonita J.V.s also won, 16½ to 6.

Cathy Branam with a singles victory and Sherry Branam and Marsha Huff in doubles sparked the Bearkittens to the win.

Rangers' rookie has fun

By Associated Press

Don Murdoch thinks playing in the National Hockey League is fun. So would you if you had just scored five goals in one game.

The 19-year-old Murdoch, a rookie right wing with the New York Rangers, beat Minnesota goaltender Gary Smith five times Tuesday night to highlight the Rangers' 10-4 romp of the North Stars. He set a team record with the five-goal spree and tied the NHL mark for goals in a game by a rookie, which was established by Howie Meeker in 1947.

"I had a couple of four-goal games in juniors," said Murdoch, who scored 88 goals with his junior club at Medicine Hat last year and has eight in three NHL games. "But never five. I hope the NHL stays this much fun."

In other NHL games, the New York Islanders registered their second shutout in three games this season with a 7-0 triumph over the Atlanta Flames and the defending Stanley Cup champion Montreal Canadiens handed the Detroit Red Wings their first loss of the season, 4-2.

In the World Hockey Association, the Quebec Nordiques scored a come-from-behind 6-4 victory over the San Diego Mariners and the Birmingham Bulls topped the Calgary Cowboys 6-2.

"I figure I have a pretty good shot: not that hard, but accurate," Murdoch noted. "In the summers back home, I rig up a netting in my backyard and practice at hitting the net, shooting maybe 200 times a day."

Rangers Coach John Ferguson, who made Murdoch New York's first draft pick last summer, admitted that "There was never any question about his abilities. He has a lot of natural talent."

Islanders 7, Flames 0

Islanders' goaltender Glenn Resch got some help from his friend, "Gary Goalpost," in picking up his second shutout and third win of the season.

"The two toughest saves tonight were made by 'Gary Goalpost,'" said Resch. "I am surprised by the two shutouts. I guess I shouldn't be when you have the posts to help out."

Also helping out was Bob Nystrom, who scored twice, including the first of a team record three goals within a 53-second span in the second period. Ed Westfall and Jean Potvin completed the record spree.

Canadiens 4, Red Wings 2

Guy Lafleur started an onslaught against Detroit goaltender Ed Giacomin at 7:03 of the second period to tie the game at 1-1 and the Canadiens added another three goals in the period.

"When you have a little lapse against a good club," said Giacomin, who shut out Buffalo in his first game this season, "they can pick you apart."

Nordiques 6, Mariners 4

The Nordiques' picked apart San Diego in the final period. Bob Fitchner scored the winner for Quebec after Chris Bordeleau tallied twice. Real Cloutier added a goal and three assists for the Nordiques.

Bulls 4, Cowboys 2

Birmingham's victory over Calgary was sparked by a three-goal first period, with Vaclav Nedomansky scoring the winner.

Cindy Koch sparks Poly field hockey

Cal Poly women's field hockey team travels to play a league contest with foe Long Beach State on Thursday at 3:30 p.m.

"Long Beach State has a new coach (Barbara Longstreth) this year," said Cal Poly coach Jo Oliver. "She coached the national lacrosse team which won the championship this past spring and I feel that with her seasoned experience she will improve the Long Beach State team."

Coach Oliver notes that the fine play of goal keeper Cindy Koch, a junior from Upland High, has sparked the Broncos good record.

"Cindy has been doing best for us defensively," said coach Oliver. "She seems to get stronger every game. She started playing field hockey in her senior year at Upland High, which is pretty late to start the sport. But since coming here, she improves with every game."

CP poloists host Fresno

Coach Stan Jackson and his Cal Poly water polo team hosts Fresno State University on Saturday at 10 a.m. in the campus pool.

The Broncos (9-5) split a pair of close games last weekend, defeating Cal State Hayward 9-8 and falling to UC Davis 8-7.

"Those were both emotionally packed games," said Coach Jackson. "Brian Howland, our freshman goalie, blocked three penalty shots and had 23 saves in the Hayward game.

"It was great experience for our freshmen players to go up north and play. They represented the college really well."

Both the Boston Red Sox and Chicago White Sox had 10-game losing streaks last spring.

Texas Tech QB is hurt

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP) — Texas Tech quarterback Tommy Duniven will miss at least the next three Red Raider football games because of an injury suffered in the first quarter of Saturday's Southwest Conference victory over Texas A&M.

Duniven suffered strained knee ligaments. The right leg will be in a cast for at least three weeks.

Junior Rodney Allison replaced Duniven and guided the Red Raiders to a 27-16 victory.

Cobras place 4th in meet

The Quad Cities Cobras Girls Track Club placed fourth in the nine and under plus the 10-11 age division competition at the Rialto Roadrunners Cross Country Meet held at Perris Hill Park in San Bernardino.

Individual results of the meet for the Cobras were:

Nine and under (one mile) — Karlene Pope 27th, Charlene Pope 37th, Cherie Williamson 44th, Tunya Rowens 46th, Margaret Bradley 47th, Petrina Nielson 49th, Lisa Padilla 51st, Micheie Martinez 53rd. 13 and under novice (one mile) — Myra Martinez 9th, Yvette Robinson 12th, Gavy Aguiliar 14th, Cindy Padilla 15th, Carol Fleck 16th, June Nursement 17th.

Kickers get 2nd win

The undefeated Diamond Bar Kickers (2-0) of the Pacific Soccer League Juniors will host the Torrance United team at noon Saturday at Claremont's El Roble Junior High.

Diamond Bar defeated St. Stephens Soccer Club of Lynwood, 4-1, at Lynwood last Saturday. Goals by Phil Adams and Alan Pitts gave the Kickers a 2-1 halftime advantage and Jeff Ratajczak added two goals in the second half to nail down the victory.

Head coach George Ratajczak praised the defensive efforts of Rocky Crisp, David Price and Mike Spurrier.

UCLA basketball team opens drills

LOS ANGELES — It will be basketball time again at UCLA when Gene Bartow and his Bruins open practice on Friday in Pauley Pavilion.

For his second season as the Bruin coach, Bartow welcomes back nine lettermen from a team that finished with a record of 27-5 and a third place finish in the NCAA Tournament. Topping the list is senior forward Marques Johnson, who passed up a chance to sign a professional contract, deciding instead to play his senior year at UCLA as an All-American candidate.

Not returning from last season's squad are starters Andre McCarter and Richard Washington, as well as reserves Ralph Drollinger and Gavin Smith. But Bartow feels he has the horses with the start of practice not far off.

"We're optimistic about the start of practice," the second year coach says. "The losses we suffered will be felt but there is no reason to feel we won't have a fine team this season."

Johnson, of course, is the key. The senior from Crenshaw High School in Los Angeles was the Bruins' second leading scorer a year ago, averaging 17.3 points per game. He was the Bruins' top rebounder (9.4 per game), field goal shooter (54.0 per cent) and free throw shooter (75.7) a year ago and seemed to get better as the season progressed.

"Marques is perhaps the most talented, entertaining forward in college basketball," says his coach. "After shaking off his back injury last year, he was just phenomenal and we think he will pick up where he left off last season. Over his last 15 games, he was the dominating force in college basketball in at least 10 of them."

Bartow is not sure who will fill the other front court positions, saying only that sophomore David Greenwood will start — somewhere.

"David will start at either forward or center, depending upon the development of (Brett) Vroman and (Wilbert) Olinde," says Bartow. "Our other forward candidates include Marvin Thomas, Chris Lippert and our freshman — James Wilkes, Darrell Allums, Gig Sims and Kiki Vandeweghe."

Who plays the center spot depends on who the forwards are, according to Bartow. "If Greenwood is at center (with Olinde at forward), Brett will push him. If Brett is at center (with Greenwood at forward), Sims and Allums will push him."

Greenwood started the final 15 games of the 1975-76 season at center, averaging 4.9 points per game. Olinde saw limited action, averaging 1.6. The same is true of Vroman, who scored 1.9 ppg.

The backcourt is also wide open right now, according to Bartow. Any of four returning lettermen could earn starting berths and Bartow is sure that "Whichever two guards end up as starters, they will be two of the finest guards on the coast.

"Raymond Townsend started quite a bit for us last year (25 games) while Brad Holland and Jim Spillane saw a lot of action and had some fine moments. Ray Hamilton showed in practice what he is capable of,"says Bartow.

"It's completely wide open and we can look for a real battle. By mid November we'll center on two of them and go from there."

In 1975-76, Townsend averaged 7.9 points per game and shot 51.1 per cent from the field. Holland scored 4.5 ppg (48.9 perper cent), Spillane 3.7 ppg (46.5 per cent) and, in very limited action, Hamilton averaged 1.2 ppg.

The Bruins will open their 27-game season when they host the San Diego State Aztecs on Nov. 26. On Dec. 4, the Bruins will host the Brazilian National team in a game which will not count as one of their 27 contests. Counting that one and the Preview, the Bruins will play before the home crowd 20 times.

NFL schedule tough for Allen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Most people don't believe that the Washington Redskins have a tough schedule this season. Coach George Allen isn't one of them.

"There is no such thing as an easy schedule," Allen said Monday following his team's 33-30 loss to the previously winless Kansas City Chiefs.

"Because we played Oakland, Minnesota, Dallas and St. Louis last year, people think we have an easy schedule. The NFL (National Football League) is tougher than ever.

"There seems to be more upsets than college football," he continued. "It is a very balanced league."

The Redskins face the toughest stretch of their schedule in the next three weeks, against Detroit, an upset winner over New England Sunday, followed by St. Louis and Dallas, all three games at home. The Redskins season clearly will be on the line.

Many experts figured the Redskins to be 5-0 instead of 3-2 at this point in the schedule. They won their first three games, against the New York Giants, Seattle Seahawks and Philadelphia Eagles before losing to the Chicago Bears and Kansas City. They struggled past the Giants and Eagles, two National Conference Eastern Conference foes they will meet again.

Following the Dallas game, the Redskins go on the road for five of their final six games, against San Francisco, the Giants, St. Louis, New York Jets and Dallas. They play the Eagles at home in the 12th game of the season.

The loss to Kansas City, on a 37-yard flea-flicker pass from Mike Livingston to Larry Brunson with 64 seconds remaining, left the Redskins demoralized and, even worse, two games behind unbeaten Dallas in the NFC East. Dallas is 5-0, the Cardinals are in second place at 4-1 and the Redskins 3-2 with three tough games coming up.

"You writers have a tendency to write us off, but we'll be back," said Allen.

Allen said he didn't anticipate any lineup changes against the Lions, especially at quarterback.

"I'm leaning to Joe (Theismann) for Detroit," he said. "Billy (Kilmer) is still having trouble with his shoulder. Joe did a good job. And he's healthy and mobile."

Theismann started Sunday because Kilmer was suffering from a severely bruised right shoulder.

Quotes

"It's strictly a desperation play, one we have had in the book the past two weeks. We'd have used it against Buffalo, but when you are losing 50-17 there is not much point." — Kansas City Coach Paul Wiggin on the trick play that boosted the Chiefs to a 33-30 victory over Washington.

"I regret, and the team regrets, we didn't play with the excitement and enthusiasm the fans deserve." — New York Giants Coach Bill Arnsparger on his team's 24-14 loss to Dallas at the opening of Giants Stadium.

"We had linebackers all over them. Everyone was fired up for this game. Whenever you have someone like O.J. (Simpson) in the backfield, everyone wants a piece of him." — New York Jets rookie linebacker Larry Keller after his team's 17-14 victory over Buffalo.

"We've had our share of luck over the last few years, and now it's going the other way. The Browns beat the hell out of us in the second half." — Pittsburgh Steelers Coach Chuck Noll after his team absorbed its fourth defeat in five games, 18-16 at Cleveland.

"I knew it was in the statistics. It was kind of maddening, more than anything else. I knew I was better than that. More important, everyone else on the team did, too." — Green Bay quarterback Lynn Dickey, the NFL's poorest ranking passer, after throwing for 215 yards in the Packers' 27-20 victory over Seattle.

"It didn't look very pretty, but the name of the game is to win." — Minnesota quarterback Fran Tarkenton after the Vikings blew a 17-0 halftime lead but hung on to beat Chicago 20-19

"We played it close to the vest because we owned the vest." — Baltimore quarterback Bert Jones explaining the Colts' 28-14 victory over Miami.

Hanratty gets job in Tampa

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — "Nobody goes anywhere wanting to be No. 2," said Terry Hanratty, the former Pittsburgh Steeler quarterback who signed Tuesday with the winless Tampa Bay Buccaneers and vowed to compete for the starting role.

Hanratty, a seven-year veteran released by two-time world champion Pittsburgh during the preseason, signed a one-year pact with the first-year National Football League Bucs.

The terms were not disclosed, but Hanratty, 28, said, "Both sides are very happy. It's not a category of any great amount. But it's very comfortable."

The Bucs, meanwhile, assured quaterback Steve Spurrier, a nine-year veteran acquired from San Francisco, that he will still lead the offense. "I told Steve that," said Coach John McKay.

"We're not signing Hanratty to hand him the quarterback job'" said Ron Wolf, Bucs vice president of operations. "We'll have to see how he does. He will have to win the job."

Hanratty said he knows that.

"I have a great deal of respect for Steve Spurrier. He's a super quarterback. But I intend to compete," Hanratty said.

Hanratty spent much of his first day as a Buccaneer watching game films to see what he can contribute to a punchless offense which is 0-5 with three shutouts and only 26 points scored.

To make room for the addition on the 45-man expansion roster, the Bucs cut Larry Jameson, a defensive tackle acquired last week. He was drafted by the Cardinals in 1975 but played with the Chicago Fire of the defunct World Football League.

"I have all my stuff here with me," said Hanratty. "I've got a tough job ahead of me. I'm just getting ready to turn the projector on to concentrate on learning the receivers. I imagine I'll be on the practice field tomorrow."

Hanratty said he heard that Pittsburgh wanted him now that Terry Bradshaw is injured.

"There was a message that they called my attorney here in Tampa yesterday," he said. "But I had 90 per cent made a commitment here."

The acquisition of Hanratty is the second personnel change for the Bucs in as many days. John Rauch, a former head coach at Oakland and Buffalo, quit unexpectedly Monday night as offensive coordinator and quarterback coach. He cited personal conflicts.

McKay said he is taking over Rauch's duties.

Hanratty, who joins Spurrier and rookie quarterback Parnell Dickinson of Mississippi Valley State, had been on the expansion list, but was passed by Tampa then.

A Notre Dame standout and Pittsburgh's second draft choice in 1969, Hanratty has 159 completions in 417 attempts for 2,748 yards and 24 touchdowns.

Spurrier is 38 of 89 for 431 yards this season.

IROC, Formula races set at Riverside this weekend

RIVERSIDE — The world's best road racing drivers are at Riverside International Raceway this week to begin practice runs for the California Grand Prix Saturday and Sunday.

The combination of International Race of Champions action both days and the season finale for the SCCA-USAC Formula 5000 series will bring together Indianapolis 500 winners, NASCAR super speedway chargers and internationally famed Formula I drivers, along with the regular cast of North America's best road racers.

Twelve of the world's best, headed by 1975-76 IROC champion A.J. Foyt, will drive in two 75-mile races to decide which nine of them will wind up in Daytona for the series championship race.

Foyt will battle it out with Buddy Baker, winner of the first IROC event held last month at Michigan International Speedway; Indianapolis 500 winners Bobby and Al Unser, Johnny Rutherford and Gordon Johncock; NASCAR stock car stars Richard Petty, David Pearson and Cale Yarborough; Britain's James Hunt, currently battling for the world driving championship; Jody Scheckter, of South Africa, another Formula I star, and IMSA Camel GT road racing champion Al Holbert.

The 100-mile Formula 5000 main event will decide the series championship, with two-time winner Brian Redman of England needing only a high finish to clinch his third straight championship.

Two other foreign drivers entered, either one of whom could win the series championship with victory at Riverside, are Alan Jones of Australia and Jackie Oliver of England.

Out of contention for the title but a definite factor in the outcome of the race is Al Unser, who has the opportunity to score an unprecedented triple by winning two heats of the IROC as well as the Formula 5000 victory. Unser will be backed up by his teammate, Danny Ongais, leading American driver on the circuit to date.

Ongais will be competing at the same track where he scored his first important motor racing victory, as top gas eliminator in the Hot Rod Magazine Drag Racing Championships in 1964.

Added to the Formula 5000 cast are such top names as Graham McRae of New Zealand, former Formula 5000 and Tasman series winner, veteran British racer Peter Gethin, Australia's Vern Schuppan, Formula I Veteran Chris Amon, plus a host of American and Canadian stars.

Activity gets under way with IROC practice and qualifying Thursday. Formula 5000 drivers join the IROC field on Friday. The first 30-lap 75.6-mile race will be flagged off at 2 p.m. Saturday, and final qualifying for the $60,000 Formula 5000 race will follow at 3:15.

The first of two 20-lap (50.5-mile) Formula 5000 qualifying heats will start at 11 a.m. Sunday, followed by the other IROC event at 1:30 p.m. and the Formula 5000 main event, 40 laps for a total of 100.8 miles, will go at 3 p.m.

Tickets are on sale at Ticketron outlets, Wallich and Liberty ticket agencies and Riverside Raceway (714) 653-1161.

Fans wishing to take in racing action Saturday and Sunday are invited to take advantage of free overnight parking privileges.

Yarborough maintains point lead

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Cale Yarborough's winning habit has been broken but his bid for Stock Car Driver of the Year has improved.

Donnie Allison, in a new car, registered his first victory since 1971 on the $4.2-million grand national circuit at Charlotte Sunday.

Yarborough, who had won four straight races, had to settle for second place.

But that was better than Richard Petty's eighth-place finish and widened the gap between the two top contenders for the 1976 title in the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing (NASCAR).

With three races left, Yarborough has 4,225 points and Petty has 4,098.

They are followed by Benny Parsons 3,914; Bobby Allison 3,788; Dave Marcis 3,506; Lennie Pond 3,494; Buddy Baker 3,460; Richard Childress 3,203; Darrell Waltrip 3,151, and Richard Brooks 3,069.

Meanwhile, Yarborough took over the lead in winnings with $284,831 for the year and Lennie Pond became the ninth driver to collect more than $100,000.

Petty dropped to second in winnings with $280,084. David Pearson is third with $242,859.

Then come Parsons $195,054; Baker $186,024; Bobby Allison $176,339; Marcis $160,185; Waltrip $159,970; Pond $101,414, and Brooks $82,000.

The grand national drivers take a week off before heading to Rockingham, N.C., for the American 500 on Oct. 24.

Hirohito to mark 50th year on throne

TOKYO (AP) — Japan's longest reigning emperor will mark his 50th year on the throne in a celebration next month that faces opposition from some parts of the country.

Before 10,000 invited guests on Nov. 10, Emperor Hirohito will speak briefly and hear congratulatory messages from the prime minister and other Japanese leaders.

The leftist governors of Tokyo, Kyoto, Yokohama, Kanagawa and Saitama have said , however, they will not attend and police say they expect some demonstrations in the capital that day.

Communist party members in the Diet, Japan's parliament, asked in a letter to Prime Minister Takeo Miki that the ceremony be canceled, claiming that homage to the emperor violates the postwar constitution, which reduced his powers and status.

Hirohito, now 75, became Japan's 124th emperor, by Japanese reckoning, in 1926, at which time he and his predecessors were regarded as demigods. It was in the emperor's name that militaristic leaders led Japan into World War II.

After Japan's surrender in 1945, Gen. Douglas A. MacArthur inspired a constitution that stripped the emperor of divinity. Article 1 says, "The emperor shall be the symbol of the state and of the unity of the people, deriving his position from the will of the people with whom resides sovereign power."

The ceremony on Nov. 10, the day of Hirohito's formal enthronement in 1928 although he became emperor on Dec. 25, 1926, will be attended by the members of the imperial family, members of the Diet, representatives of Japanese groups and foreign ambassadors.

"These 50 years of the emperor' reign has seen many changes and events," said Iwao Yamamoto, executive officer of the Board of Chamberlains in the Imperial Household Agency.

"Even though we say the reign has lasted 50 years, it has included three very different periods: prewar, war and postwar, and the position of the emperor has changed greatly.

"During these years, two groups developed, at the left and the right. The leftists have been in opposition to the imperial family and the rightists have revered them. It is impossible to please both sides. We cannot ignore the 50th year ceremony, nor can we make it too grand an affair. We'll try to be right in the middle, neither too big nor too small," he said.

The emperor spends his time now with his family and collecting marine biology specimens. He is a marine biologist and author of four books on the subject. His public role is primarily ceremonial. He attends occasional functions and greets the public at least twice a year.

As the first reigning emperor ever to leave Japanese soil, he traveled to Europe in 1971 and to the United States last year.

Creative dishes can spice Thanksgiving feast

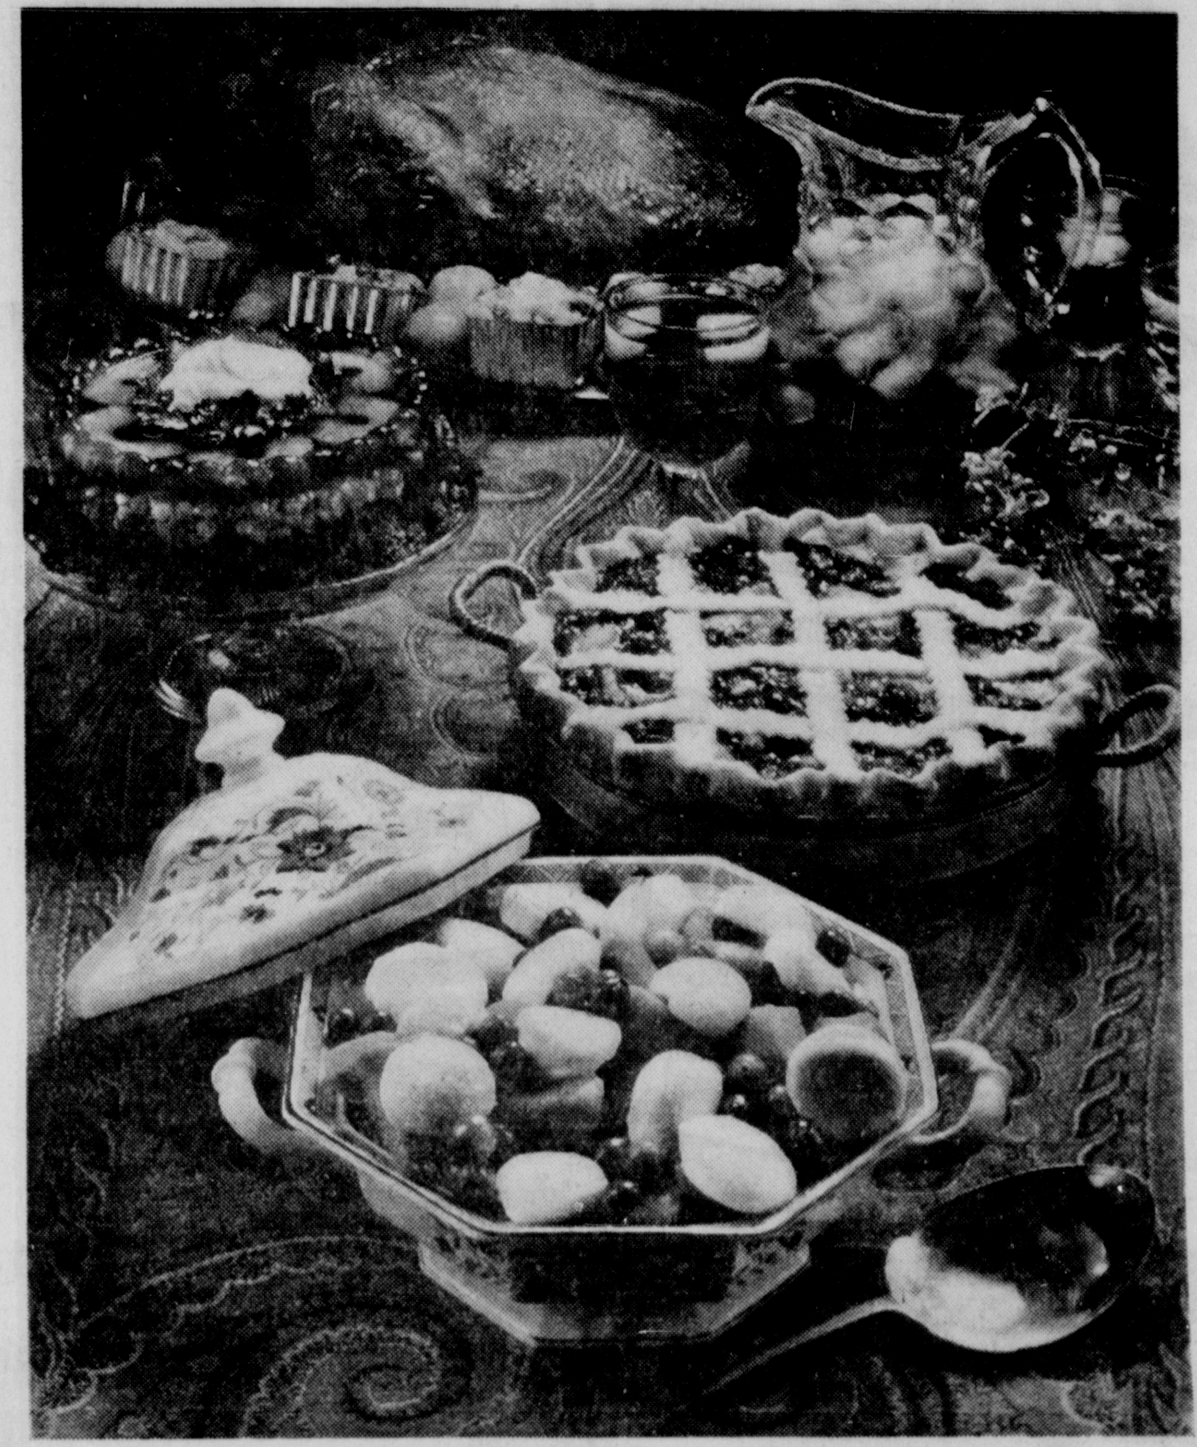
Progress Bulletin
Food
Pomona, California ■ Wednesday, October 13, 1976

Come Thanksgiving we usually think of the well loved, traditional dishes made by our mother and grandmother before us. In planning our menus, a favorite cranberry sauce is sure to be served with the turkey. But that versatile little berry, appreciated since the time of the Pilgrims, can initiate many other creative recipe ideas for holiday feasting. Here are a variety of tastefully different dishes all made with cranberries. They're so good, you'll want to prepare more than one to present on that festive occasion.

First for the grand bird. Make your bird particularly succulent by preparing an easy "Cranberry Honey Glaze" combining jellied cranberry sauce, honey, cloves and butter. Just fifteen minutes before your turkey is done, spoon the piquant glaze over it. Instead of stuffing your turkey in the usual manner, consider making "Mini Berry Stuffing Molds" made with butter, celery, fresh cranberries, chestnuts, sliced mushrooms, croutons, chicken broth and eggs. The stuffing molds can be baked while the turkey is roasting. They'll be a most attractive garnish for your platter, and can be served individually with ease.

"Berry Sweet Potato and Marshmallow Casserole" is a colorful and savory dish to complement your entree. Sweet potatoes, fresh cranberries, butter, brown sugar, orange juice, and nutmeg are mixed together. In the last minutes of baking, the casserole is topped with marshmallows. A delightful delectation.

Another good idea is "Cranberry Vegetable Mold." Created with cranberry juice cocktail, this shimmering, rosy-hued mold contains pineapple, carrots, corn, celery and lemon juice. Garnish the platter with greens and top with a mayonnaise dressing.



THANKSGIVING DAY TREATS

For a truly fruitful dessert to end your sumptuous dinner consider "Cranapricot Lattice Pie." It's easily made ahead of time with fresh cranberries, apricot (or peach) pie filling, walnuts, and raisins. The decorative lattice top gives it a pretty party flair.

To sip along with your dinner, "Cranapple Port Punch" is a pleasing blend of cranberry apple drink, pineapple juice and port wine mixed with cinnamon sticks and orange rind. Serve it in a large pitcher or carafe. Have a separate pitcher on hand for the children, and simply delete the port wine from the recipe.

Whether or not you prepare one or more of these cranberry recipes on Thanksgiving, you'll certainly want to use them to perk up other menus during the late autumn, holiday season, and in the winter too. Each one surely proves that America's native berry can be a lot more than simply sauce for the turkey.

CRANBERRY HONEY GLAZED TURKEY with MINI BERRY STUFFING MOLDS

(Serves 8 to 10)

1 turkey, 15 pounds, thawed if frozen, giblets removed
Salt and pepper

Glaze:

1 can (8 ounces) Ocean Spray jellied cranberry sauce
1/2 cup honey
1/8 teaspoon cloves
¼ cup butter or margarine

Mini Stuffing Molds:

1 cup melted butter or margarine
2 cups chopped celery
2 cups Ocean Spray fresh or frozen-fresh cranberries, rinsed and drained
1 can (15½ ounces) whole chestnuts, drained and crumbled (optional)
2 cups sliced mushrooms
8 cups plain croutons
1 cup chicken broth
2 eggs, well beaten
Parsley and apricots for garnish

Sprinkle turkey inside and out with salt and pepper. Place turkey on a rack in a shallow roasting pan. Roast turkey in a preheated moderate oven (350 degree F.) for 4 to 4½ hours or until leg can be moved up and down easily. In a saucepan, mix cranberry sauce, honey, cloves and butter. Simmer, stirring occasionally, until melted and smooth. In a bowl, mix stuffing ingredients until well blended. Spoon stuffing into 10 greased individual 1 cup casseroles. One hour before turkey is ready, place casseroles into oven. Spoon some of the glaze over turkey. Spoon more glaze over turkey every 15 minutes until all is used. Place turkey on warm platter and surround with unmolded stuffing casseroles. Garnish with parsley and whole apricots; if desired.

BERRY SWEET POTATO AND MARSHMALLOW CASSEROLE

(Serves 8 to 10)

8 large sweet potatoes, cooked, peeled and sliced ½ inch thick
2 cups Ocean Spray fresh or frozen-fresh cranberries, rinsed and drained
½ cup melted butter or margarine
1 cup firmly packed brown sugar
Grated rind of 1 orange
1 cup orange juice
½ teaspoon nutmeg
2 cups large marshmallows

In a 3-quart casserole, mix potatoes, cranberries, butter, sugar, orange rind and juice and nutmeg. Bake in a preheated moderate oven (350 degree F.) for 20 minutes. Remove from oven and cover top with marshmallows. Replace in oven and bake for another 15 minutes or until marshmallows are golden.

CRANBERRY VEGETABLE MOLD

(Serves 8 to 10)

3 envelopes unflavored gelatin
5 cups Ocean Spray cranberry juice cocktail
Juice of 1 lemon
3 canned pineapple slices, cut into halves
1 cup thinly sliced carrots
1 cup whole kernel corn
1 cup finely chopped celery
Parsley sprigs
Mayonnaise

Mix gelatin and 1 cup of cranberry juice in a saucepan. Stir over low heat until gelatin is dissolved. Stir in remaining cranberry juice and lemon juice. Place pineapple slice halves in a pretty design on the bottom of the 2-quart mold. Carefully spoon about 1½ cups of the gelatin mixture on top of slices. Chill until firm but still sticky. Chill remaining gelatin until syrupy. Fold in vegetables and spoon mixture into mold. Chill until firm. To unmold, dip mold into lukewarm water for a few seconds, tap to loosen and invert onto a serving platter. Garnish with parsley sprigs and serve with mayonnaise, thinned with a sweet vinegar.

Semi-sweet chocolate makes Toll House cookies

Approximately 40 years ago Mrs. Wakefield, the proprietress of a country inn, The Toll House Inn, at Whitman, Mass., was the discoverer of the now famous Toll House cookie.

Mrs. Wakefield had taken the Butter Drop-Do, an American cookie, probably the earliest ancestor of the Toll House cookie, and added a new ingredient. The new ingredient was the semi-sweet chocolate bar. Mrs. Wakefield cut the bar into small pieces, dropping them into the batter expecting them to melt. To her surprise, they stayed deliciously firm. And so a new technique in chocolate cookery was born.

The discovery of the Toll House cookies took New England by storm. The Nestle Company Inc., who made the semi-sweet chocolate bar started producing a chocolate bar scored for easy division into tiny sections and accompanied by a special chocolate chopper. Later Nestle made the chocolate into separate little peices, ready to slip right out of the package into the cookie-dough and called them semi-sweet real chocolate morsels.

Today, as every homemaker knows, the semi-sweet real chocolate morsels that were created expressly for the authentic Toll House cookies now make hundreds of quick and easy semi-sweet chocolate treats.

Try these variations:

Two-Tone Drop Cookies

1 6-oz. pkg. (1 cup) Nestle Semi-Sweet Real Chocolate Morsels
3 cups unsifted flour
1 measuring teaspoon baking soda
½ measuring teaspoon salt
¾ cup butter, softened
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
1 measuring teaspoon vanilla extract
½ cup sour cream
Nut halves, if desired

Preheat oven to 375 degree F. Melt over hot (not boiling) water, Nestle Semi-Sweet Real Chocolate Morsels; remove from heat and set aside. In small bowl, combine flour, baking soda and salt; set aside. In large bowl, combine butter and sugar; beat until creamy. Beat in eggs and vanilla extract. Alternately add flour mixture with sour cream. Divide dough in half; blend melted morsels into one portion. Drop vanilla dough by rounded half measuring teaspoonfuls onto greased cookie sheets and drop chocolate dough directly next to or on top of vanilla dough. Press nut half into center of each cookie, if desired.

Bake at: 375 degree F.
Time: 8-10 minutes
Makes 6 dozen 2½ inch cookies

Choco-Mint Snappers

1 6-oz. pkg. (1 cup) Nestle Semi-Sweet Real Chocolate Morsels
1¾ cups unsifted flour
2 measuring teaspoons baking soda
1 measuring teaspoon cinnamon
¼ measuring teaspoon salt
2/3 cup shortening
½ cup sugar
1 egg
¼ cup corn syrup
¼ measuring teaspoon peppermint extract
Sugar

Preheat oven to 350 degree F. Melt over hot (not boiling) water, Nestle Semi-Sweet Real Chocolate Morsels; remove from heat and set aside. In small bowl, combine flour, baking soda, cinnamon and salt; set aside. In large bowl, combine shortening, sugar and egg; beat until creamy. Mix in corn syrup, peppermint extract and melted chocolate. Gradually blend in flour mixture. Shape dough into balls using 1 level measuring tablespoonful dough for each. Roll in sugar. Place 3 inches apart on ungreased cookie sheets.

Bake at: 350 degree F.
Time: 12-15 minutes
Makes 3 dozen 3 inch cookies

½ cup coarsely broken walnuts
½ cup raisins
2 cups Ocean Spray fresh or frozen-fresh cranberries, rinsed and drained

Prepare pie crust mix according to package directions. Roll out 2/3 of the crust into a round large enough to line the bottom and sides of an ungreased 9 inch pie pan allowing 1 inch overhang; trim evenly. Combine remaining ingredients in a bowl and mix until well blended. Pour mixture into lined pie pan. Roll out remaining pie crust to oblong 10" x 4" and cut into eight ½ inch wide strips. Arrange strips in a lattice on top of fillings. Fold pastry overhang up over ends of pastry strips. Crimp edges of pastry securely. Bake in a preheated hot oven (400 degree F.) for 25 to 30 minutes or until richly browned.

CRANAPPLE PORT PUNCH
(Serves 8 to 10)

4 cups Ocean Spray cranberry apple drink
1 can (6 ounces) frozen concentrated pineapple juice, undiluted
4 cups port wine
Ice cubes
Cinnamon sticks, thin strips of orange rind

In a large pitcher, combine cranberry apple drink, pineapple juice and port wine. Serve with ice cubes, garnish with cinnamon sticks and thin strips of orange rind.

Oriental soups no repast

By AILEEN CLAIRE
NEA Food Editor

Most Orientals would not consider a meal complete with soup. In Japan, a bowl of soup still may be part of breakfast. In China soup is served during dinner as a thirst-quencher and as another way of preparing vegetables.

Oriental soups most familiar to North Americans start with a clear stock to which vegetables and often meat or fish are added. Garnishes include ham strips, chopped scallions or egg.

Now that sweet Spanish onions are plentiful try them in an Oriental onion soup. The base is a chicken broth and you may garnish the soup with sliced mushrooms and delicate egg threads made by beating eggs into the hot broth. Serve with stir-fried beef, broccoli and steamed rice.

Thin slice onions to equal 4 cups. Lightly saute in butter until onions are just tender. Add chicken broth, soy sauce and salt. Heat to boiling. Pour in eggs in thin stream, stirring to form shreds. Serve, garnished with slices of mushroom, if desired. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Turkey:

Bird for all seasons

"What's this world coming to?" Turkey! It used to be you would see these delicious birds only once a year — Thanksgiving. Now, turkey is truly "the bird for all seasons." And, a remarkable bargain, besides. In most cases this year the growers and processors of turkey are selling their product below the cost of production and the grocers are passing the savings on to consumers.

Besides being delicious and a great buy, turkey has great food value. The medical profession gives a good argument for eating turkey for good health.

High in protein, low in fats, turkey is a popular mainstay for dieters and especially people who must restrict their consumption of high cholesterol food items. Compared to red meat, turkey meat ranks higher in protein, contains significantly less fat and is low in cholesterol. Additionally, turkey yields higher amounts of body-building vitamins, Riboflavin and Niacin, than most other cooked meats.

Aware of its high nutritive value, the Department of Argiculture, (USDA) is currently purchasing large quantities of turkey products for school lunches and institutions for the elderly, where it is very popular.

Price? Turkey is still very popularly-priced and historically much less expensive than other meat products. In recent years, the cost of soybeans and corn — a large part of turkey feed has, like everything else, gone up. And profit margins? A recent National Turkey Federation newsletter gives the hard facts. "Growers marketing turkeys are now losing from 60 cents to 1 dollar a bird . . . right now, there are a lot of very depressed, very discouraged turkey growers scattered throughout the country. Good chance quite a few may not be growing turkeys next year." Yes, in the present market, the turkey industry is in trouble. Over-supply, lower red meat and broiler prices, and the high cost of feed contributed to the slump. This picture could change very rapidly, however. The industry is young and learning, and modern turkéy products are just catching on.

What is a modern turkey? It's salami, it's bologna, it's sausage, hot dogs, ham. It's even ground-lean turkey, but in smaller amounts, you can enjoy a drumstick, thigh or a wing without buying the whole bird — for kitchen convenience, parts are sold separately. And then there are turkey roasts, white or dark meat, cooked or uncooked . . .

With all this you may begin to wonder what a turkey in the first place is, or was.

Fossil evidence shows that turkeys have roamed America for ten million years. Columbus found them in North America in 1492 and Spanish explorer Hernando Cortez found South American Aztecs feasting on the bird about 30 years later. Cortez was fond enough of the turkey's sweet, juicy meat to make room for a bevy on his gold-laden ship headed back to Europe. By 1530, Italy, France and England were raising turkeys.

So the bird was nothing new to the 15th century pilgrims. In fact, some of them brought domesticated turkeys from Europe and soon began breeding them with the larger wild turkeys they found here. found here.

But the native birds weren't really that large. Not anything like the super broad-breasted bronze turkey so familiar to today's dinner tables. The native wild turkey was skinny by comparison. But whetted by the game bird's flavored meat, early settlers raised and hunted the turkey in almost every region of the continent.

Benjamin Franklin symbolized the country's continuing love affair with the turkey when he suggested that Congress select it, rather than the bald eagle, as our national bird!

Today, there are about 2,500 turkey growers in the United States raising two billion tons or 138 million turkeys per year . . . Start eating, America, there's enough turkey to turn every meal into a festive occasion, and at prices that make it today's best meat bargain.

Old spread

Wondering what kind of sandwiches to pack into that lunchbox? Finely chopped ripe olives and walnuts blended with mayonnaise is an old-fashioned spread that still tastes delicious.

Can-can chowder best of chowders

For easy livin', easy-do, quickly prepared seafood will do the trick, especially if the seafood is canned. Everyone who has ever enjoyed a clam chowder has a definite preference as to which kind is the favorite. Today's entree combines many of the best features of all clam chowders. It is a can-can chowder, so delightful to eat that landlubbers everywhere will enjoy it on the patio, or toted along on a camping trip, beach or fishing party.

Clam Can-Can Chowder is a savory mixture of canned clams, canned condensed cream of potato soup, and canned corn with peppers. All you need to add is milk, minced onion, margarine, and flavorings. Tote the makings along wherever your fancy leads, heat it together in an outdoor cooking pot — and enjoy!

CLAM CAN-CAN CHOWDER

2 cans (7 ounch each) minced clams, undrained
2 cans (10½ ounce each) condensed cream of potato soup
3½ cups milk
2 tablespoons margarine
2 teaspoons dehydrated minced onion
1 small bay leaf
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 can (12 ounce) corn and peppers
Paprika

Combine soup, milk, margarine, onion, bay leaf, and pepper. Simmer until hot, stirring occasionally. Add corn with peppers, and clams; heat. Remove bay leaf. Garnish with paprika. Serve with sea toast or favorite cracker, if desired. Makes 6 servings.

'Stonehenge' cook offers bonanza

By Gaynor Maddox

Albert Stockli was a Swiss chef of many distinctions. Shortly before he died, he bought a country restaurant near Ridgefield, Conn., called Stonehenge, which added to his fame.

One of Albert's achievements was making calves liver and avocado a drawing room subject. Stockli's dish became famous.

He served it to me at his beautiful country inn overlooking a small lake with two white swans in residence. As a result, I have changed my attitude toward liver completely. This is why:

Begin with 1 and one-half-ounce slices of calves liver. You'll need 8 slices for 4 servings. Next, peel 2 ripe medium-sized avocados and divide each into 4 pieces. Dust the liver and avocado slices lightly with flour and sprinkle them with salt. You'll need two saucepans. Melt 4 tablespoons of butter in each. Quickly saute the liver slices in one pan, the avocado slices in the other — 1 and one-half minutes on each side.

Serve on a heated serving dish, alternating liver slices and avocado. Quickly melt 4 tablespoons of butter in the same pan in which the liver was cooked. Add 1 tablespoon chopped chives, juice of one lemon and 1 tablespoon Parmesan cheese grated. Stir until the butter is nicely browned. Then pour over the liver and avocado and enjoy.

The printed recipe is in Stockli's book, "Splendid Fare."

I had this dish at New York's elegant Four Seasons restaurant where Albert Stockli was once super chef. Almost the same, except that the avocado was cut in thin slices and sauteed for a minute in the same pan with the liver slice.

At the Windows on the World restaurant atop the World Trade Center in new York, I talked with Roger Martin, himself a former restaurateur, about Albert Stockli. Martin said he makes a duck liver dish with green apples at home for his family, thanks to his association with Stockli.

He uses two green apples well peeled and cored and coarsely chopped, a pound of duck livers cut in small pieces. He heats one-half cup cooking oil and adds finely chopped onion which is sauteed until light gold. Then he adds the duck livers with 2 tablespoons of Calvados and seasons with salt and pepper. Then add chopped apples and saute over medium heat no longer than 3 minutes. Serve on buttered toast.

The Colony Restaurant in New York, long famous but now out of business, served calves brains with black butter superbly.

For six servings, have well-prepared calves brains blanched and well trimmed. Cut the brains into two-inch thick slices. dust with flour and season with salt and pepper. Use one-half pound of the best butter, heated until almost brown, then add the slices of brains and saute for 3 minutes until well browned on both sides. Place on hot plate. In another pan place one-fourth cup butter and stand it over high heat until butter has browned lightly. Then add 4 tablespoons drained capers and 3 tablespoons finely minced fresh parsley. Shake pan over high heat for a few seconds only. Pour over brains. These are dishes many men will enjoy mastering to show off.

Salad lunch

Once, not so long ago, luncheons were hearty and everyone ate much too much for the midday meal. Now the trend, for business people, homemakers and even lunchtime parties, leans toward the light. Given a choice, almost everyone opts for salad luncheons.

Salads are special luncheons because they're light in calories, delectable to the taste buds and appealing to the eye. Nobody will feel sluggish after lunch because too heavy a meal has been eaten. And dieters know that a salad can be prepared with low calorie dressing and the calorie count drops to almost nothing. Dieters in this day and age of salads never have to suffer.

One salad more unusual than most is Italian Scallop Salad, starring cooked scallops that are everyone's favorite seafood. The Italian touch is in the dressing, whether it's the regular or low calorie variety. Crunchy vegetables give the salad its interesting texture. Put all the advantages together for the best salad idea to come along in a long time.

SCALLOP SALAD

¾ pound cooked scallops, fresh or frozen
1 can (16 ounces) cut green beans, drained
2 hard-cooked eggs, chopped
2/3 cup sliced celery
1/3 cup raw cauliflower "Flowerettes"
1/3 cup thinly sliced unpeeled cucumber
¼ cup sliced green pepper
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
½ cup Italian salad dressing
¼ cup chopped pimiento (Optional)
Radish roses
Salad greens

Remove any remaining shell from cooked scallops. Cut large scallops in half. Combine all ingredients except radish roses and salad greens; toss lightly. Place about one cup salad on each salad plate which has been lined with salad greens. Garnish with radish roses. Serves 6.

Convenience

The cranberry is a native North American fruit. Long before the Pilgrims arrived in 1620, the Indians combined crushed cranberries with dried deer meat and melted fat to make pemmican — a convenience food that would keep for a long time. The Indians attributed the cranberry with medicinal properties; medicine men brewed cranberry poultices to draw poison from arrow wounds.

New salad

Many French families now serve an American specialty: grated raw carrot salad. The French dress the salad with lemon juice or an oil-and-vinegar mixture instead of using mayonnaise as is often done in the U.S.A.

Cooks undaunted by delicacies of cooking crepes fineries

If you adore crepes, but are afraid to try to make them, don't be. With the proper equipment and a little practice, you'll be able to turn out perfect crepes to use as the basis for a variety of appealing appetizers, entrees and desserts.

The perfect crepe is a tissue-thin, lacy, delicate pancake. It may be flavored or unflavored. It is usually sweetened for dessert fillings and sauces, unsweetened for savory fillings.

As for equipment, use a small six- to eight-inch heavy skillet, a traditional crepe pan, or the new upside-down crepe griddle. Once the pan is properly seasoned, use it for no other purpose. No soap or water, ever. Just wipe it clean with a paper towel as you would your treasured omelet pan.

One trick employed by many good chefs is to use clarified butter, both in the recipe and for cooking the crepes. It won't stick or burn as easily as untreated butter. (Well worth remembering for omelets, as well.) A good way to keep the crepes warm until you're ready to serve them is to slide the crepes onto a warm plate, cover them with plastic wrap, then put the plate over a pan of hot water.

The following recipe for Dessert Crepes produces the tenderest crepes imaginable. Fill them with the creamy-rich Chocolate Bar Filling, and serve them topped with warm Apricot Sauce. Scrumptious!

CHOCOLATE CREAM CREPES WITH APRICOT SAUCE

Dessert Crepes:

3 egg yolks
1 teaspoon vanilla
¾ cup flour
2 tablespoons sugar
⅛ teaspoon salt
¾ cup milk
2 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted
3 egg whites

Slightly beat egg yolks with vanilla in small bowl. Combine flour, sugar and salt; add alternately with milk to the egg mixture, beating until smooth. Blend in melted butter or margarine; set aside. Beat egg whites in large mixer bowl until soft peaks form. Blend flour mixture into egg whites on low speed of mixer; set aside for 1 hour or longer. Heat a small skillet or crepe pan (6 to 7-inches in diameter) over medium heat; brush lightly with melted butter, margarine or oil. For each crepe, pour 1½ tablespoons of batter in pan; tilt and spread batter evenly over bottom of pan with back of spoon. Cook about 1 minute or until underside is golden brown and top has lost "wet look." Loosen edges with spatula, turn and cook other side until lightly browned. Fill with 3 tablespoons of chocolate bar filling; fold and serve topped with warm apricot sauce. 14 to 16 crepes.

For Upside-Down Crepe Griddle

Place 3 whole eggs and vanilla in mixer bowl or blender container. Beat slightly. Combine flour, sugar and salt; add alternately with milk to egg mixture beating until smooth. Blend in melted butter or margarine; set aside 1 hour or longer. Pour into 8 or 9-inch pie pan. Heat griddle, dip and bake according to manufacturer's directions.

NOTE

Crepes can be made in advance and refrigerated or frozen until needed. To store: cool thoroughly on wire rack; stack with waxed paper between crepes; wrap in foil. When ready to use crepes, heat for 3 to 5 minutes on a cookie sheet in 300 degree oven. Fill and serve.

Chocolate Bar Filling

1/3 cup cornstarch,
¼ cup brown sugar, packed
¼ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
3 cups milk
1 giant milk chocolate bar (8 ounces), broken into pieces
1 large dark chocolate bar (4 ounces) or 4 dark chocolate bars (1.2 ounces each), broken into pieces
1½ teaspoons vanilla

Thoroughly combine cornstarch, brown sugar, sugar and salt in a heavy 2-quart saucepan. Gradually stir in milk and heat over a medium low heat. Cook and stir until mixture thickens and begins to boil. Remove from heat; add chocolate bars and stir until completely melted. Blend in vanilla. Pour into bowl; cool. If desired, chill before using as filling for crepes. 3½ cups filling.

Apricot Sauce:

1 16-ounce can apricot halves, drained and ½ cup syrup reserved
¼ cup sugar
1½ tablespoons cornstarch
¼ cup water

½ teaspoon lemon juice
1 tablespoon orange-flavored liqueur or ½ teaspoon orange extract

Drain apricots and slice; set aside. Combine sugar and cornstarch in heavy 2-quart saucepan; gradually stir in syrup and water. Cook and stir over low heat until mixture thickens and begins to boil. Carefully add apricots and lemon juice; heat. Remove from heat; stir in orange-flavored liqueur or orange extract. Spoon warm sauce over chocolate filled crepes. Sauce can be rehearted over low heat. 1½ cups sauce.

DINNER FOR FOUR
Lamb Curry Rice
Chutney Peanuts
Salad
Oranges Plus Beverage

ORANGE PLUS

An epicurean dessert.
Membrane-free sections with juice from 4 large oranges
¼ cup sweet, ruby-color cherry liqueur
1 large Bartlett pear

Pour the liqueur over the oranges; cover and chill for several hours (or even overnight) to allow flavors to blend. Just before serving peel the pear, core and cut into 8 lengthwise sections — a small device that cores and "wedges" a pear at one fell swoop is useful here. Add the pear to the oranges. Makes 4 servings. The pear is added at the last moment so it will be fresh-tasting and retain its white color.

Vegetable plus Soup

The liquid drained from canned vegetables may be substituted for part of the water called for.

Bones left from a lamb roast deboned before cooking
1 quart water
1 medium onion
1 small potato
2 medium carrots
4 small white turnips
1 rib celery, diced
4 outer lettuce leaves, sliced
1 tablespoon barley
1 tablespoon chicken bouillon granules

Salt and pepper to taste

Remove outer layer of fat from bones. In a large saucepot bring the bones and water to a boil; skim. Peel the onion, potato, carrots and turnips and cut into about ½-inch cubes; add to saucepot with the celery, lettuce, barley and bouillon granules. Simmer, covered, for about 1 hour. Remove bones; cut off meat scraps, dice and return to saucepot. Remove as much of the fat as you like. Add salt and pepper and reheat. Makes about 1 quart.

BUFFET SUPPER
Cabbage Rolls
Rice, Green Beans
French Bread
Blintzes Beverage

BLINTZES

1 egg
12 ounces 1½ cups dry cottage cheese
1 teaspoon sugar
⅛ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon cinnamon
14 thin pancakes crepes, each 8 inches in diameter

Beat egg until thickened and lemon color; add remaining ingredients except pancakes and beat just to blend. Put a spoonful of the cheese mixture in the center of each pancake; fold in sides; roll. Fry, turning once, in a generous amount of butter in a large skillet until lightly browned. Serve with sour cream and preserves.

All about cheese

Those early Greeks believed cheese to have a divine origin. It was their custom to offer the best cheeses to their Gods on Olympus.

Speaking of Olympic games, since the 21st Olympiad has just been completed, did you know that contenders in the ancient games trained on cheese and dried fruits?

Dried bits and pieces of cheese can always be grated or ground to be stored in covered glass jars. Use them for sprinkling and enriching soups, casseroles, vegetables, hot breads, rolls and muffins.

Theoretically, cheese may be made from the milk of any mammal, from the aardvark or the yak, including the dolphin. Most frequently used, of course, is the milk of cows, sheep or goats. The quantity of milk available for cheese becomes an important factor since it takes 10 pounds of milk to produce one pound of cheese.

Queen Victoria is reported to have received a one-half ton Cheddar cheese as a wedding present. That means the cheese started out as 10,000 pounds of milk.

When you're looking for a cheese spread that's tangy and delicious, here's one: Beat one cup each of cottage cheese and shredded Cheddar cheese with one-half cup of crumbled Blue cheese at the highest speed on your mixer until smooth. Then, beat in two tablespoons finely chopped green onion, one tablespoon prepared horseradish and one teaspoon prepared mustard. Cover and chill to blend flavors before serving on rye thins or crackers.

While Genghis Khan was sweeping across the world, he carried cheese as part of the basic ration for his soldiers. Ever since that time cheese has been part of the rations for marching men because it's compact, nutritious as well as an instant food.

Did you know that the famous Persian philosopher, Zoroaster, in the sixth or seventh century B.C. lived for 30 days in the wilderness on a diet of cheese and fruit alone? He emerged, recording the benefit both to his health and good spirits.

Would you like to have a dessert without making it? Try cheese and fruit. For a different combination, team Blue cheese with honeydew melon or pears.

Knives, butter spreaders, scoops, miniature cleavers, thread, wire or scissors. All of these may be used at one time or another for cutting cheese. It just depends upon the variety of cheese which each cutting instrument fits best. Thread or wire is handy for cutting a crumbly cheese like Blue while scoops work well for scooping Edam or Gouda.

Quick delicious soup and cheese combos: shredded Cheddar cheese on cream of tomato; shredded Swiss on pea soup or ham and potato chowder; Monterey Jack or Provolone on chilibeef soup; Brick cheese on bean soup; and Muenster on French onion soup with French bread.

Add lemon

When you are serving tomato-juice cocktail to a crowd, it's a good idea to buy the 46-ounce can; it will yield about 5¾ cups. Just add lemon juice and Worcestershire sauce to taste and offer in small glasses along with cheese straws.

Halloween treats conjured up by artful chefs

Ugly witches, haunted houses and spooky goblins may fail to do their scariest on Halloween, but there's one aspect of the lore-filled celebration that can always be up to snuff — the treats.

Conjure up the best Halloween ever by serving versatile fresh fruit, the imagination food. Besides, the earliest Halloween celebrants, the Romans and Druids, always marked the occasion by eating apples and nuts — so they are authentic Halloween foods.

Apple bobbing is synonymous with Halloween, and this year provide another type of dunking — a fresh fruit fondue. Youngsters will delight in cut-up apples, pears, bananas and melons dipped in melted chocolate or plunked into fluffy whipped cream. Or how about a fun grab bag with fresh fruit prizes? Jack-o-lanterns are another Halloween staple. Stage a contest offering a prize for the best cut-out pumpkin, the scariest, the funniest, the whateverest. Youngsters can make their jack-o-lanterns at home and bring them to the party, making a festive display.

Handing out naturally-sweet fruit is a delicious alternative to many less nutritious snacks. Have a big bowl of apples, oranges, pears and bananas and let the youngsters pick their favorites. A bag of unshelled nuts is an interesting and nutritious snack that children can crack open at home.

Incorporate fresh fruits in Halloween party cookies and cakes. Fresh Fruit Halloween Cake with Jack-o-lantern Frosting is a colorful and rich-tasting reward for well-behaved masqueraders. Delicately spiced, the cake is a tasty blend of cinnamon, nutmeg, ground cloves, nuts, fresh orange juice, apples and pears. The combination makes a Halloween high-point that could become another tradition.

Apples are an excellent oral detergent and provide an assortment of nutrients. Choose apples that are unbruised, firm, clean and of good color for the variety. Store in the refrigerator or other cool place.

Pears also supply a good amount of nutrients, including B vitamins and ascorbic acid. Select firm, clean pears, free from blemishes and well-shaped. Ripen them at room temperature and eat while still firm but not hard, the United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Association recommends.

Crunchy Cranberry Charms are perfect fall cookies with their earthy colors and homey, old-fashioned taste. This wonderfully delicious treat is an interesting variation of the standard oat-based cookie, thanks to zesty cranberries. They supply a good amount of vitamin C and cranberries keep longer than other berries. Refrigerate and use within two weeks or freeze in their original package. As a general rule, cranberries are glossy, firm, plump and red to reddish black.

Gingered pears

Cool off with an extra shot of nutrition whirled in the blender. Add finely cut fresh California Bartlett pears (three or four medium size) to ½ cup orange juice and ¼ cup honey in your blender.

When totally blended and frothy, pour into chilled glasses and top with diced candied ginger. Serve with colorful straws decorated with slices of orange.

Kids like food, find real joy

By AILEEN CLAIRE
NEA Food Editor

"Kids like reality and reality is food," according to Aileen Paul. However, in the 11 years in which she has been conducting cooking classes in Leonia, N.J., for youngsters and writing books about it such as "Kids Cooking Without a Stove," she notes a distinct change in their interests and approach to the topic.

She says they definitely are more sophisticated than those she helped find their way around the pots and pans in earlier days. She attributes this to television viewing and for once feels TV has been a boon rather than a boggler of tender minds. Despite their more intense interest in foods from other countries, for example, and less desire to learn to cook merely hamburgers and hotdogs, she finds the need for strict discipline still holds. "We have fun but I make them follow the rules and pay attention."

An important part of her courses in recent years have been trips to supermarkets, food warehouses and more basic tips on how to shop, what to look for and teaching good nutrition done up in tasty recipes. The times, it would appear, are catching up with this cooking pioneer.

ASK AN ADULT TO OPEN CANS AND THROW AWAY TOPS

Here's what you do:

1. Place lettuce leaves in three 8-ounce daisy-decorated margarine bowls.
2. With fork, place 2 pear halves on lettuce, cut side down. Pat dry with paper towel.
3. Spread cream cheese over pear halves.
4. Decorate each pear half with several drained blueberries.
5. Sprinkle with sunflower seeds. Makes 3 servings.

Here's what you do:

1. Place soft margarine in measuring cup. Spoon into mixing bowl.
2. Pour syrup into same measuring cup (it is not necessary to wash cup). Add to margarine.
3. Pour salt into one-half teaspoon measuring spoon held over regular cup. (Cup will catch overflow.) Sprinkle over margarine.
4. Pour vanilla into 1-teaspoon measuring spoon over cup. Add to margarine.
5. Mix thoroughly.
6. Slowly add sugar, mixing all the time.
7. Pour wheat germ into washed and dried measuring cup. Stir into mixture.
8. Form ball of fondant candy on piece of wax paper. Press flat with palm of hand. Repeat this motion, which is called "kneading."
9. Smooth candy evenly on wax paper with hands. Cut into square or other shapes.
10. Cover with wax paper or store in covered daisy-decorated margarine bowls. Place in refrigerator to chill. Makes about 1 and one-half pounds of candy.

Check oven

Before you preheat the oven make sure the oven racks are in the proper place. For example, for yeast-bread loaves and pies you may want to place the rack below the center of the oven.

NATIONAL APPLE MONTH

Applesauce-raisin Coffee Bread easily made with a dough

This Halloween let your favorite ghosts and goblins "bob" for a slice of Applesauce-Raisin Coffee Bread.

The tasty coffee bread is easily made with Bridgford Frozen Bread Dough, applesauce, raisins, nuts, cinnamon, and brown sugar.

Served with hot apple cider after the kids go out for Trick-or-Treats, "Applesauce-Raisin Coffee Bread" is a real Halloween treat!

APPLESAUCE-RAISIN COFFEE BREAD

1 pound loaf Bridgford Frozen Bread Dough
¾ cup applesauce
1/3 cup raisins
¼ cup chopped nuts
2 tablespoons brown sugar
2 tablespoons flour
2 teaspoons cinnamon
1 teaspoon melted butter

TOPPING

1/3 cup applesauce
2 teaspoons brown sugar

Let dough thaw until pliable. Roll dough out on lightly floured board to 12" by 16" rectangle. Mix applesauce, nuts, raisins, cinnamon, flour, and brown sugar. Brush rolled dough with melted butter, spread applesauce mixture over top of dough, leaving 1" margin on all sides. Beginning with 16" side, roll up in jelly-roll fashion. Place roll on lightly greased baking sheet or pizza pan, forming a circle; seal ends. With a sharp knife, make a slit down center of roll following the circular shape, ¾ of the way through the roll. Open roll out, exposing the filling. Let rise about 45 minutes in a warm, draft-free place. Bake in a 350 degree F. oven 25 minutes or until dough is a golden brown. Spread applesauce topping over bread: garnish with nuts if desired. Serves 8 to 10 people.

National apple month set

October is National Apple Month and that means that you'll see more varieties of fresh apples at supermarkets and roadside stands. In fact, some varieties may not be available for another year. So if you have space in your freezer freeze a few packages of your favorite varieties to use when there's less choice.

Many cooks like to slice favorite pie apples and pack into freezing containers in the right amount for an apple pie. The best varieties for pies have a certain tang and the slices hold their shape after cooking. They include Baldwin, Winesap, Northern Spy, York Imperial and Newtown Pippin to name a few.

To freeze apple slices: core, pare and slice the apples into a brine made with 2 tablespoons salt to 1 quart water. Prepare a sugar syrup using 1 cup sugar to 2 cups water. Add ½ teaspoon powdered ascorbic acid to each quart of syrup to prevent discoloration. Drop the drained apple slices into the simmering syrup (180 degree F.) and simmer 3 minutes. Cool apples quickly. (A good way to cool the poached apples in a hurry is to plunge the pan into a sink full of ice water.) This prevents overcooking. Pack the apple slices with the syrup in which they were cooked, leaving head space of ½ inch for pint containers, ¾ inch for quart containers. Seal. Freeze at once.

Apple pies take well to freezing and can be put in the freezer unbaked or baked. Use your favorite recipe and if you prefer to freeze the pie unbaked, do not slit the top crust. Wrap the pie carefully forcing all air from the package. To bake, slit the top in two or three places and put the frozen pie in a 425 degree oven. Bake about 60 minutes or until juices bubble through slits in the top crust.

If you prefer you can bake the pie before freezing. Cool it thoroughly, then wrap in an airtight package. Before serving place the frozen pie in a 375 degree oven and bake 30 minutes.

Nuclear safety issue holds voter interest

By The Associated Press

The spotlight in the 1976 election is on the presidential race, but voters in November also will be deciding close-to-home questions involving everything from nuclear safety to state-regulated slot machines.

Some of the proposals are in the form of constitutional amendments offered by state legislatures. Others have been placed on the ballot as a result of voter initiatives and petition drives.

An Associated Press spot check showed that the nuclear safety issue has generated the most interest, followed by proposals to ban or restrict nonreturnable beverage containers.

California residents voted against a proposal on the June primary ballot to limit development of nuclear power plants and impose restrictions on the operation of those already in existence.

Similar measures now are on the ballot in a number of states, including Oregon, Montana, Ohio, Washington and Arizona.

There are about 60 atomic power plants already in operation and another 40 plants are expected in operation by 1980. Critics of nuclear power say that safety controls are not strict enough.

The proposals under consideration would:

—Set specific safety standards for builders.

—Provide for safe storage, transportation and disposal of nuclear wastes.

—Require legislative approval of all new plants.

—Urge Congress to suspend the limit on liability insurance in case of nuclear accidents.

The outcome of the vote is expected to be close in most states and both sides have been fighting hard. Opponents of the measure in the State of Washington have a fund of more than $340,000, but a poll published by the Seattle Times in August showed 44.1 per cent of those surveyed were for the measure, 23.9 per cent were against and 32 per cent were undecided.

Here is a look at some other issues under consideration around the country:

RETURNABLE BOTTLES AND CANS

Massachusetts, Maine and Michigan are among the states trying to limit the use of nonreturnable containers. Under the Maine proposal, which is typical, all beer, ale and soft drink containers sold in the state after Jan. 1, 1978 would have to have at least a five-cent deposit. Cans with flip-top openers would be banned, as would plastic rings used to hold the cans or bottles together in a six-pack.

UTILITIES

Voters in some states will decide on measures that could affect electric and gas bills. In Massachusetts, a proposal would require the same per-kilowatt charge for all customers in contrast to the current practice of lower rates for big users. The governor and the state Department of Public Utilities contend that the measure would hurt industry. Ohioans for Utility Reform — OUR is pushing a measure requiring utilities to offer lowcost "lifeline" rates, with a minimum charge for a minimum amount of power. A measure on the ballot in Missouri would prevent utilities from including construction work in progress as one of the ongoing costs in figuring rate increases. Supporters of the measure say it's not the job of a utility customer to finance long-range construction projects.

GAMBLING

Legalized gambling of one form or another is under consideration in several states. The biggest fight has been in New Jersey where there is a proposal to okay casino gambling in Atlantic City. Two years ago, a plan for casino gambling throughout the state was rejected by a 3-2 margin. The Eagleton Institute of Politics of Rutgers University said a late-September poll showed 59 per cent of those questioned favored the proposal, 36 were against and the rest were undecided. In Delaware, the issue is whether the voters favor state-regulated slot machines. In California, the controversy is over greyhound racing. And in Oregon, a proposal on the ballot would allow charitable, fraternal and religious organizations to run bingo games.

SPENDING—MONEY

Two measures on the Michigan ballot specifically deal with money. One would limit state spending to 8.3 per cent of total personal income in the state; the other would remove the state's constitutional prohibition on a graduated income tax. Massachusetts voters also will decide whether to permit a graduated income tax — an idea that has been turned down three times in recent years. In Missouri, there are proposals to increase the state's sales tax by an eighth of a cent, but remove it from food and prescription drugs. North Dakota voters are faced with a plan to reduce the sales tax from 4 to 3 per cent. The drive is led by a businessman critical of the state's $180 million general fund surplus.

REORGANIZATION

Jimmy Carter has made his reorganization of the Georgia government a key issue in the presidential campaign. Another kind of reorganization — involving the state constitution — is on the November ballot. A key proposal would rearrange the constitution to put similar subjects under the same articles. Officials say it would be the first step toward an article-by-article constitutional revision in the future. Another measure on the Georgia ballot would allow a governor to succeed himself for a second four-year term. In Montana, residents of 156 counties, cities and towns will vote on proposals for new forms of local government.

Climbers safe

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP) — All members of the American Bicentennial Everest Expedition have arrived safely at their base camp after calling off plans to put a second climbing team on top of the world's highest mountain, an American Embassy official said today.

The official, who spoke to the base camp by radio, said the last Sherpa guide who accompanied the climbers arrived at the base camp this morning.

The official said he did not speak with the two men who climbed to the summit, Dr. Chris Chandler and Robert Cormack, because they were having a "big breakfast" and did not come to the radio.

Chandler, 28, of Seattle, and Cormack, 30, of Boulder, Colo., made it to the 29,028-foot summit Friday afternoon. Expedition leader Phil Trimble called off an attempt by the second team because the temperature had dropped to 20 degrees below zero and there were winds of more than 100 miles an hour.

"A second summit attempt is not worth the risks it would entail," he said.

The second team climbed to 24,500 feet. The members of the team were Gerry Roach, 33, of Boulder; Rick Ridgeway, 26, of Malibu, Calif.; and Hans Bruyntjes of The Netherlands.

Almanac

By The Associated Press

Today is Wednesday, Oct. 13, the 287th day of 1976. There are 79 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1775, the Continental Congress ordered the construction of a naval fleet. It was the beginning of the U.S. Navy.

On this date —

In 1792, George Washington laid the cornerstone of the executive mansion in Washington.

In 1845, Texas ratified the U.S. Constitution.

In 1943, during World War II, Italy declared war on its former Axis partner, Germany.

In 1970, a coastal storm claimed 46 lives in northern California and the Pacific Northwest.

In 1969, the Soviets had seven cosmonauts in orbit in three spacecraft.

In 1970, the FBI announced it had arrested the black militant Angela Davis in New York in connection with a California courtroom shootout.

Ten years ago: Defense Secretary Robert McNamara wound up a visit to South Vietnam with a declaration that military operations against the Communists had exceeded expectations.

Five years ago: Communists terrorists slipped into an Allied base near Saigon and destroyed five helicopters.

One year ago: President Ford signed a Congressional resolution providing for 200 American civilians to man monitoring stations in a buffer zone between Israel and Egypt.

Today's birthdays: Playwright Frank Gilroy is 51. Former film star Laraine Day is 56.

Thought for today: We shape our dwellings, and afterwards, our dwellings shape us. — Sir Winston Churchill, 1874-1965.

Bicentennial footnote: Two hundred years ago today, a British fleet caught up with an American fleet fleeing south on Lake Champlain and captured all but three of the 15 American boats.

Ford or Carter?

Still too close to call in California

LOS ANGELES (AP) — In California, the richest plum in the presidential campaign, the race for 45 electoral votes is too close to call, insiders in both party organizations say.

"If the election were held today, we'd lose,'" says state Atty. Gen. Evelle Younger, a leader in the Ford drive. "But we are gaining. I predict the winner will have less than 51 per cent and the loser, more than 49 per cent."

Neither party effort has visibly caught on with California voters. But Democrat Jimmy Carter's lead of 15 to 20 percentage points in polls a month ago is down to 6 points in one poll and 4 in another.

The registration numbers favor Carter, while President Ford has the stronger campaign organization.

Democrats outnumber Republicans by 1.8 million, and three new Democrats have been registering for every new Republican over the last four months.

Most Democratic efforts since the presidential conventions have gone into that registration drive, which could give Democrats a 2 million voter majority — about 5.5 million to 3.5 million Republicans.

But most of the political activity so far — the mass telephonings, precinct walks and mailings — has been in the Republican camp.

The "Republican Unity" campaign, an appeal to vote a straight ticket from Ford down through state Assembly candidates, has been under way several weeks.

Carter campaign organizers are still vague about how many local headquarters or telephone banks will be opened, or where.

But neither Ford nor Carter has a strong constituency of his own in the nation's largest state.

The outcome in California very likely will depend on two losers in the presidential derby: Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. and former Gov. Ronald Reagan.

So far, Brown, a 3-1 winner over Carter in the California primary, has played a more active role in the Carter campaign than Reagan has for Ford. But Reagan delivered to Ford a campaign structure with roots down to the precinct level.

Reagan send mailgrams to his 58 county chairman, asking them to support Ford. His state cochairman, Mike Curb, followed up with personal telephone calls and told each county chairman: "We're not kidding. We mean it. Get on board."

Fifty-seven of the 58 now are county cochairman for Ford.

There is no comparable organization which Brown, or any other California Democrat, can turn over to Carter.

"We don't have an ongoing organization that is available to particular candidates. We have to organize anew each election," said Gray Davis, Brown's chief of staff and closest political adviser.

"The Republican party has always maintained organizational strength (in California) which in relative terms is much greater than the Democratic party. Activists in the Democratic party tend to organize around a candidate, rather than around a party," he said.

"Brown is doing the most important thing he can do, which is identify himself with Gov. Carter. With Gov. Brown's popularity, there is no more substantial thing he could do," Davis said. "We have done everything Gov. Carter asked us to do."

Brown has traveled two days in California with Carter and praised the former Georgia governor. And Brown has agreed to campaign four days for Carter in New Jersey, Oregon and Pennsylvania.

So far, Reagan has only one joint personal appearance planned with the President and has promised to appear for Ford in 11 other states.

But praise of Reagan's behind-the-scenes work is offered with enthusiasm by Ford backers, while there is restraint in comments by Carter leaders about Brown.

One newspaper columnist quoted Brown as replying "good" when told Carter's campaign was in disarray. Brown vehemently denies the quote. but the story persists.

No one contends Brown and Carter are friends, just as few believe Reagan and Ford are close. But Brown has cultivated a reputation as a maverick, while Reagan is a party loyalist. And for Reagan, who will soon be 66, there may be no political tomorrow. Brown is 38.

"I don't think Brown is going to give more than lip service to Carter, because the best way for Brown to ultimately become president is for Carter to be defeated," said Republican party vice chairman Mike Montgomery.

But the consensus is that Brown is helping, and Carter's campaign is fumbling independently of anything Brown does.

But, the built-in registration advantage for Carter is great. And, with limited funds, there is only so much that either campaign can do.

Ford has allocated $150,000 for his California campaign. The state party is putting up $50,000 more. Former President Richard M. Nixon's state organization spent 14 times that — $2.75 million — on the general election campaign four years ago.

Carter allocated $288,000 to California. Sen. George McGovern's California campaign spent six times that in California in 1972.

Said Brown aide Davis: "With limits on spending — organizational money — this state is going to be won or lost like every other state, largely by the manner in which the candidate presents himself and his ideas. What we do here only adds or subtracts incrementally from that total.

"Gov. Carter has to win California. And California is still to be won or lost," Davis said.

Pollster Mervin Field, who reported a 62-33 Carter lead over Ford in California before the Republican convention in August, says the state should now be listed as doubtful for Carter.

But Field, who is starting a new survey, says the shift from Carter to "undecided" reported in other polls is not necessarily momentum for Ford. So far, it only means voters are taking a second look at Carter.

"Carter starts with an edge. Carter has to lose it before Ford can win," Field said.

Democrats have outnumbered Republicans by a 3-2 margin in California since 1934, but Republicans have consistently beaten the odds, occupying the governor's office during 28 of those 42 years. And Republicans have carried the state in five of the last six presidential elections.

But the presidential vote can be misleading. The GOP has had a Californian up for president or vice president in six of the last seven general elections. That's an advantage the Republicans don't have this year.

Deaths

Freda Mohr

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Funeral services are set Wednesday for pioneer Los Angeles social worker Freda Mohr, who died Sunday at the age of 82.

She was the first professionally trained caseworker on the staff of any social service agency in the city. She was executive director of the Jewish Family Service, an affiliate of the Jewish Federation Council of Greater Los Angeles, from 1932 until retirement in 1966.

Wilbur Beery Mikesell

FRESNO (AP) — Wilbur Beery Mikesell, first dean of the Fresno State College school of business, is dead at age 92.

Mikesell died Saturday at his home, apparently of natural causes. He helped found the business school of Fresno State in 1925 and served on the faculty until his retirement in 1946. After leaving the school he pursued a career in investment management and was active in community organizations.

Jacoby's bridge

Today's hand reached us from an Oregon reader. It seems that he played five diamonds and went down

one. This was after the opponents led a heart to the ace, a heart back to the king and a ruff of the third heart.

North felt that with only eight high-card points, South should have responded one notrump, not two diamonds. But after he had responded two diamonds, he should have passed the three-spade bid.

Three spades would have made, since North would lose just two hearts and two spades.

The hand brings up some interesting points in bidding. Thus, we would respond two diamonds with the South hand. A seven-card suit to the ace-king is worth bidding. However, we would have tried three notrump as our second bid with that South hand. Then if North passed and he should do just that, South would wrap up that three notrump.

We would be lucky. West would start with a heart and the third heart lead would clear the suit, but unfortunately for the defense there would be no way for West to get in to score his last two hearts. With some other lead the play is more complicated, but any player worth his salt would still bring home nine tricks by careful play.

Ask the Jacobys

A California reader wants to know the meaning of an opening five-spade bid.

It has no meaning in normal biddding. Someone once suggested it should ask partner to bid six with the ace or king of the suit, but the bid never took hold.

BICENTENNIAL FACTS

Merchant Robert Morris was a man of many distinctions. One of the wealthiest individuals in the Colonies and an economic wizard, he won the accolade "Financier of the Revolution," yet died penniless and forgotten. Morris and Roger Sharman were the only signers of all three of the nation's basic documents: the Declaration of Independence, Articles of Confederation, and Constitution, The World Almanac notes.

Pyramid opponents now eating words

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — When it was built in 1972, opponents called it a crass symbol of corporate power. But to thousands of tourists, the Transamerica Pyramid — like the cable cars and Coit Tower — has become a symbol of San Francisco.

Visitors send home post cards of the 48-story white spire and stop off to visit its half-acre redwood grove and catch the view from its 27th floor. Tourism officials say the building, located near the boundary of the financial district and the historic North Beach area, ranks high as a tourist stop.

When the edifice was still a gleam in the eyes of executives of the $2.4 billion conglomerate, John Krizek was orchestrating an elaborate propyramid public relations campaign which included hiring two bearded young men to "infiltrate" opposition rallies and carry signs supporting its construction.

He sees the building's new popularity as a vindication: "We honestly figured we were doing a damn good thing for this city, and we wondered why we should sit back and be accused of rape.

Many critics feared the building would start a development trend that would ruin the historic character of Jackson Square and North Beach. Protesters staged demonstrations at the old Transamerica building, marching and chanting before batteries of television news cameras.

"Business has generally been slow to use the television media the same way protesters of the '60s used it," Krizek said. "You know the way these things go, a few critics call up the television stations, and they all get together when the cameras are there and leave the moment the cameras leave, and the public gets the impression there's a huge public outcry.

"So we decided to hell with that, we're going to play their game."

He said the two "hippie-type" antiprotesters were members of an ad agency that had first come to Transamerica with an offer to help are the public relations war for the pyramid.

That offer was turned down, but Krizek said he remembered them later and asked them to march along in an antipyramid demonstration, carrying pro-building signs. They made a point of talking to reporters and were quoted in local newspapers, receiving a "small honorarium" for their services, according to Krizek.

Some of the critics now look with kinder eyes at the spire. "Our fears so far have not been realized," said John Jacobs, whose San Francisco Planning and Urban Renewal Association was vocal in its opposition to the project.

He said the city's designation of the Jackson Square area around the tower as an historic preserve where a one-year wait is required for demolition permits seems to be protecting the character of the area.

But Allan Jacobs, director of the city's planning department during the height of the controversy, still is angry about the city's decision to overrule his department's objections to the spire.

"It's a 'look-at-me' building that stands out from the city instead of being part of it. It's inappropriate for a private building, a building owned by a private corporation, to do that," he says.

"I think it stinks."

The most vocal critics now are tourists who find they can't travel to the top of the spire for a 360-degree view of the city from the pyramid's glass-wrapped pinnacle. The top is reserved for special tours and an executive lounge.

Krizek said the building is 90 per cent occupied. Some of the unoccupied offices are the most expensive ones, near the top of the building with four-corner views of the city.

Krizek wouldn't say how much the company gets for rent, but he indicated the asking price was more than the $12 to $15 a square foot rate for office space in the rest of the city's business district.

"Our engineers tell us that the building is 2½ to 3 times stronger than required by code," he said. "It has a low center of gravity in case of earthquake."

The pyramid is heated by an unusual system that uses fluorescent lights that remain on through the night to "store up" heat. That also drew fire from conservationists.

"The system was designed so that we actually save energy by leaving the lights on 24 hours a day," Krizek said. "But with the energy crisis, people began complaining that we were wasting energy. So now we turn the lights off at night. We're not really saving energy by doing this. We just look like we are."

Glittering crowd at Met opening

NEW YORK (AP) — Before a top-hat, long-gown crowd of glittering New York society and standing-room-only music lovers, the Metropolitan Opera opened its 92nd season with a star-studded performance of Verdi's "Il Trovatore."

There was a dinner of smoked salmon, filet mignon and vintage Bordeaux served for the notables on the Grand Tier level of seats before Monday night's performance. Outside, music and voice students were pleading for tickets. The house was sold out months ago.

The staging of the tragic and spirited opera was the first of nearly 200 performances of 20 operas to be presented during the 1976-77 season.

It will be a critical year for the Metropolitan, long the premier opera company of the United States. The company is operating for the first time under a new triumvirate management and must make more money than ever if there is to be a season next year.

"This season will be very critical for the Metropolitan Opera. Perhaps the most critical," said Anthony A. Bliss, the company's executive director.

Bliss had spent the afternoon preparing appeals to foundations. He must raise $12.7 million this year, about $4 million more than last season, to keep the company solvent.

The house doors opened an hour before the 8 p.m. curtain, but few ticket holders rushed to their seats. They stood instead on the long staircases, to see and be seen. Opera star Beverly Sills arrived 15 minutes before the curtain.

BICENTENNIAL FACTS

A German regiment, or battalion, was called a "vacant regiment" when the colonel by whose name it had been known was no longer in command. A correspondent during the Revolution referred in a letter of June 2, 1777, to "the Regiment vacant Rall"; the unit commanded by Col. Johann Rall who was mortally wounded at Washington's attack on Trenton on Dec. 26, 1776, The World Almanac notes.

Blown dry hairdos cut into beauty salon talk

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

The new hairdressing technique, blow drying the hair, has changed habits in beauty establishments. "Some good, some not," says Rudolph Sabatino, longtime New York hairdresser.

"It has caused a new price structure, it takes a lot of the hairdresser's time and it is so noisy it just about ruins the confidential relationship that has always existed between the customer and the hairdresser." But customers are paying more for it.

Whereas hairdressers spent maybe 15 or 20 minutes setting a shampooed head and another 15 minutes or so combing it after it had dried under a hoodstyle dryer, they may now spend an hour or more working on one head, snipping, brushing and blowing it, over and over, until every hair falls into place.

"Formerly I could do maybe 28 heads a day, but now maybe I do from 12 to 15, depending on the amount of cutting," explained Rudy, as he is called. "We had to increase the cost — so a blown dry alone costs a customer $8."

It hasn't kept young girls from having the hair works, though when they come into his establishment, he says. Many spend upwards of $25 to have a hair cut, shampoo, color and, of course, the blow dry, but their appointments are less frequent.

"No matter how long it takes to do it, it lacks distinction. It has an assembly line look. Most customers are wearing the wedge cut or a variation of it. It gives girls and women a neat, career girl look, sort of like everybody's idea years ago of what a well groomed secretary should look like," Rudy said.

It's a "mechanical look" that began with the geometrical hairdos that were introduced a number of years ago, putting customers in that "stamped-out-of-a-mold" category, he said. Most hairdressers would prefer to create styles for the individual look, said Rudy who is well known for his artistry with hair.

The blow dry is not just "a big city fad," Rudy noted. He sees the look everywhere he goes, even in his home town of Secaucus, N.J. His wife and relatives are all wearing some variation of the wedge hairstyle, he added.

Many customers use the hair dryers with hoods. And, because they require less of his time, it costs them less to have their hair done. In fact, some hairdressers have not been swept up in the blow dry technique at all and are doing a thriving business with women who prefer the curlers and pin curls and hooded dryers, Rudy said. But he thinks it is a mistake not to keep up with new techniques because if a woman has her hair blown dry somewhere, sometime, and she sees the neat effect, she may give up the old method.

On the other hand, he knows of hairdressers who now have only blow dryers in their salons.

"It is really a hairdressing dilemma. Hairdressers who shun this method may eventually go out of business because they haven't kept up, but if hair gets shorter, those of us who are concentrating on blow drys may find that we will be doing only cuts and color. We won't be hairdressers any more. Many women are already shampooing and drying their hair themselves because they'vc had it cut so short. If that continues — well, who knows where you go from there?"

The new system has interfered with the personal relationships Rudy has always enjoyed with his clients as he worked on their hair. Their stories about their lives and loves, their new recipes, their husbands, children, animals, prize delphiniums, and such.

"The blow dryer is so noisy and with so many in use at the same time, conversation is really dead. I really miss that," he said.

Speaker chosen by PSA

Subject of a talk to be given by Mrs. Andrea C. McAleenan to the Professional Secretaries Association will be "A Woman Executive Looks at her World." She will speak at the Oct. 21 meeting of the group at the T & J Restaurant in Rosemead at 7 p.m.

Mrs. McAleenan received her B.A. and M.A. degrees from Michigan State University and was named Outstanding Senior Woman of the university. She is currently in a doctoral program at Claremont Graduate School.

LSA sets Saturday luncheon

The Los Angeles Forum of Legal Secretaries will be hosted by the Glendale-Burbank Legal Secretaries Association Saturday at the Kings Arms Steak House, 4323 Riverside Drive, Burbank.

The cocktail hour is scheduled at 11:30 a.m. and luncheon will be served at 12:30 p.m.

Speaker will be Mae Taylor, an investigator for the Los Angeles Police Department. She will discuss rape investigation.

Mara Lynn McAlpin of Pomona Valley-Citrus Legal Secretaries Association is secretary of the Los Angeles Forum.

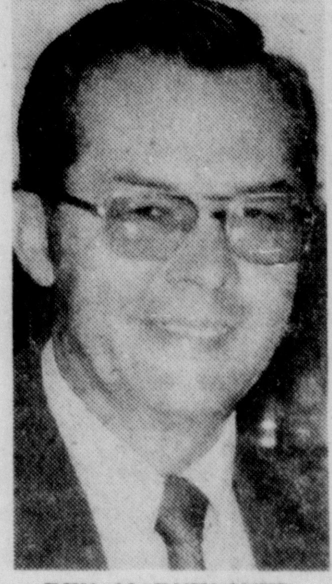
Lutheran women set autumn rally

The Lutheran Women's Missionary League Zone 16 organization will hold its fall rally Oct. 20 at Peace Lutheran Church, 1101 Glen Ave., Pomona. The LWML is an international organization of the Lutheran Church, Missouri Synod. It sponsors missions all over the world.



REV. MARVIN SUHR

There will be nine churches in the area participating.

The Rev. Marvin Suhr, who has been an announcer for the Lutheran Hour radio broadcast for many years, will be the speaker. The day will begin with registration at 9 a.m., followed by devotions given by the zone counselor, the Rev. Ronald Kudick of St. Luke Church, Claremont. Mrs. David Henslin, zone president, will introduce guests.

The Bible study, "Light of the World," will be led by the Rev. Jonathan Grothe of Christ the King Church, Walnut.

Peace Lutheran Pre-School choir, led by Mrs. Anne Gehrke, and the Lutheran High School choir, led by James Klawiter, will be part of the program. Babysitting will be provided.

Officers will be elected after a luncheon and the new slate will be installed by Pastor Kudick.

French Room sale set

The autumn French Room dress and clothing sale held annually by the Women's Fellowship of United Church of Christ, Congregational is scheduled Friday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Saturday from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the church in Claremont.

There will be an outstanding selection of men's and women's clothing. On Friday there will be a baked goods sale and homemade sandwiches will be for sale. Free coffee will be served throughout the day.

Proceeds from the sale will enable the Women's Fellowship to support their philanthropic work at home and in foreign fields.

In charge of arrangements are Mmes. Myron Powell, Clarence Faust, William Montgomery and Albert Herrlinger.

MELINDA ROBERTS

January wedding planned

Miss Melinda Anne Roberts of Diamond Bar and Donald Craig Fox of Brea are engaged.

The bride-elect, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Merritt E. Roberts of Diamond Bar, attended Cal State Fullerton. She was affiliated with Sigma Kappa Sorority.

Miss Roberts is employed in the advertising department of Vornado, Inc. in Whittier.

The future bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald L. Fox of Brea, graduated from Cal State Fullerton. Mr. Fox is studying law at Western State University College of Law and is employed at Isle's as assistant plant manager in Orange.

A January wedding is planned.

Percentage Down

The salary advantage of a college graduate isn't what it used to be, comments the Reader's Digest. In 1969 a college graduate could expect a starting salary 24 percent higher than non-college workers in the labor force. By 1975 that edge had dropped to a mere 6 percent.

Joyce Brothers

Her anxiety mounts

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: Our son insisted on buying a motorcycle against our better judgment. Since he has had one nasty accident I worry everytime he goes out now. When he gets mad or upset, he seems to prefer being on his motorcycle than being with people. He tells me to stop babying him when I ask him to be careful. — J.J.

Dear J.J.: Your anxiety about your son is not unwarranted, especially considering the fact that he has already been involved in one accident. Statistics show that there are more injuries and fatalities from motorcycle accidents than from auto accidents.

Psychiatrist Armand Nicholi II, of the Harvard Medical school suggests that there is a "motorcycle syndrome" that has certain characteristics. The cyclist is overly preoccupied with the motorcycle, often neglecting other activities and relations with friends. Lacking confidence in himself, he feels that the motorcycle helps compensate for personal inadequacies, unassertiveness and doubts about masculine strengths. Also typical of the "motorcycle syndrome" is a history of accident proneness from childhood and a tendency to have difficulty expressing feelings in constructive ways.

Your son may not fit this pattern but if you do feel he is overly dependent on his motorcycle, it would be wise to tell him of your concern. Better still, have his father discuss his behavior with him, for with a man, your son might feel less need to deny the dangerous aspects of his motorcycle infatuation.

Forbidding him to ride the motorcycle is not likely to be effective. It would only make him feel the need to show his independence and fearlessness by ignoring your dictums. However, you can point out that his motorcycle-riding can be a risky way to release tension.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I am going to another town soon to visit a close old friend who is dying. It will be hard to talk to him if I just ignore his serious condition. I'm not good at pretense and I don't know if he will respect me if I try to make him think he's going to be all right. What can I do? I'm totally unprepared. — W.L.

Dear W.L.: I think you must take your cues from your friend, trying to be sensitive to his needs and desires. Before seeing him, you might discuss it with his family, or any person who may be closer to him than you are.

Americans consider death a dirty word that should never be mentioned. Because of our intense fears, we often tend to close the door on those who are dying, leaving them alone to cope with their anxieties without help. Some terminal patients long to share their feelings. If they felt free to talk about their fears, they might find a great sense of relief and peace.

Many who have survived near-death situations describe the emotional state at the moment they were closest to dying as pleasurable and some even acknowledge joy.

When you visit your friend, ask if there's anything he'd like to discuss. Let him know you love and support him and don't try to pretend nothing's wrong unless he lets you know he wants it that way.

Instant stardom comes to dancer

NEW YORK (AP) — The star at the last moment steps down and her stand-in steps up. That show business cliche actually happened recently to Leslie Browne.

Miss Browne, a 19-year-old member of the New York City Ballet's corps de ballet, replaced Gelsey Kirkland, the star of the American Ballet Theatre, as one of the four major characters in a much-publicized movie, "The Turning Point."

She got the role when Miss Kirkland bowed out because of tendonitis, a tendon inflammation common among dancers.

The movie, written by Arthur Laurents and directed by Herbert Ross, is about two middleaged women who started out together as ballet dancers. The character played by Anne Bancroft has devoted herself to her career, while the character played by Shirley MacLaine has become a housewife.

Miss Browne plays Miss MacLaine's daughter, who is an up-and-coming ballet star. Mikhail Baryshnikov, the famous Russian defector hailed as the heir-apparent to Rudolf Nureyev, portrays Miss Browne's boyfriend.

How does the young dancer feel about the big break?

"I'm excited. I never even dreamt of it," says Miss Browne dutifully, but it's clear she is less than overwhelmed by her overnight stardom. She is a sophisticated show business child whose parents are former ballet dancers and to her, footlights and greasepaint are as familiar as breakfast cereals. Besides, she isn't at all interested in becoming an actress.

"I want to dance and dance only," she proclaims. "Just plain acting is not what I want. It's okay, but I'd rather act through movements than through my voice and my facial expressions."

The 5-foot-4, 95-pounder with her light brown hair, green eyes, long neck and milk-white skin, looks the typical classical ballet dancer that she is.

She was born in New York, but grew up in Phoenix, Ariz. Her father, a former American Ballet Theatre soloist, still operates a dance school there. Her parents are divorced and her mother works as a travel agent in New York.

Miss Browne returned here a few years ago to attend the Professional Children's School and the School of American Ballet, the official school of the New York City Ballet. Within a year, George Balanchine, the school's faculty chairman and ballet master of the City Ballet, picked her to join the company and she made her debut in "Symphony in C."

She obtained a leave of absence this summer from City Ballet to work on the movie, originally as Miss Kirkland's stand-in, and also to play a small role. She got the job through her parents, who are long-time friends of Nora Kaye, one of the movie's associate producers and a former prima ballerina of the American Ballet Theatre. Miss Kaye is married to director Ross, who is also the movie's co-producer.

The theme of "The Turning Point" being the choice between career and home, which way would Miss Browne go if the problem arose?

"Well, at this point, I'd stick to career," she said, explaining she had no boyfriend although there are many she is "fond" of.

Does she think the character played by Miss MacLaine made a mistake in abandoning her dance career? "No," said Miss Browne firmly. "Because I think at that time that was what she wanted. If that's what she wanted, it's not a mistake. A lot of people regret what they do later."

Delegates selected for meet

Mrs. Doris Drew of Trinity Lutheran Church is one of 800 women from California, Arizona, Utah, Nevada and Hawaii who will be attending the 15th annual convention of the Pacific Southwest Lutheran Church Women, an official auxiliary of the Lutheran Church in America, at the Asilomar Conference Grounds in Pacific Grove, Oct. 18-21.

Mrs. Erling Wold, author of "Shalom Woman," will be the featured speaker. She is a pioneer organizer of congregation-directed preschools, is the former executive director of American Lutheran Churchwomen and is a pastor's wife and mother of five children.

Other women attending the convention from Trinity Lutheran Church are Mmes Barbara Price, Diane Nelson, Katherine Geyer, Barbara Holtz, Connie Morlock, Gene Palmer, Lorraine Peterson, Shirley Langland, Ann Eerge and Pat Coventry.

Cooler

For a total cooling on a hot day, treat yourself to a hot or tepid bath rather than a cold one.

Writer's club sets contest

The Pomona Valley Writer's Club will plan the holiday schedule and the election of officers when the group meets at 7 p.m., Oct. 19, in the Ontario City Library Garden Room. Open contests will be for juvenile and nonfiction writing.

Entries judged as winners in the open poetry contest in September were those of: Virginia Mitchel, Ontario, first; Colleen Riggs, Etiwanda, second; Jo Krizek, Cucamonga, and Elizabeth Doidge, Cucamonga, tied for third place.

Fiction contest winners were: Kit Vargo, Ontario, first; Grandin Hammell, Diamond Bar, second; David Coffman, Cucamonga, third; Jo Krizek and Florence Lovgren, Ontario, tied for fourth.

Cooking rice

When you cook rice, all the liquid doesn't have to be water. Use juice or syrup from canned pineapple for half the liquid. Toss the cooked rice with slivered almonds and add a dash of cinnamon or a bit of chopped fresh mint. Good with grilled chicken or fish.

Newcomer dance slated by PVSP

All divorced and widowed single parents are invited to attend a meeting of Pomona Valley Single Parents Club Oct. 23 and stay for the dance later in the evening.

The meeting will be held at Islander Terrace, 4620 Holt Ave., Montclair, at 8 p.m. Dancing will begin at 9 p.m.

Pomona Valley Single Parents is a nonprofit organization for the purpose of helping divorced and widowed parents readjust through social and recreational activities.

Methodist women plan annual luncheon

Theme for the annual Friendship Luncheon planned by Trinity United Methodist Women on Thursday will be "The Light of the World." Luncheon will be served at 12:15 p.m. in Fellowship Hall at the church.

On the program will be Dr. Carolyn Stahl, coordinator of spiritual life at Claremont School of Theology. She will give a meditation on "Experiencing the Parable of the Lamp." Dr. Stahl serves in a pastoral counseling capacity. She received her doctorate from the School of Theology and was ordained a Methodist minister in 1974.

Music numbers will be presented by Mrs. Nancy Lahar and Miss Dawn Kehret, accompanied by Mrs. Beth Edwards.

Cochairmen are Mrs. Ruth Perrill and Mrs. Elizabeth Fry. There will be a hostess at each table and Mrs. Ruth Lenz will welcome guests. Invocation will be given by Miss Grace Hamm and devotions will be led by Mrs. Alice Naugle. Mrs. Lorinne Reinoehl will give the benediction. Luncheon will be prepared by Mrs. Agnes McVaigh and Mrs. Mary Knapp. Mrs. Grace Crawford will be in charge of the dining room.

Child care will be provided and children should bring sack lunches.

Cooked onions

Team small cooked onions with drained canned pineapple chunks. Drizzle with butter and lemon juice. Serve with barbecued hamburgers, chicken or fish.

Zontians schedule activities

Six members of the Pomona Valley Zonta Club will be attending the fall conference to be held in Ventura this weekend. From the club there will be Dorothy Ransom, Evelyn Barrett, Margaret Shepard, Ruth Hauser, Helen Boughton and Hillie Thurn in attendance.

One of the highlights of the conference will be the presence of the newly elected international president from France, Mme. France de la Chaise-Mutin. A commemorative program in honor of Amelia Earhart will be held Saturday evening. Bylaw changes will also be on the agenda.

Zonta Club of Pomona Valley will have a dinner meeting on Oct. 20 at 7 p.m. in Pomona Valley Community Hospital main auditorium.

Catherine Serpa, past president of Claremont Z Club, will relate highlights of the convention she attended in Washington, D. C. as a delegate for Girl Scouts of America.

Guests will be sponsors of Claremont and Pomona Z clubs and club presidents.

GOOD PORTRAITS TAKE TIME

One of the most popular and lasting gifts one can receive is a professional quality portrait of someone dear. These portraits are not of the type to be put away in some scrapbook; rather, they are given a place of honor in the home. Sometimes they are placed on a mantle, a TV, or hung on the wall. Wherever they are placed, it is a prime location of esteem in the home.

It's a great feeling for the giver too. For when you give a portrait, in a way, you are giving a little bit of yourself. Your loved one will have a remembrance to last a lifetime.

But it's best of all to receive the portrait. A color portrait says "I'm thinking of you." in the most gracious and personal way.

Anyone can take a picture, but a fine portrait worthy of a gift you would want to give requires the magic touch of the professional photographer. Only he knows the fine balance of light, pose and background. He is the artist of technique & composition. His art requires taste, texture and time.

Time is one of the key elements in professional portraiture.

All too often, we hear of the hurried parent who wants a portrait of the grandchild to give. It's one week before Christmas. All the photographer can say is "I'm sorry."

As Christmas approaches, the work load increases and along with it, the time factor does too.

It is highly recommended that Christmas portraits be done as early as possible. Four studios in the area which excel in this service are:

OPERATIC BUSS — Tenor Luciano Pavarotti kisses co-star Renata Scotto following their performance in "Il Trovatore" at the Metropolitan Opera House in New York Monday night. The production opened the Met's 92nd season.

Pierce plans piano workshop

Mary Elizabeth Clark, piano and organ instructor, will present a workshop, "Ear Training for the Young Piano Student," at Ralph Pierce Music, 822 N. Garey Ave., Pomona, at 9:30 a.m. Friday.

This is one of the regular workshops for piano teachers offered by Ralph Pierce Music. Admission is free. Music teachers are invited to call 623-5525 for reservations.

Miss Clark has taught music in public schools and given private lessons for many years, but she is best known as the author of many books on piano and organ. She was co-author with David Carr Glover on the Belwin Organ Library and of many of their piano publications as well. She recently established her own music publishing company, Myklas Press.

Miss Clark, immediate past president of the Colorado State Music Teachers Association, has written articles for most of the music teacher publications.

Ocean facts

In the oceans there are great "rivers" called ocean currents. The Gulf Stream is the largest and most important of these currents.

Jazz fete a hit

The 19th annual Monterey Jazz Festival reports 29,448 paid admissions for its five concerts and a gross of $189,000.

Festival officials stated that the 1976 festival exceeded the 1975 festival gross by about $4,000. The non-profit event sold out two of its five shows — Saturday afternoon and Saturday evening — and provided the overflow crowd with a large screen, closed circuit television broadcasts in a building at the fairgrounds.

Boat mishaps

The operator of any boat involved in an accident must stop, render assistance and offer identification. A report must be filed within 48 hours in event of a death.

Windom to do James Thurber

The Claremont Colleges will present the one-man show, "William Windom Plays Thurber" in Garrison Theater at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

WILLIAM WINDOM

The two-act production is made up of selections from James Thurber's reports, stories and fables.

Windom is best known for his Emmy Award-winning performance in another Thurber play, "My World and Welcome to It." In the present show he evokes the late humorist with wit humor.

Tickets are on sale at the box office and at Mutual and Liberty agencies. Reservations can be made by calling 626-4523.

Record flight

On Feb. 22, 1963, an American plane made the longest non-stop flight ever made in the U.S. pole area, covering 3,600 miles in 10 hours.

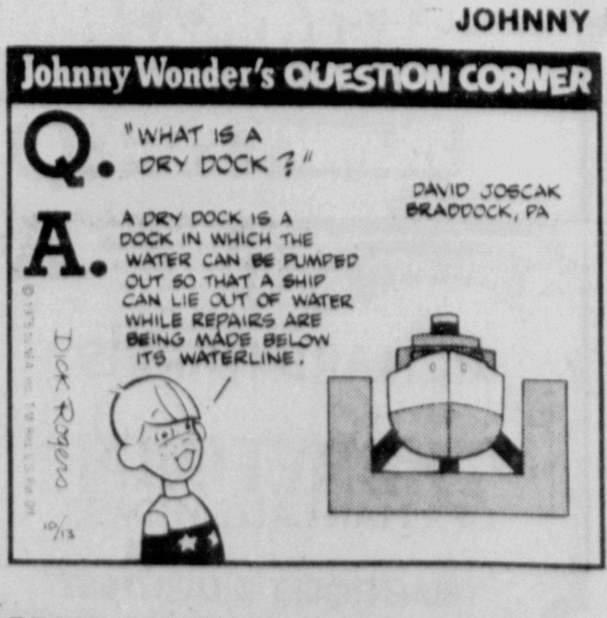
JOHNNY WONDER



Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER
Q. "WHAT IS A DRY DOCK ?"
DAVID JOSCAK BRADDOCK, PA
A. A DRY DOCK IS A DOCK IN WHICH THE WATER CAN BE PUMPED OUT SO THAT A SHIP CAN LIE OUT OF WATER WHILE REPAIRS ARE BEING MADE BELOW ITS WATERLINE.
DICK ROJENO
10/13

A dry dock is a dock from which the water can be pumped out while repairs are being made below a ship's waterline.

Dry docks known as graving docks look like huge concrete tubs sunk into the shore and fitted with watertight gates and pumps to remove the water inside.

One end of the dock opens onto the harbor. When a ship is to be docked, the dock is flooded with water. When the ship enters the dock, the gate is closed and the dock is pumped dry.

While the ship is being repaired, it is held upright by supporting blocks. When the repairs are completed, the dock is again flooded, allowing the ship to float.

Docks called floating dry docks can be moved wherever they are needed.

The bottom and sides of a floating dry dock are hollow.

Water is let into the hollow spaces, making the dock sink low enough to allow a ship to enter.

The water is then pumped out and the dock rises, lifting the ship out of the water.

A World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.

Progress Bulletin

Shortage haunts still

Bitter memory elusive; car care counts more

The human mechanism has one particularly marvelous feature. No matter how severe a pain is created by illness or mishap, once the body has recovered there is no tangible recollection of the hurt. Physical scars may remain, but the intensity of the pain itself is forgotten.

The above-stated fact may help illuminate what has been happening to the attitude of the motoring public in recent days. Seemingly slipping from our consciousness is the spectre of the gasoline shortage that haunted us only a matter of months ago.

Likewise, the air quality problem that had a nation in near turmoil in the 1960's has been put on our mental back burners. (After all, haven't the auto companies "saved us" by producing more economical, cleaner burning cars?)

It is true, the car makers have made remarkable strides in building cars that give more miles per gallon and emit less pollutants.

But the facts show that the discomfort caused car owners by scarce gasoline at increasingly higher prices and the cost of pollution and poor performance is repressed into the darkest corners of our consciousness.

Proof of the contention — what car makers are accomplishing by making better cars is being undone by the car buyer — can be found in measurements of public attitudes and practices.

For example, a nationwide test program of motorists' maintenance habits shows a continuation of sloppy maintenance practices. Three cars in every four show at least one defect that adversely affects fuel economy, emissions or performance. And the defects are due to lack of good maintenance.

Yet never in the history of car ownership have good car habits been so lucrative to the owner:

Years ago, when fuel cost less than 30 cents a gallon, even a 10 per cent savings in fuel was not too alluring! Today, such a savings can amount to hundreds of dollars annually.

The price of cars is climbing steadily. While it has always been true that the automobile, next to the house, is the second largest purchase the average person makes, some of today's cars cost what a small house used to cost. Therefore, car care is a form of protection of a sizeable investment.

Along with higher new car prices, used cars have zoomed in price. The potential for getting a high return for a used vehicle has never been greater — especially when that vehicle has been well cared for.

There is no better time to get into good car care habits than the fall and winter season.

•There is more stop and go driving which is draining on fuel economy and on the ignition system. So a tune-up is a smart investment . . . not only for gas saving reasons but for surer starting.

•Slippery streets and highways demand sound brakes, shocks, tires and steering.

•Longer hours of darkness mean visibility is challenged by misaligned, non-functioning lights, cracked and dirty glass or worn wiper blades.

•Extremes in temperature mean cooling systems must be in top shape.

Auto care-less:

Improper maintenance costs careless car owners needless trouble, dollars

More than 45 million vehicles in the United States show evidence of improper engine maintenance and are therefore wasting fuel, excessively polluting the air and otherwise performing poorly.

Based on tests already conducted by Champion Spark Plug Company on more than 4,500 cars in 20 cities, 42 per cent of all vehicles in the U.S. would not meet the newer emissions standards proposed in New Jersey, the only state with emission inspections now in full effect.

While the vehicles that didn't attain New Jersey standards were less than half of all cars tested, they emitted more than 63 per cent of the total carbon monoxide and nearly 64 per cent of the total hydrocarbons measured in the idle sampling.

According to David L. Walker, Champion's Director of Automotive Technical Services, "On a nationwide basis our preliminary finding is an average 11.7 per cent improvement in fuel economy after tune-up in cars that were overdue for the service. In several cars, fuel savings of more than 50 per cent were recorded after a tune-up."

Mr. Walker added that

45 million vehicles suffer from inattention

all cars tested in the U.S. are showing at idle a 40 per cent post tune-up reduction in CO and 53 per cent lowering of HC emissions.

One car in 20 was diagnosed as a "gross emitter" thereby exceeding 10 per cent CO and 2000 p.p.m. HC. Mr. Walker added, "While these cars are only a small per cent of the total sample, each one of them spews about 13 times the pollutants into the air as a well-maintained, late-model car.

"That's why we support the Environmental Protection Agency's call for mandatory emissions inspection in areas with air quality problems."

The Champion fuel economy and emission tests are part of a three-year survey being conducted in 30 communities identified by the Environmental Protection Agency as having air quality problems.

The Champion tests revealed that the current-year models are emitting considerably less CO and HC than older models. Due to low-emission equipment installed by the manufacturers, new cars emit about half the pollutants as the average for all pre-1975 cars.

According to Mr. Walker, "The dramatically lowered hydrocarbon and carbon monoxide emissions recorded in newer vehicles point to the progress manufacturers are making in cleaning up the air.

"The trend to cleaner air should continue since normal auto scrappage rates will continue to eliminate older, less efficient vehicles from the total U.S. car population," Mr. Walker said.

The result of motorists' lack of maintenance was indicated by their own specific complaints about their cars' performance. In interviews prior to putting their vehicles through the check lane — 43.7 per cent complained of rough idle.

In addition, 41.8 per cent noted hesitation upon acceleration, 28.9 per cent reported run-on (failure of the engine to stop after the ignition is turned off). Also 21.7 per cent said they had engine knock (detonation) and 14.7 per cent complained about misfire.

Items needing maintenance as noted by Champion engineers included air filters (34.5 per cent), battery (20.4 per cent), tires (14.1 per cent), belts (19.1 per cent), hoses (10.9 per cent) and exhaust systems (7.8 per cent).

Test results include cars checked in Toledo, Pittsburgh, Washington, Philadelphia, Boston, New York, Toronto, Montreal, Kansas City, Dallas, Houston, Chicago, San Antonio, El Paso, Phoenix, San Diego, and the Los Angeles area, San Francisco, Fresno and Sacramento.

BRIEF RESPITE — The Champion test unit pauses at the Golden Gate Bridge on San Francisco Bay.

Energy crisis no bargain, but . . .

Accident rates tapered as speed limits reduced, standards raised

The energy crisis has been no bargain, but some good may come out of it. Perhaps it already has, as many safety leaders trace a decline in the highway accident rate to energy-forced lower speed limits.

The Automotive Information Council points out higher petroleum costs and fears of future shortages could also make the public more favorably inclined toward motor vehicle inspection. An efficient engine that meets emission standards delivers more miles to the gallon and a regular inspection is the best way to determine if the standards are being met, AIC claims.

Thirty-two states and the District of Columbia now have periodic motor vehicle inspection (PMVI). The number has been virtually constant since the dawn of this decade. Voluntary programs were the vogue during the '50s and half of the '60s but PMVI generated little support because of a lack of data to show that vehicle condition was a key safety factor.

Today, there is solid evidence that defective vehicles have figured prominently in accidents causing deaths and injuries:

— Nebraska reported 10 per cent of fatal accidents involved faulty vehicles prior to PMVI in 1968 and 5.6 percent in 1972 after PMVI.

— Department Of Transportation (DOT) said brake problems alone account for 1,600 to 3,000 deaths a year.

— Institute for Safety Analysis estimated defective vehicles were involved in more than 5,000 deaths and 200,000 serious injuries annually.

Until the passage of the Clean Air Act in 1970, safety was the only purpose of PMVI. Now, an inspection system is vital for another reason, the air we breathe. Except for the state of New Jersey and a limited number of communities, the emissions inspection program is still on the launch pad.

As the law now reads, two agencies of the Federal Government are responsible for periodic inspections — the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA), for safety; the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), for emissions. The Automotive Information Council says that administration of PMVI should be given to one agency, pointing out that inspection for safety and emissions could be completed at one time. Certainly, that would be far more convenient for the owners of more than 100 million vehicles in operation.

Perhaps the program would gain even greater acceptance if it were called "fuel economy inspection" or "engine efficiency inspection" with the emphasis on saving gasoline and money. DOT conservatively estimates that inspection could save 375,000 barrels of crude oil a day.

Here are some results of studies that clearly demonstrate the advantages of an efficient power plant:

— EPA gave 70 cars loaded emission inspection and after adjustment recorded an 8.4 per cent dip in gas consumption.

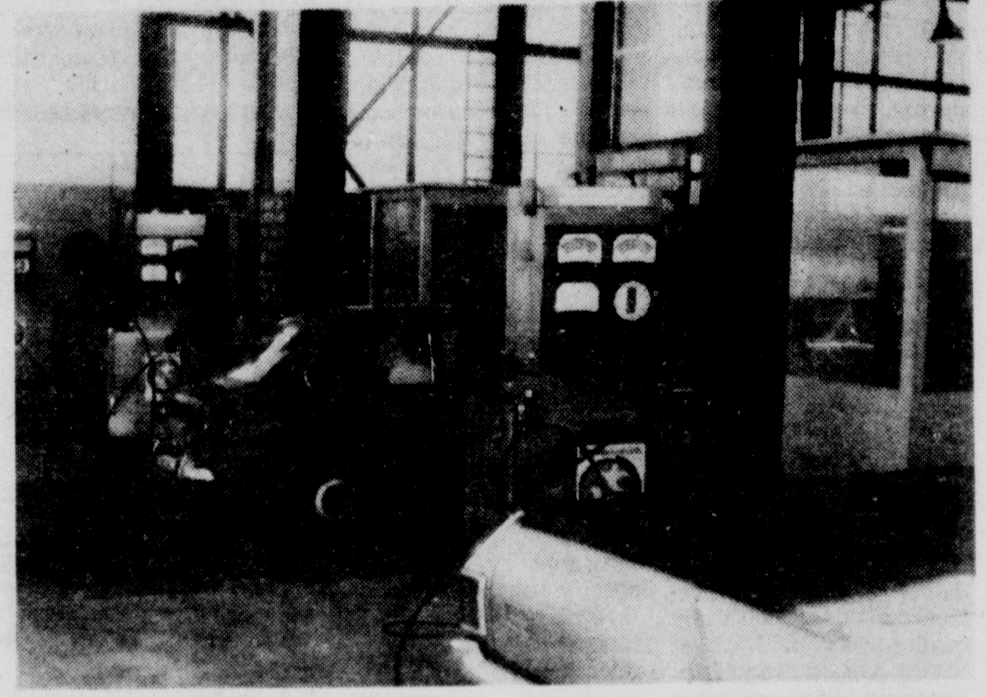
— Champion Spark Plug Company, in nation-wide emission and fuel economy tests, found on average an 11.7 per cent fuel economy improvement after needed tune-up. One car in every 35 is so poorly maintained that it wastes from 20 to 33 per cent of its fuel.

— Gulf Oil tested 120,000 vehicles over a year, found 23 per cent of the cars with inefficient engines. The company estimated the average test car wasted as much as 140 gallons of fuel a year, or nearly $100 at today's prices.

— New York City ran an inspection program on 1,200 taxis, found a substantial reduction in hydrocarbon (HC) and carbon monoxide (CO) emissions and fuel savings up to 10 per cent after corrections.

When CO levels are excessive, it means poor carburetion. Some causes: too much fuel in the mixture, low idle speed setting, inoperative choke, clogged filter. High HC usually comes from an ignition problem. Causes: ignition timing advanced or retarded too much, poor condenser, worn out spark plugs, low battery voltage, vacuum leaks.

Of course, improper carburetion and ignition waste gasoline. Couple that with the facts that show PMVI saves lives and there is every reason to believe that America is ready for an across the nation vehicle inspection program including emissions of at least once a year.



AUTO EMISSIONS — All New Jersey car owners must submit their vehicles to annual emissions inspection as part of their overall vehicle checks. Only minor objections have risen from the program.

AAA advice

Precaution aids starts

AAA advises motorists to take a few simple precautions to assure that cars will start.

— Keep cars in a garage if possible.

— Motorists who do not have a garage should park the vehicle with its back to prevailing winds and its hood against a building. Place a blanket over the hood.

— Before starting car, make sure headlights, radio and other electrical accessories are turned off.

— To start car, turn on ignition, depress accelerator once, then let it up half way (or follow instructions in the owner's manual).

— Don't keep starter turning over for more than 10 seconds at a time.

— Never "pump" the accelerator. This will flood the engine.

— If the engine is flooded, shut off ignition, push the accelerator all the way to the floor and hold it there one minute. This procedure allows excess gasoline to drain through the manifold, with enough fuel remaining to provide a proper start.

—Keep car well-tuned and the battery charged and filled.

Mazagran

Iced coffee originated in Algeria as a sweetened, cold coffee drink known as mazagran, according to the National Geographic Society.

'Winterizing' needs nil if cars cared for right

Motorists who have followed the regularly scheduled program of car care prescribed in the owner's manual can forget about winterizing, according to Automobile Club of Michigan.

"Most 'can't start' calls for assistance are the result of vehicle neglect rather than vehicle failure," AAA notes.

"Poorly tuned engines and weak batteries are responsible for 80 per cent of all wintertime emergency road service calls."

For vehicle owners who have not followed the detailed maintenance instructions in their car owner's manual, AAA offers this 10-point check list for keeping a car in peak operating condition, once it is properly tuned:

1. Check plugs and points regularly. Dirty or worn plugs waste gas and put an added strain on the battery because they require more electricity than clean plugs. If points are worn, they cannot deliver peak power to plugs.

2. Have car's automatic choke cleaned and adjusted. If automatic choke doesn't cut down when engine is warmed up, gasoline is wasted.

3. Inspect the cooling system. Hoses, radiator, pressure cap and thermostat as well as the antifreeze level should be checked regularly.

4. Make sure car battery is fully charged, with terminals clean and secure and water covering battery plates. Battery should be free from cracks or corrosion. Periodic inspections will assure that battery is properly charged.

5. Check voltage

CB radio fans

Signal boosted by spark plugs

A sparking spark plug, if it were linked to a resonant antenna, could create a radio signal that could be heard around the world. Ordinarily, this fact might be of interest only to trivia fans, broadcast engineers, or former spark gap operators.

But due to the phenomenal growth of the Citizen's Band radio usage in cars and trucks, the radio signal emitted by the spark plug and the ignition system is of unusual interest.

Now that the CB radio literally is becoming the nation's conversation piece, the initials R.F.I. take on a new importance. R.F.I. stands for radio frequency interference.

R.F.I., as the name implies, is the "static" noises emanating from sources on or within the car itself. These noises can interfere with reception of CB and conventional radios, television and other communications media.

Most cars and trucks are suppressed by the manufacturer to provide satisfactory reception in conventianal AM and FM receivers. However, amateur radio, citizen's band and other types of two-way communications systems may require additional and more efficient suppression.

Capacitors, providing grounding of R.F.I. signals, and special routing of wires are typical suppression devices.

The high voltage ignition circuit (the unit that actually fires the spark plug) is potentially the worst R.F.I. offender. To minimize the possibilities of R.F.I. from this circuit, ignition cables are usually of the resistor type. These suppressor cables use resistance type conductors rather than metal wire conductors at their core.

Also commonly used in R.F.I. suppression are resistor-type spark plugs. Resistor plugs contain an element that greatly reduces radiation from ignition cables and virtually eliminates the high frequency of the spark.

Many vehicles currently utilize both resistor plugs and suppression cables for R.F.I. squelching.

To keep CB reception and transmission at its most efficient level, maintenance of the ignition system is important.

Of prime importance is the condition of the spark plug wires. Long usage, engine temperature, vibration and rough handling can lessen their R.F.I. suppression ability. So when the engine is tuned, wires should be given a resistance check. Wires should ordinarily be replaced when resistance value approaches three times the original value.

Also important is how ignition cables are handled. When working with them, twist, then pull at the plug boot, not the cables themselves. Cables should not be cut to attach suppressors or connectors. Usually cables cannot be repaired satisfactorily, but should be replaced when damaged — preferably the entire set of cables.

Worn spark plugs, with wide gaps, require higher ignition voltage. When this condition exists, the ignition system will radiate higher levels of interference as well as hamper engine performance. Installing new resistor plugs will help relieve the situation.

Erosion of the rotor also can affect the distributor cap segments and can cause additional R.F.I. Such erosion increases the gap which the ignition voltage must jump and causes higher interference levels and poor performance. Should the rotor and cap become worn, replace them.

Poor connections at locations like the spark plug terminals, coil and distributor towers, hamper suppression and engine performance. Connections should be checked for tightness as part of a tune-up.

Few auto firms have survived trade rigor

The names of companies that have built automobiles in North America run in the hundreds. While only a handful of these firms survives today, the memories of the majority which have fallen by the wayside linger.

As a tribute to these pioneers and as a reminder that good maintenance has allowed some of the original cars to survive today, this verse is dedicated.

Bad driving habits irk veteran driver

"My pet gripe," said the old-timer, "is against all too many drivers who have developed bad driving and maintenance habits."

This old-timer says he found himself trapped on a fine, broad turnpike by a sudden and severe bad weather condition.

"I say 'Trapped' because traffic was heavy and too many motorists were highballing far above the 55-mile speed limit when the storm broke.

"Naturally, I turned on my lights immediately. I wanted the car behind me to realize I was ahead of him, no matter how badly forward vision was impaired by the mounting darkness and the foglike mist created by the heavy rains.

"But too many others failed to do likewise (why, I will never know) which meant that frequently all you saw ahead of you that might be a motor vehicle was a slightly darker shape in the wet gloom.

"Meanwhile, if the guy in back of you didn't have some light showing forward, you'd have to strain to make sure he wasn't engaged in dangerous tailgating.

"It was almost impossible to turn off the turnpike with any degree of safety — turnoffs were jammed and motorists were speeding by.

"Another hazard was cars that had run out of gas or had encountered some mechanical difficulty which forced them to stop at roadside. Then, in a misguided effort to save their batteries, they didn't even show parking lights.

"I've never, during all of my driving in good weather and bad, had to stop because of a mechanical breakdown, or being out of gas.

"This 100 percent performance, I attribute to the fact that every car I've ever owned has been taken in for a tune-up and a complete check of all safety features at every 10,000 miles that shows on my odometer.

"I got through the 135-mile drive during a vision destroying storm safely until, off the turnpike and very near my home, I was stopped by a red traffic light at the bottom of a little hill.

"Yes, it was raining heavily and my lights, front and back, were still on. Seconds after I stopped, the car behind me ran into my rear end.

"Fortunately for me, the impact caused only minor damage to my car. But the other car suffered a punctured radiator.

"The driver behind me admitted he had seen the traffic light change and my car, with rear red lights showing, come to a gentle stop.

" 'Sorry, sir,' the driver said, 'but my brakes wouldn't hold.'

"I examined his tires. The treads were worn smooth.

"It wasn't only your brakes, I suggested to him, it was the way you drive and take care of your car.

"Automobiles today are efficient machines with lots of good safety features built into them; but they can be no better, no safer, than the person who drives them."

Car check can extend service

You've owned your car almost three years and it is practically paid for. Now you are debating whether to trade it in for a new one or hold on to it for a while longer.

If you have been maintaining your car regularly, chances are there is still lots of life left in it. However, if your maintenance has been hit and miss, then you should give your vehicle a bumper to bumper and roof to tire tread physical at your favorite service outlet.

Use the following check list to determine the condition of your car. If you decide to hang on to it, make certain these items are in good condition to assure yourself of continued worry-free safe performance.

Check:

—Battery and cable

— Condition of tires, both tread and side walls

—Transmission linkage

—Condition of brakes

—Condition of shock absorbers

—Exhaust system

—Cooling system including radiator hoses, cap and thermostat

—Belts

—Wiper arms and blades

In addition, make sure these routine maintenance services have been performed recently:

Engine tune-up, oil change with new filter, lights checked and aligned, wheels aligned, chassis lubricated, fresh antifreeze installed.

Also, if there are nicks and bumps in the car, have them repaired.

Small repairs aid in saving major expense

How long has it been since you've asked someone to take a look at your car's wiring or radiator hose? It may have been quite a while, if you are typical of car owners reported in a poll of 370 automotive repairmen.

The survey, conducted by Car Care Council, shows many motorists tend to ignore battery cables, spark plug wires, radiator hose and pressure cap until failure has resulted.

In the case of battery cables, which topped the list of neglected components, trouble is likely to take the form of starting failure.

Especially vulnerable are the connections on the battery itself. Corrosion which accumulates on these surfaces can restrict the flow of current from the battery to the starter, resulting in symptoms similar to a weak or dead battery. Car Care Council recommends having these terminals remover, cleaned and covered with a protective coating at least twice a year.

Drought

California's drought and extreme heat during the spring and early summer continues to plague agriculture and are certain to have an effect on consumer food prices nationwide. According to a national magazine (Time), unusual weather conditions are being experienced in a great many areas of the world.

Align wheels, save rubber

When shoes scuff you may not be walking properly, and when tires scuff they, too, may not be aligning properly. The alignment of your wheels in relation to the direction of travel should be checked if you're "scuffing," suggests the Tire Industry Safety Council.

Traded toy soldiers for

Baseball card collection

SAN VITO DEI NORMANNI AIR STATION, Italy (AP) — Twenty-five years ago, a youngster in Pine Bluff, Ark., traded a few of his metal toy soldiers for a handful of baseball cards. Today, Air Force T. Sgt. Dick Leech has amassed a collection of more than 65,000 cards.

"I bought cards for the first time in 1952," explains Leech, who has spent 13 of his 35 years in the Air Force. "Some of the players I remember in that first set of cards were Mickey Mantle, Stan Musial, Early Wynn, Milo Candini and Stan Jok."

It didn't take Leech long to devise a plan to quickly enlarge his collection. "I got in good with the local wholesale candy man," he recalls. "I often rode my bike to his store on the edge of town and returned home with a basket full of cards."

Leech is now a communications specialist at this small Air Force installation on the heel of Italy's boot. His collection is so immense that he was able to bring only 30,000 baseball cards with him on his assignment here.

An entire wall in the living room of the Leech home in Mesagne is hidden by the bookcase which houses his collection. Most cards remain in cardboard boxes, but he has placed his favorites, such as the 1951 Bowman Company series, in clear plastic covers in special notebooks.

"Cards have been distributed in a number of ways over the years," says Leech. "Nowadays, most cards come in bubble gum packs, and this is the way that most people have seen them. But baseball cards have also come with dog food, cereal, bread, various soft drinks, marbles and cookies."

While individual cards have changed little, series of cards have been greatly enlarged, Leech says. "Today, companies do as much as they can to increase the number of cards in a set. Up until the early '50s, they had a single picture of the player alone. Now they put in rookie cards, team cards and the outstanding players from the previous year. They even have cards on the all-time all-stars, like Babe Ruth and Ty Cobb."

When it comes to cheering for a major league team, Leech is a St. Louis Cardinals fan. "When I was growing up in Arkansas in the '50s," he says, "the only games we could pick up on the radio were the Cardinals'. That part of the country was saturated with Cardinals broadcasts, so naturally I became a St. Louis fan."

During his Air Force career, Leech has traveled around the world. Wherever he goes, he takes his cards with him.

"No matter where I am," he says, "I can take out my collection and think about when I was a kid playing ball and trading cards. I always feel just like I'm in the States. I've never regretted trading away my toy soldiers."

BICENTENNIAL FACTS

The Minutemen of Massachusetts were not a new idea. For more than a hundred years, the concept of having well-equipped, mobile forces ready for quick response had been a basic part of New England's military system. The term itself appeared in the 1750s, at the beginning of the French and Indian War. By the opening months of 1775, some 15,000 Minutemen obeyd the Provincial Congress's call to drill three times a week, The World Almanac reports.

Welfare rate up in seven cities

WASHINGTON (AP) — Between 11 and 17 per cent of the residents in 10 of the nations largest urban areas were drawing welfare benefits this year, according to a new government report.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare said the welfare rate rose between February 1975 and February 1976 in seven of those cities: St. Louis, Philadelphia, Washington, Newark, Detroit, New York and Chicago.

The percentage of residents drawing Aid to Families with Dependent Children during that period declined or stayed the same in three of the 1 cities: Baltimore, Boston and New Orleans. HEW said that in St. Louis and Detroit the welfare rate rose even though the jobless rates declined there.

The welfare rates this year and last year, respectively, in the 10 urban areas were: St. Louis, 16.8 per cent and 15.8 per cent; Baltimore 15.6 per cent and 15.6 per cent; Philadelphia, 14.5 and 13.9; Washington, D.C., 14.2 and 14.0; Boston (Suffolk County) 14.0 and 14.5; Newark (Essex County), 13.2 and 12.6; Detroit (Wayne County) 11.5 and 11.1; New Orleans (Orleans Parish) 11.2 and 11.4; New York City, 11.0 and 10.9; and Chicago (Cook County), 10.9 and 10.1.

Each of those cities or counties in which they are located has more than 500,000 residents.

In virtually all of those 10 urban areas, as with most others across the country, there was a population loss between 1960 and 1970 as higher-income families moved out.

"With the migration of middle and upper income families, as well as business, industry and capital, a disproportionate number of low-income residents remain in the cities, including the aged, the disabled, female-headed families and the unemployed," the report said.

In New York City, for example, about one-half million more people moved out than moved into the city during the decade, the report said.

Unemployment rates in the 10 selected metropolitan areas ranged last February from a low of 7.5 per cent in New Orleans to a high of 11.8 per cent in Detroit. The HEW report said, however that the impact of high unemployment rates on family welfare rolls also must take into account the proportion of the population with low incomes, the racial or ethnic makeup, the median age and socio-economic factors.

Meanwhile, there were other welfare developments involving New York City and state:

—A Rand Corp. study reported that New York City welfare mothers with three children get more in benefits than if they worked at a job paying the federally reguated minimum wage. The study was based on the 1974 caseload and the payment level hasn't been increased since then because of the city's financial troubles. But the annual payment to a mother of three was an average of $7,300, while the annual minimum wage scale is now $4,784.

—Large and newly recognized "over-runs" in welfare programs have thrown New York State's budget out of balance by more than $100 million, state budget officials told Gov. Hugh Carey. Unveiling a new welfare cost projection Tuesday that ranges from $120 to $175 million above his previous estimates, Carey blamed "the depressed state of our national and regional economy.

Dogs track down hundreds of criminals

CASSIA, Fla. (AP) — One day back in the 1950s, Colis Godwin began to understand what his bloodhounds were saying. It was a dark day for the criminal element.

Since then, Godwin's dogs have tracked down hundreds of murderers, rapists, bank robbers, prison escapees, kidnapers and missing persons in the backwoods of nearly every Central Florida county.

And they have provided Godwin, 62, with a career in the Lake County sheriff's department. At first he worked parttime — "I used to chase desperados all night then deliver milk during the day," he says.

In 1958, he became a fulltime deputy — and chief dog handler.

"A dog has a way of talking to you in his own language if you have sense enough to understand," Godwin says from under a straw cowboy hat. "Trouble is, most people don't have enough sense to understand a dog when it's trying to tell them something."

The deputy says his toughest challenge was tracking an escapee who was famous for outdistancing lawmen on chases through backwoods and muckland.

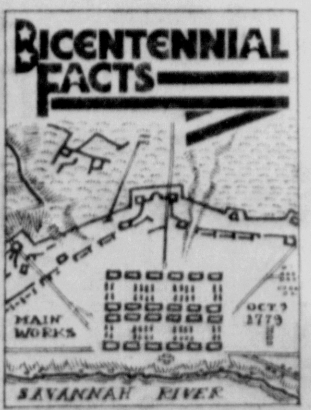
"Nobody had ever caught this boy before with bloodhounds, and I was using my best dog; Big Red, trying to track him," Godwin says.

Big Red "really knew some dog tricks," and matched the escapee move for move.

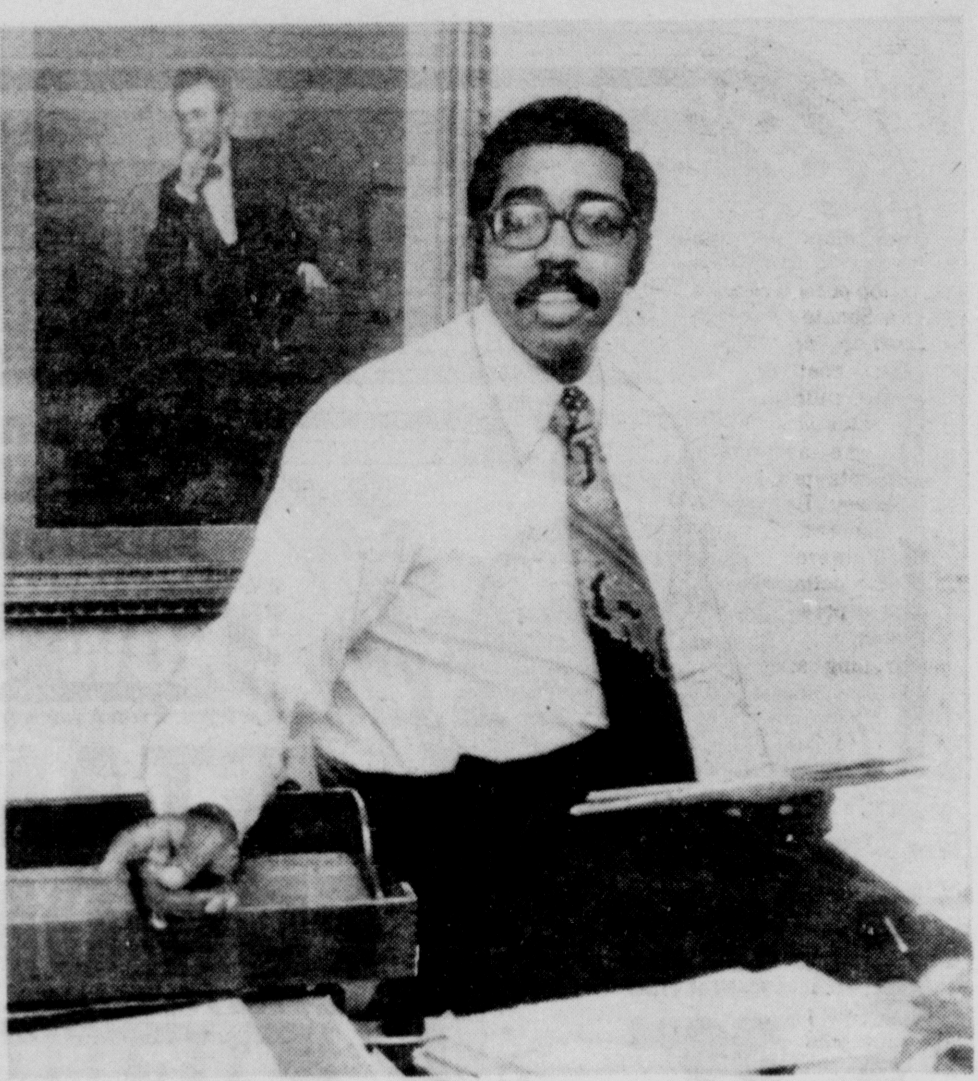
"He ran figure eights through the backwoods, climbed out on tree limbs, and ran cut-and-jump patterns," Godwin says. "He was after the scent. I reckon we must've run over 40 miles in 22 hours."

"That was one tired escapee," when the chase was over, Godwin says. The quarry was captured, like many before and since.

"Lord, I'm in no position to tell the number of lost people those dogs have found, the rape and murder cases they have helped solve," Godwin says.



Long before Sherman's march through Georgia during the Civil War, the British had a march of their own — across the colony from the coast to Augusta following the British capture of Savannah, Oct. 9, 1779. The British campaign in Georgia has been considered of little military importance, but it was a brutal occupation that left countless dead, both military and civilian, The World Almanac notes.



DEFENDS BUTZ — James E. Bostic Jr., 29, deputy assistant Agriculture secretary, has defended Earl L. Butz, saying that as a Southern black "I know my racists . . . and Earl Butz is no racist . . . He is just one of the nicest men I ever met." Bostic, who grew up in Bennettsville, S.C. is shown in his Washington office.

Retiree job pay hit by Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Retirees would no longer be able draw full jobless pay on top of their pensions under a Senate-passed bill designed to end the practice that costs an estimated $187 million a year.

By a voice vote, the upper house agreed to amendments proposed by Sen. Dewey Bartlett, R-Okla., to reduce a retiree's unemployment check one dollar for each dollar that person receives in pension.

In arguing successfully for the amendments on the Senate floor last week, Bartlett cited the results of an Associated Press analysis that for the first time gave figures on the extent and cost of the practice.

That AP analysis of a Census Bureau survey found that an estimated 161,000 pensioners also drew jobless pay in 1974, the latest year for which figures are available. The analysis also estimated the cost of the practice at $187 million that year.

"The drawing of unemployment compensation by retirees, known as the 'double-dip', is a rip-off of the American taxpayers. It is contrary to the purpose of unemployment compensation and is of even greater concern because of the drain that has been placed on these funds by the recession of the past several years," Bartlett said in a statement.

"It will no longer be used to provide icing on the cake for some receiving other income in retirement," he added.

The bill, which raises the tax on employers to try to erase the billions of dollars in red ink that have plagued the unemployment compensation system, was passed by the Senate by a 70-6 vote.

It now goes to a conference committee with the House, which passed a version that did not include the limit on jobless pay for pensioners.

Even if the limiting provisions are enacted into law, there is no way to determine immediately the cost savings the amendments would bring. The effect of limits would vary from individual to individual.

The AP computer analysis found that an estimated 90,000 federal, state and local government retirees and 71,000 private business pensioners received jobless pay in 1974.

The computer analysis also showed that most of the private pensioners also received a third check — from Social Security. A federal pension is designed to be equal to a private pension plus Social Security.

Bartlett cited the AP analysis' finding of a $116.5 milllion cost of jobless pay for government pensioners and $71.1 million for private business pensioners in his statement on the amendments.

Not all retirees are eligible for unemployment compensation.

They must have lost their job "involuntarily" and be seeking a new job. If, for example, a person was forced to retire at age 65 by company policy, that pensioner could become eligible for jobless pay.

And the retiree must live in a state that permits such payments. Each state sets its own rules for unemployment compensation and some already have banned or limited jobless pay for pensioners.

In general, this is how "double-dipping" pensioners draw jobless pay:

1.The prospective pensioner retires and the employer lists the move as involuntary. The retirement may be mandatory simply because the employe reached the age set for retirement by the employer. Or the prospective pensioner may have been involuntarily retired instead of fired or laid off. If the retirement was voluntary, the pensioner cannot draw retirement pay.

2. After a short period, the individual applies for unemployment compensation. The prospective pensioner must be able to work and looking for a job. A statement that the individual is looking for a job is usually sufficient to meet the "seeking work" requirement.

3.The government decides the individual meets qualifications for jobless pay and begins issuing checks to the retiree. The weekly payments are issued for up to 65 weeks in some areas, 39 weeks in others.

Congress has asked the Labor Department several times for information on how many pensioners are drawing unemployment. Department officials said that such information was unavailable and that it would be very expensive to collect.

But the AP — at a cost of about $275 — produced such figures from the same census survey used by the Labor Department to produce national unemployment figures for March 1975.

The figures are based on a survey of a sample of 45,000 households. The analysis used a computer to tally those who said they received both jobless pay and a pension. Census estimation techniques were then used to project a national figures.

As with any survey, the actual figures could differ from the survey findings.

Because the number of people drawing both pensions and unemployment is small when compared with the national population, the error margins for this survey mean there is slim statistical chance the total could be as high as 206,000 or as low as 116,000. The more statistically probable total is 161,000.

Within that limitation, the survey indicates the extent of the practice and is the only national data available on it.

regulator. An undercharged battery will fail and an overcharged battery will buckle its cover and bulge the sides, causing leaks.

6. Is the exhaust system noisy? A rusty or leaky muffler or exhaust manifold is a carbon monoxide hazard.

7. Check windshield wipers and washers for proper operation. Worn or poorly functioning wiper blades cut visibility and should be replaced. Water in the windshield washer reservoir should have an added solvent all year long. It not only prevents freezing, but helps wipers remove slush or accumulation for better visibility.

8. Make sure defrosters and heater are working properly.

9. Check fan belt and other belts for proper adjustment and replace them if worn. A slipping belt affects the alternator and operation of the car air conditioner.

10. Have a periodic general safety check made every 10,000 miles, including inspection of brakes, headlights, hoses, turn signals, back-up lights and tires. Check brake and transmission level in the rear axle.

Auto Club points out that a further benefit of a well-maintained automobile is fuel savings. A properly tuned engine will help cut gasoline consumption by one or two gallons per tankful.

HOW ABOUT THIS — Five-year-old Brad Levin of Van Nuys tries to get the approval of his St. Bernard, "Barney," as he picks out a Halloween pumpkin in a well-stocked patch near his home. Barney offers little advice and only passing interest as young Levin assesses the best Jack-O-Lantern material.

In Hungary: only citizens landed

BUDAPEST (AP) — Several thousand foreign citizens own property in Hungary. But, under a 1974 decree, no more property can be sold to foreign citizens unless they are returning ex-Hungarians.

Foreign relatives of Hungarian citizens can inherit property here, however, the government journal Magyar Hirlap reported.

In most cases, "foreign citizens" in this context means mainly defectors during and after the 1956 revolt.

The main thrust now is, the journal said, that while inheritance will continue to give some plots and houses to foreign citizens, "all connected dealings should be strictly regulated . .. and we should see that everybody realizes Hungary is not for sale... "

Authorities now strictly control the use and sale of foreign property in Hungarian territory, including the use of rents and other types of income from foreigners.

The journal described the case of a 65-year-old West Hungarian pensioner who had a house built on Lake Balaton for an undisclosed sum, with several living-rooms, three terraces, two bathrooms, and a garage and boathouse.

The article said the house was really built by her 1956-defector brother, a veterinary surgeon, residing in West Germany. The woman has already drawn up a will, leaving the house, and the lakeshore plot to her brother's children — a legally unassailable position.

The unnamed West German, who pays all costs, told Magyar Hirlap that he has seven brothers and sisters along with his elderly parents in Hungary, and wants to visit regularly as he feels nostalgic about Hungary.

At present, the annual house tax is 900 Forints ($45), and an additional sum of 9,600 Forints ($480) is payable as surtax, in view of the house being classed as "luxury type property."

Guide to auto buying

By Jean Barnes

Our old car buff has some specific information to share with those interested in buying their first old car.

Larry, whose health forced an early retirement, has spent the past four or five years learning the "ins and outs" of auto collecting. He buys, sells and swaps, often traveling hundreds of miles to attend a swap meet. There are more than 100 of these held across the nation each year, he explained.

"The new collector should plan to invest at least $500 in the first car," he began and explained that the minimum investment needed ranges from $500 to $1,500.

"You can pick up a fairly decent buy in that range."

Conversely, by trying to start "too small" you are inviting a lot of grief, he said.

Larry suggests that the beginner consider buying a Model A Ford or a Ford or Chevrolet dated before 1940. These seem to be the most popular with collectors and are the most plentiful. "You'll have to pay more for an open top or convertible," he added.

Before buying it, make sure the car will start and run and has all of the accessories. At the age of 30 or 40 years, it's unlikely to be in showroom condition unless it has been restored. And, the more restoration the car needs, the greater the amount of money needed for investment, he explained.

"Consider that you buy a car for $1,500. Suppose you have to have it reupholstered, painted, bumpers and grills rechromed, tires replaced, engine overhaul, new glass.

"Parts plus labor could easily add another $4,000 to $5,000 to the cost. Soon, you'll reach the point where your investment goes sour and you may never get your money out," he said.

Of course, if you like to tinker and are fairly skilled, you can do a lot of the work yourself.

Standing beside his 1940 Ford Coupe, he pointed to the worn tread on the running board and said that he plans to replace that himself. But he had his Model A upholstered professionally.

Finding parts for restoration work can be a problem, too. Those for the 1932-33-34 Ford are scarce and difficult to find.
